UTILITIES BOOST BILL LEGALIZING LARGE REGIONAL POWER COMBINES

Administration Giving Tacit OK to Amending Holding Company Act—SEC, FPC at Odds Over Plan.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5—With the tacit approval of the Eisenhower Administration, powerful private utility interests have launched a major attempt to obtain passage of a bill which could open the way for new utility combines of the Dixon-Yates type.

If they are successful, the Public Utilities Holding Company Act, enacted in 1935 to break up the power monopolies of the 1920s would be subjected to the first major amendment.

The bill, sponsored by Senators Charles E. Potter (Rep.), Michigan, and John O. Pastore (Dem.), Rhode Island, is one of several pending measures which have received little attention, but which, if passed, would make drastic and profound changes in federal power and resources policy.

As such, its opponents believe, the Potter-Pastore bill is part of a continuing Administration effort to reduce the amount of government regulation of private utilities and weaken the principle of unified federal development of natural resources, replacing this with the Eisenhower "partnership" policy.

Federal Bureaus Disagree.

The bill has produced a vigorous inter-agency fight which finds the Securities and Exchange Commission, charged with administering the holding company act, ranged against the Federal Power Commission and the Atomic Energy Commission.

SEC Chairman J. Sinclair Armstrong has told a Senate subcommittee headed by Pastore that the bill as now written would be "contrary to the interests of both consumer and investor."

Opponents consider the exemptions from federal regulation which would be granted electric utilities under the bill equal in importance to those contemplated for natural gas producers in the natural gas bill recently vetoed by President Eisenhower.

They fear enactment of the Potter-Pastore bill would lead to formation of the kind of regional utility combine proposed under the Dixon-Yates contract, which Mr. Eisenhower ordered canceled after heated protests from Democrats and a Senate investigation.

In the eyes of public power advocates, the bill could have even more significant results. They think it could lead to modern-day versions of the huge Insull and Electric Bond & Share utility empires outlawed by the "death sentence" clause of the 1935 law.

Why Backers Favor It.

Backers of the measure, however, contend it must be approved to give private industry sufficient incentive to develop commercially - feasible atomic power as a new source of electric energy in years to come, as supplies of conventional fuel for power dwindle.

One section of the bill would provide this impetus and encouragement for development of nuclear power. Another provision, however, would make a radical and sweeping change in the present holding company act. It is this section which opponents consider a dangerous "joker."

CAGE DOOR OPEN, LIONS KILL 2 MEN AT ZOO IN INDIA

BOMBAY, India, May 5 (AP)—A lion and lioness and their four cubs rushed from their cage through an open door in a crowded zoo today, and mauled two men to death.

One of the victims was a man who opened the cage door. No one knew why he did it.

While spectators scrambled to safety, some climbing trees at the Junagadh Zoo, the lioness attacked a gardener and killed him.

Keepers shot and killed the lioness and recaptured the cubs, but the lion jumped a wall and hid in a thicket. Armed guards ringed the area tonight with the lion still at large.

ANOTHER COELACANTH, A RARE FISH, IS CAUGHT

TANANARIVE, Madagascar Island, May 5 (AP)—A 65-inch long coelacanth, believed to be a female, was caught by fishermen off Grande Comore island yesterday. It was speeded to a laboratory here aboard a special military plane.

The coelacanths belong to a fish family which was believed to be extinct until a few years ago when a big male was caught, also off Madagascar.

If the newly caught coelacanth proves to be a female it will be the first large one to fall into the hands of scientists. Only one female has been caught so far and it died.

MAN HURT BY WATERSPOUT

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 5 (AP)—A swirling waterspout swept into Pensacola today injuring one person, damaging several buildings and knocking out electric power in a large section of the city. William Ellis Enfinger, the injured man, was dug from debris in a parking garage. A mail truck driver, he was taken to a hospital with serious injuries.

The waterspout, which the Weather Bureau said became a tornado when it reached land, came from the northwest.

David Gets 50 Cents for Driving Golf Cart, Eisenhower Wins Bet.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 5 (AP)—The Eisenhowers, grandfather and grandson, had a time for themselves on the golf course today. Incidentally, both made a little money, too.

President Eisenhower and his 8-year-old grandson, David, spent the morning at the Gettysburg Country Club near the President's farm home here. Eisenhower played 18 holes—shooting in the low 90s—and David took some golf lessons before picking up a half-dollar chauffeuring fee.

The President's grandson delightedly drove an electric golf cart, carrying himself and George E. Allen, a neighbor of the Eisenhowers, around the second nine holes.

Then grandfather and grandson posed for pictures of David driving out a few, and the Chief Executive produced a $10 bill to pay pro Dick Sleichter for David's hour-long lesson during the President's first nine holes.

"Oh, that's all right," Sleichter said, seeking to wave the fee aside.

"No, it isn't all right," Eisenhower insisted, pressing the money on him.

Sleichter ducked inside the pro shop and came back with $7.50 in change. Eisenhower took the bills and handed the boy the 50-cent piece.

"What's that for?" inquired David.

"That's for being a chauffeur," his grandfather told him.

Then they climbed into a waiting car and drove back to the Eisenhower farm where they and other members of the family are spending the weekend.

Before the car left, though, the President recalled a friendly little bet he apparently had made with one of his two golfing companions, retired Brig. Gen. Arthur S. Nevins.

"Do I owe you any money?" he asked Nevins out the car window.

"No, sir. I owe you some," replied Nevins, a long-time friend of the President and the manager of his farm.

NATO'S 3 WISE MEN MAY BE 3 BLIND MICE, ONE WARNS

PARIS, May 5 (AP) — Canada's Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson wondered aloud tonight whether it was right to call him one of the NATO ministerial council's "three wise men."

The council named Pearson and foreign ministers Gaetano Martino of Italy and Halvard Lange of Norway to suggest ways of expanding NATO's cooperation in non-military fields. A minister called them the "three wise men."

"Before this is over," Pearson lamented, "they may be calling us the three blind mice."

Woman Agrees to Be Teacher If School Baby-Sits for Her

WEST PATERSON, N.J., May 5 (AP)—Those with a baby sitter problem may find this solution instructive.

Mrs. Celeste di Camio of nearby Lincoln Park is getting a baby sitter for her son James by teaching school.

The West Paterson Board of Education hired her yesterday to teach the second grade next fall with the stipulation that she can bring James to both morning and afternoon sessions of kindergarten.

Normally, Lincoln Park residents may not attend school here. Also kindergarten youngsters usually attend only a single session.

NATO COUNCIL ACTS TO BUILD UNITY IN FIELDS OUTSIDE DEFENSE

Names Committee of 3 Foreign Ministers to Advise on Extending Co-operation in Non-Military Sphere.

(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

PARIS, Sunday, May 6—The North Atlantic council took a step early today toward carrying into non-military fields the unity that the 15 nations of the Atlantic alliance have attained in the sphere of defense.

Welcoming "a certain easing of tension" resulting from the Soviet policy of coexistence, the council decided there was now "scope for further peaceful initiatives" by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It therefore named a committee of three foreign ministers—dubbed "the Three Wise Men"—to advise the council on means of extending non-military forms of common action and increasing the unity of the alliance.

The committee will consist of Lester B. Pearson of Canada, Halvard Lange of Norway and Gaetano Martino of Italy. It was asked to submit a report as soon as possible but no date was fixed. It was assumed the council might consider the report at a special meeting in the autumn or at its regular December meeting.

Military Role Emphasized.

In a cautiously framed statement, discussed for hours by the foreign ministers of the 15 nations meeting as the North Atlantic Council, this body first emphasized the military role of NATO. It contended that its defense efforts had successfully deterred Soviet aggression and helped bring about the coexistence policy of Moscow.

Welcoming this policy so far as it eased tension, the council remarked that it might now be hoped that the principles of the United Nations Charter might regulate East-West relations.

But the council, while favoring new moves in the non-military field, insisted that the alliance must give priority to maintaining its unity and strength since Soviet military power continued to increase.

The statement was somewhat vague about the kinds of action NATO should take in non-military spheres. But it defined the council as an instrument of unity and agreed that it should make periodic examinations "of the political aspects of economic problems." This meant chiefly economic aid to underdeveloped countries, which is more political than economic in motive.

The council then instructed its permanent representatives in Paris to consider the proposal of French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau for channeling aid through an international agency responsible to the United Nations.

Revised Policy Pushed.

The formal statement was a distillation of the views of the ministers who in varying degrees believed that East-West relations had changed or were about to change and that a revised Western policy was necessary.

At some moments of a long speech yesterday Secretary of State Dulles seemed almost optimistic in speaking of liberalization of the Soviet Union from within, although he was doubtful of the durability of this trend. Pineau went further in saying a better atmosphere had "attenuated" the urgency of security problems.

Perhaps the basic division was between those who assumed, as Dulles seemed to do, that the cold war must go on until the Soviet Union became a free country, and those who shared Pineau's desire to end the cold war or at least to avoid an economic cold war by bringing Soviet and Western aid under one authority.

For the Western foreign ministers this entailed an "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy, to use the term Dulles applied to a process to which he once suggested United States policy would be subjected.

They spent much time trying to size up Soviet trends, which at previous meetings of the council were invariably defined without effort as being menacing for the West.

The final communique set forth the principles of a modernized NATO geared to ease world tension while at the same time remaining militarily strong.

"The reasons which gave rise to the Atlantic alliance have not . . . disappeared," the communique said. "No progress has been made toward solving certain vital European problems including the reunification of Germany in freedom, which have to be solved on a basis which would satisfy the legitimate security needs of all.

"The Western powers cannot

GENEVA PARLEY HURT ANTI-RED EFFORTS, SAYS HOUSE GROUP

It Helped Promote Dangerous 'Neutralism' and Distrust of U.S. in Middle East and Southeast Asia.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, May 5—A bipartisan House Foreign Affairs subcommittee charged today that the United States had "seriously weakened" all anti-Communist efforts in the Middle East and Southeast Asia by taking part in last summer's Summit conference at Geneva.

The group of three Democrats and three Republicans said President Eisenhower's attendance at the meeting, in which Russian leaders also participated, promoted a dangerous "neutralism" and a distrust of the United States in those areas.

There was a feeling in many lands, the Congressmen added, that it was "senseless" for them to resist Communism if the West is going to accept the Communists into "respectable society as at Geneva."

Visited 26 Countries.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Zablocki (Dem.), Wisconsin, issued a 213-page report on a two-month tour last fall that took the study mission through 26 countries from Greece to Japan. The report was unanimous.

The congressmen acknowledged they found "imposing economic progress" in a number of countries, since a similar study was made two years ago. They were sharply critical of the failure of the United States and the free world to establish "clear and firm" policy in the winning of friends abroad.

"So long as this uncertainty and the resulting irresolution exist," the report stated, "Asian leaders cannot be expected to stand up against Communist China."

Meanwhile, the report noted, the Communists were "determined and concerted for the mastery of the world," and the new Soviet drive to give economic aid to strategic areas was proving to have "many attractions" for people who in the past had received many billions of aid from the United States.

The congressmen urged a thorough restudy of United States policy with particular attention to divorcing this country from any association with European colonialism.

Viewed As an About Face.

Referring to the Geneva conference as a "disrupting factor" in the world situation, the report said:

"In this tense and critical period, the efforts of the United States to aid the legitimate ambitions of the peoples of the Middle East and Southeast Asia were seriously weakened by the holding of the first Geneva conference.

"The nations of these regions were 'deeply concerned about what appeared to them to be an about-face in the attitude of the Western powers toward Soviet Russia. They were shaken by the apparent readiness of American leaders not merely to accept 'peaceful coexistence,' but to strive for friendly intercourse with the Communists.

"The 'sweetness and light' campaign, reflected in friendly pronouncements by Americans, in the exchanges of visitors between the United States and the Soviet Union, in the relaxation of our barriers to trade with Communist countries, and in other ways, tended to weaken the anti-Communist resolve of the peoples of the Middle East, Southeast Asia, and of the Far East."

Growth of Neutralism.

Discussing the spread of neutralism, the report said:

"The combined effect of the first Geneva conference, and of the change in Communist tactics, has resulted in the growth of neutralism in these regions. The people in many of the countries visited by the study mission were of the opinion that the United States was asking them to be more firm, more unbending in their anti-Communist stand than the American nation itself was willing to be."

The report said the mission "must reluctantly report that it

Delay on Grand-Market Bridge Leads to Shift in Contract Policy

Future Agreements to Be on Calendar Basis—Winter Work Would Have Increased Costs.

The grade separation at Grand boulevard and Market street, now scheduled for completion about Aug. 1, could have been finished four months sooner had work continued through the winter, but costs would have jumped, the State Highway Department explained to the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

This experience, however, has led the highway department to change its policy in contracting for expressway construction.

J. E. Latta Construction Co. is building an 88-foot concrete girder bridge to carry Grand over Market. Its $593,657 contract with the highway department calls for completion within 200 working days, an arrangement under which days when the weather is bad and holidays are not counted.

At the direction of the highway department, the contractor suspended operations from last November to April. The explanation given was that it takes at least six days for concrete to attain required strength, and pouring concrete durjng the winter would require heating to insure a temperature above 35 degrees. This would have added more than $100,000 to construction costs, it is believed.

When work on the project began in December 1954, it was expected that the grade separation would be completed in about a year. But unforeseen difficulties were encountered.

At least two months were lost in construction of a Theresa avenue detour for eastbound traffic on Market. The subbase proved to be muddy in winter, and after efforts to stabilize it with stone proved unsuccessful, concrete paving was used instead of asphalt.

The contract gives the construction firm so much time that, despite all the delay, completion by August will be within the allotted time limit.

The highway department now believes that it has made a mistake in adhering to the elastic arrangement in contracts of this type. In the hope that setting a target date will speed work, it is switching from the working day to a calendar basis in letting contracts for other expressway projects here.

The Grand-Market underpass will be a unit in the Daniel Boone Expressway. Another unit, the Market street cut-off extending from Vandeventer avenue to Tower Grove avenue, is being built under a calendar contract. Completion of the two units is expected to end congestion at the eastern terminus of the Express Highway.

YORKTOWN BUNKER WHERE SURRENDER WAS SIGNED FOUND

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Discovery of the remains of historic "redoubt No. 10" on Yorktown battlefield was announced today. It was in this bunker that George Washington received and signed the articles of the surrender of Cornwallis.

The National Park Service its Revolutionary War appearance.

Service officials said they hope to have the work completed by early 1957 in time for next year's Jamestown-Williamsburg-Yorktown celebration in Virginia.

Director Conrad L. Wirth of the service said the discovery of the long-lost redoubt was "one of the most significant historical finds in many years."

Redoubt No. 10, a key outer said it would start work immediately to restore the bunker to defense of the British line, was stormed and captured at bayonet point on the night of Oct. 14, 1781. The attack was made by 400 Americans drawn from Lafayette's light infantry and commanded by Lt. Col. Alexander Hamilton, who went on to greater fame as the new nation's Secretary of the Treasury.

Capture of this bunker and its companion strongpoint, redoubt No. 9, proved to be a turning point in the battle. Cornwallis realized his position had become hopeless and five days later surrendered.

TIME NEAR FOR ARRIVAL OF THE 17-YEAR CICADA

Improperly Called Locusts, Dense Swarms of Insects May Invade Midwest.

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—This is the year of the 17-year cicada—locust to you. The Chicago Natural History Museum said today some midwest and eastern areas are in the region where these insects, "commonly but improperly called 17-year locusts," may be expected to swarm most densely in late May and early June.

The insects always make their appearance on schedule, usually in enormous numbers. They make a lot of noise, cause a little damage, and then die. During this period of a few weeks they will have laid their eggs for the next emergence 17 years hence.

The museum said the insects may be expected in Illinois as far south as central Illinois, in eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin, a small area in northern Indiana and southern Michigan, and in scattered areas in a few eastern states.

U.S. OFFICIALS TO BE CALLED IN CONTRACT PROBE

Their Bank Records Checked in Hunt for Graft in Making of Uniforms.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Senate Investigations subcommittee disclosed today it is exploring the bank records of federal officials reported to have done favors for Government contractors.

Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, told reporters the officials would be called to testify when the subcommittee resumes next week its public hearings in a search for evidence of graft in contracts for the manufacture of Army uniforms. He declined to name any of the officials in advance of the hearings, tentatively scheduled for Wednesday.

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel, said the hearings would switch then to a scrutiny of "how certain contractors were treated differently than others" and to demand an explanation from the procurement officers who handled those contracts.

The subcommittee, in the hearings which started April 10, has heard some testimony that favored contractors were allowed to make profitable deviations from specifications in contracts.

Three major contractors, Joseph (Joey) Abrams of Brooklyn, and Samuel and Herman Kravitz, father and son, of Atlantic City, N. J., have invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to tell whether they bribed any Government officials. Witnesses have said all three were granted deviations which rival bidders were not aware would be permitted.

Kennedy announced Thursday, in the midst of the hearing, that the subcommittee also is digging into evidence that gangsters have bought partnerships in some garment companies which got profitable Government contracts.

One of them, he said, is Marco Reginelli, whom he termed "the top hoodlum in the New Jersey-Philadelphia area" but who, he said, is too ill to be called as a witness. He said others would be questioned on this score.

POLITICIANS GO ALL OUT FOR 'MUST' GROUP OF 8 CANDIDATES

Unions Reported Pouring Money Into Campaign to Assure Control of Freeholders by Political Interests.

Most Democratic and Republican ward leaders, in an effort to defeat the Citizens Charter Committee slate of freeholder candidates in next Tuesday's special election, are uniting their forces in an attempt to elect a "must" group of eight opposition candidates.

Through the election of these eight "friendly" candidates, the politicians hope to control the 13-member board of freeholders and block any attempt, in the drafting of a new city charter, to eliminate unnecessary city elective offices and political patronage.

Aided by Union Money.

In their fight to elect their "must" list of candidates, politicians are being aided by funds contributed for this purpose by politically-active labor leaders, the Post-Dispatch learned yesterday.

The money reportedly is being passed out through key Democratic and Republican politicians to ward leaders who have agreed to back the opposition slate.

Meanwhile, the citizens committee intensified its campaign to elect its "independent" slate of 13 freeholder candidates, who are not pledged or committed to support any specific charter reform proposal. Candidates indorsed by the citizens committee and supported by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker are:

C. B. Broussard.
Frederick E. Busse
John F. X. Callanan
Major B. Einstein
David M. Grant
Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella
Mel H. Krah
John J. Nally
Henry B. Pflager
Mrs. Conrad Sommer
George L. Stemmler
William A. Webb
Frank L. G. Weiss

The basic slate supported by the politicians is the one sponsored by labor's Committee on Political Education. Four of the candidates on this slate also are indorsed by the citizens' group. They are Grant, Krah, Nally and Webb.

The other nine candidates on the politicians—COPE slate include five Democrats whom the Democratic politicians are especially anxious to have on the charter revision board. Also on this slate are three Republican women who have the general backing of G.O.P. ward organizations, and another candidate who says he is an independent politically.

The Committee on Political Education is the newly-formed labor political action organization, which eventually will represent all of the old AFL and CIO unions under the national merger of the two national labor groups.

CIO Still Independent.

Locally, however, COPE now represents only the old AFL unions. The CIO's Political Action Committee in St. Louis is continuing to act independently at present. The CIO-PAC announced it is not backing any slate in the freeholder election, but that it would distribute information on all candidates and urge its members to decide for themselves whom they should support.

The COPE slate does not actually have the united backing of all unions for another reason. Some labor leaders have objected to several of the COPE candidates, contending that their selection was influenced in advance by Democratic politicians.

The five Democratic candidates on the politicians COPE slate, all of whom have backgrounds of participation in Democratic politics, are: Hugo P. Albrecht, James S. Corcoran, Philip M. Sestric, Robert Grant Walsh and John H. Naber.

Supported by Dwyer.

Albrecht is former Democratic committeeman of the Thirteenth Ward. Corcoran, a former Magistrate, is a brother of Mrs. Charlotte Corcoran Lee, Democratic committeeman of the Fourth Ward. The committeeman of this ward is City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, who has announced that his ward organization will back Corcoran and the other 12 candidates on the COPE slate.

Sestric, a former assistant attorney general of Missouri, is

Fountain Gets Tight on Its Own Red Wine at Coming Out Party

LONDON, May 5 (AP)—This is a story of a fountain that got tight on its own red wine.

"We wanted something original," said socialite Wilfrid Thorowgood, who threw a coming out party for his daughter Christine," so we set up a silver fountain that gave out jets of wine.

"The trouble was—fountains are accustomed to water."

The party carried into the early hours of this morning at the Monkey Club.

At the outset the fountain that sprayed wine was the hit of the evening. Then something went wrong.

Wine cascaded in all directions, soaking walls, tablecloths, frocks and the carpet.

"It was simply a case of a fountain getting tight," said Thorowgood. "One of the moving gears tightened up and bang—there came the deluge of wine."

KOREA MOB RIOTS NEAR RHEE HOME AFTER RIVAL FOR PRESIDENCY DIES

Mourners for Shinicky Try to Storm Mansion but Are Rebuffed — Five Reported Injured.

SEOUL, May 5 (UP)—The death of President Syngman Rhee's major political opponent today touched off attempts by rioting mobs to storm the presidential mansion.

Police and army troops fired on the rioters and drove them away from Rhee's home.

Seoul newspapers said five Koreans were wounded. One report said one Korean was killed. Police, however denied anyone was hurt. Thirty persons were reported arrested.

P. H. Shinicky, leader of the opposition Democratic party and Rhee's major foe in the May 15 presidential elections, died this morning of a heart attack while on a campaign tour. (The Associated Press said he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.)

An estimated 3000 persons met the special train that returned Shinicky's body from the hamlet of Iri, 110 miles south of Seoul.

The flag-draped body was carried in an ambulance from the rail station to Shinicky's home only a few hundred yards from Rhee's hillside mansion. Demonstrators escorted the ambulance through the streets of Seoul, shouting "Overthrow the dictatorship of Syngman Rhee" and other anti-Rhee slogans.

The mob attempted to break through the police cordon at the mansion and carry Shinicky's body to Rhee. A police guard of 30 manning a checkpoint some 200 yards from the mansion gate turned them back twice by firing in the air.

Most of the crowd then dispersed. But some 300 Koreans made a third attempt to break through the cordon—which had been reinforced by some 70 police and uniformed troops — under a barrage of rocks.

Newsmen who witnessed the attempt said the police and soldiers fired a volley into the advancing mob.

A short time later heavy police reinforcements, including mounted officers, swarmed into the area and rounded up all men, women and children on the streets within a mile of Rhee's mansion.

Shinicky's death left his Democratic party without a presidential candidate and no way to nominate one under Korean law before the elections.

Shinicky, a veteran revolutionist and one-time political ally of Rhee, had been regarded as the only man with a chance to upset re-election of the 81-year-old president.

Democratic leaders immediately began exploring the possibility of uniting with the Progressive party, another minority faction, in support of its presidential candidate, Cho Bong Am.

H-Bomb Test to Make History In at Least Three Respects

Device Will Be First Dropped From Plane by U. S., Explode at Greater Height Than Any Other, Be Viewed by Reporters.

By WILLIAM L. LAURENCE
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley ,off Eniwetok Atoll, Sunday, May 6—The test explosion of the hydrogen bomb scheduled to take place here before sunrise on Tuesday will make history in several respects.

It will be the first hydrogen bomb to be dropped from an airplane by the United States. It will explode at a height greater than that of any similar test explosion in history. And it will be the first hydrogen bomb to be tested in the presence of newspaper men and other representatives of news media.

The thermonuclear weapon—as the hydrogen fusion bomb is known—is an improved model developed by the Los Alamos scientific laboratory at New Mexico. It is expected to be more efficient than the earlier models tested so far. It will yield an explosive force of several megatons, namely, the equivalent of several million tons of TNT.

Indication of Heavy Fallout.

The size of its expected fallout of radioactive particles may be gauged from the fact that an area of 375,000 square miles has been delineated for monitoring by the authorities of Joint Task Force Seven. This is the group that was organized by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense to conduct the tests.

The latest hydrogen bomb, it was revealed officially here today, will be dropped from a B-52. Its target will be the center of Namu island, one of the many islands of the Bikini atoll. It will be made to explode at several thousand feet above sea level, possibly more than a mile high.

The height of the explosion has been designed to minimize the fallout to the greatest extent.

The size of the fireball in an atomic explosion depends on the power of the device tested. The greater the explosive force the larger the diameter of the fireball.

Fireball Mile in Radius.

A fireball, if it comes from a height less than the fireball's radius, would touch the ground. In doing so, it would suck upward a tremendous quantity of earth in the radioactive cloud formed during the explosion. The radioactive dust would then constitute a large part of the fallout.

The fireball of the hydrogen bomb to be tested here Tuesday is expected to have a radius of about a mile or more. Therefore, the explosion has been planned for a height greater than the radius of its expected fireball.

Furthermore, the altitude for this detonation has been chosen because the Department of Defense is interested in studying the fallout from a non-surface detonation. This was explained by Dr. William E. Ogle, acting deputy commander for scientific matters of Joint Task Force Seven.

The explosive force of a device can be measured by sampling the cloud or by wide-angle photography. Samples from the radioactive cloud following the test shot will be taken from various levels by pilotless drone planes. Cameras for determining the yield have been placed on several islands in the Bikini atoll and also in several planes.

Other studies will include checks on the effects of the blast on buildings. Measurements of the characteristics of light from the bomb, and pressure of the blast wave, will be taken by various technical means.

In addition, aircraft will be used to study the effects of the detonation on their own structure.

By the Associated Press.

Provisions to Measure Blast.

Because this is a precise test of explosion as well as the mere ordnance behavior of the bomb, detailed arrangements are made for "instrumenting" the detonation. The bomb, falling clear of the bay, will set off a sequence timer on an island of the Bikini atoll group.

That, in turn, will put into operation an array of cameras, pressure measurement instruments and other technical information gadgets to record the explosion.

Experts say the bomb is designed to explode regardless of whether the elaborate ground and air instrumentation operates. Once the weapon is clear of the bomb bay, no repeat electronic signal from the ground or plane can stop the detonation.

Besides an air crew of five men aboard the big bomber there will be an "extra" man, one official disclosed in answer to a question. This appeared to indicate the extra man would be an AEC weapons expert from the Los Alamos laboratory who will "arm" the bomb at the last minute before the drop takes place.

M'AULIFFE HAILS WAY INTEGRATION WORKS IN ARMY

NEW YORK, May 5 (UP) — Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, commander of the United States Army in Europe, said today he did not agree with Gen. Mark Clark's stand against integration in the Army.

McAuliffe said, "integration has worked very well and the military problem is to make use of the manpower available."

"Integration is not a real problem," McAuliffe said at a press conference. "It is accepted and no one questions it."

The four-star general, who won fame when he said "nuts" to a German surrender demand at Bastogne during World War II, returned to the United States today to retire from the Army on May 31.

Clark, former Italian and Korean theater commander and now commandant at the Citadel Military College in South Carolina, touched off a controversy when he said he was against the Army decision in 1951 to integrate the forces. Clark said he opposed the policy in 1951 and "still was" against it.

COLLISION SETS SHIP AFIRE

PORTSMOUTH, England, May 5 (AP)—A Norwegian tanker erupted in a mass of flames today after a collision with a Liberian steamship in the fog-shrouded English channel.

A cabin boy was trapped aboard the 9074-ton Erling Borthen and burned to death. The other 37 members of the tanker's crew got into a lifeboat and were picked up by rescue vessels. Six seamen of the Liberian ship, the 7179-ton Santa Rosa, suffered serious burns.

LAKEWOOD, Calif., May 5 (AP) — Prince, the 6-year-old collie of David Martinez, limped home yesterday, walked into the living room and took his favorite spot by the window. There he lay down, rolled over and went to sleep. It was the first time Prince had made an appearance at the Martinez home since he disappeared Jan. 1, 1954. A veterinarian said Prince appeared to have walked "hundreds of miles," but was in good condition otherwise.

TRIAL OF MARINE IN DEATH MARCH SET FOR MAY 14

Court-Martial Ordered to Convene Then — Actual Hearing May Be Delayed.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —The Navy today ordered a court-martial to convene May 14 or soon thereafter to try Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon for the disciplinary march drownings of six Marine recruits at Parris Island, S.C.

A Marine spokesman at Parris Island confirmed this after it was reported by the Washington Evening Star.

Charges against McKeon include manslaughter, which carries a maximum penalty on conviction of 10 years in prison.

The Marines, in a report to Congress, charged that McKeon, a drill instructor at the South Carolina base, led the recruits to their deaths April 8 while under the influence of vodka.

Capt. Ralph C. Wood, Parris Island information officer, said Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas ordered that a court-martial be convened at Parris Island on May 14 "or as soon thereafter as practicable."

Wood said his "best guess" was that the court would convene during the last week in May after preparing for the case and calling witnesses.

Charges Specified.

In setting the date for the court-martial and naming 10 officers to the board, Thomas specified the charges against McKeon.

The specifications forwarded to the sergeant were described as slightly different from those recommended by an inquiry board which looked into the incident shortly after it occurred April 8. The board's findings were the equivalent in military law to a grand jury indictment.

In addition to manslaughter, the other charges include:

1. Violation of a general order prohibiting drinking alcoholic beverages in a barracks building.

2. Oppression of recruits by leading them into Ribbon creek.

3. Drinking intoxicating liquor while on duty and in the presence of a recruit.

Secretary Thomas did not make public the names of the 10 officers who will serve on the court-martial. They were withheld so no one may talk with them in advance and possibly interfere with a fair trial.

Enlisted Men May Be Added.

McKeon is entitled to ask that a third of the members of the board be enlisted men. If he so requests, these will be added.

Capt. Irving N. Klein, the third naval district legal officer in New York, will be the law officer of the court. This is a position which corresponds to a judge in civil court.

Since Thomas did not specify that the court-martial be closed, under the uniform code of military justice, it automatically will be open to the public unless McKeon asks for closed proceedings. His reasons for such a request would have to be presented to the court for a decision by that body.

Thomas also offered to furnish an officer to act as legal counsel for McKeon. It has been indicated he also will employ civilian attorneys, which he is entitled to do.

Challenge By Counsel.

It was necessary for the Navy Secretary to convene the court because civilian counsel for the sergeant had challenged the qualifications of Maj. Gen. Joseph C. Burger, Parris Island commandant, or Gen. Randolph Mc C. Pate, marine commandant, to take the action. Pate has ordered Burger transferred to command of Camp Lejeune, N.C., as a result of the drownings.

In the aftermath of the tragedy and the storm of criticism that accompanied it, the Marine Corps took disciplinary action against two other sergeants and some officers, and shook up its whole boot training program.

The challenge of Pate and Burger was based on assertions that both officers had disqualified themselves by issuing statements saying that McKeon was guilty soon after the accident occurred.

Defense counsel may request postponement of the start of the court-martial. Should that occur, under Thomas's order, it would start as soon after May 14 "as possible."

Reuther Urges Union-Company Talks on 'Alarming' Lay-offs

Invites Auto, Farm Equipment Executives to Confer on Drop in Jobs—Fears It Will Increase.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

DETROIT, May 5—Walter P. Reuther said today that unemployment in the automobile and farm equipment industries had reached "alarming" proportions.

The president of the United Automobile Workers urged top officials of the two industries to join with the union in convening joint labor-management conferences to find a solution to the many layoffs in recent months.

The industry built about 116,000 cars this week, the lowest level of the year so far and about 8 per cent below last week's total.

Reuther said he had no hope for the usual seasonal pick-up common to both the automobile and the farm implement industries at this time of year. On the contrary, he said, indications point to a worsening of the situation.

The union proposal was forwarded to the companies at the direction of the union's international executive board, which held its quarterly meeting here this week. There was no immediate comment from the companies.

Would Invite Mayors.

The letter also proposed that the mayors of cities which depend primarily on the two industries for employment opportunities be invited to attend the conferences.

Reuther said union surveys showed that 141,600 workers have been laid off in the auto industry on a nation-wide basis. These include, he said, 60,000 at General Motors plants, 18,000 at Ford, 46,600 at Chrysler, 9200 at American Motors and 7800 at Studebaker-Packard.

The Bureau of Employment-Security of the United States Labor Department estimated yesterday that 137,000 automobile workers had been laid off and not recalled as of the week of April 28. Total employment in the industry is about 900,000.

Michigan Hit Hardest.

The area where layoffs have been heaviest, the Labor Department said, is in Michigan. Reuther quoted figures from the Michigan Employment Security Commission showing over-all unemployment in Detroit at 125,000 in mid-April and in the entire state at 190,000.

Reuther did not cite figures on layoffs in the farm equipment industry but he quoted government statistics showing a decline in employment in that field of 35,900 since 1951.

The union proposed the following agenda for the proposed automotive conference: Past and present production schedules and their impact on employment; current auto inventory; future production schedules; the timing of new model introductions and future policies affecting production and employment; automation and its impact, and decentralization plans and the location of new plants.

A similar agenda was proposed for the agricultural implement conference.

SPACE SCIENTISTS WITH 20 USEFUL YEARS WANTED

LONDON, May 5 (UP) — A forward looking British aircraft firm advertised today for space scientists and engineers "with upwards of 20 years of useful life ahead."

The advertisement, appearing in a British scientific journal, was believed to be the first genuine one of its kind.

The name of the firm was kept secret. But the project was believed to have government backing and involve production of manned space ships.

Among the "space travel" experts wanted were technicians familiar with "pressure cabin control equipment."

The ad also sought engineers experienced in liquid fuel rocket motors and aircraft structure.

JOHNSON LEADS SHIVERS IN FIGHT FOR DELEGATES

Winner Will Control Texas Delegation to Democratic National Convention.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 5 (UP)—Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson apparently was succeeding tonight in ousting Gov. Allan Shivers as leader of the Democratic party in Texas.

Johnson and Shivers, who went Republican in 1952, were opposing candidates in more than 5000 Democratic precinct conventions for chairmanship of the Texas delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Returns from a cross-section of the state's 254 counties, including Bexar (San Antonio) and Harris (Houston), the state's two largest, showed that Johnson won control in 57 counties with 676 votes at the Democratic state convention.

Shivers had won in about nine counties with 63 votes. It will take 951 delegates to control the state convention May 22.

Returns were not complete yet from such cities as Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, Amarillo or Wichita Falls, but the trend was such that it appeared Johnson was sure of being elected chairman of the 56-man Texas delegation to the national convention.

With Johnson leading the delegation, there will be no chance that it will jump the fence into the Republican party as it did in 1952.

NEVADA DELEGATES FAVOR SYMINGTON, POLL SHOWS

LOVELOCK, Nev., May 5 (AP)—Even though he has not said he wants the presidential nomination, Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri made most of the headway at Nevada's state Democratic convention today.

Party members elected 28 delegates to cast the state's 14 votes in the national nomination convention at Chicago next August.

An Associated Press poll showed Symington would get six of Nevada's votes if the national gathering were held now. Delegates representing only 3½ votes favor Adlai Stevenson at the moment.

One-half vote each was recorded for Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. Delegates representing 3½ votes were either undecided or absent.

SAYS EISENHOWER AND BOOM MEAN VICTORY FOR G.O.P.

BEDFORD, Pa., May 5 (AP) —Kenneth Kramer, managing editor of Business Week, said tonight "economic history suggests that the Republicans should win without difficulty in 1956 if economic conditions stay good and if Eisenhower runs."

"Otherwise," Kramer said, "there is considerable likelihood that the Republicans will lose."

Kramer made the remarks in a speech at the concluding session of the three-day 260th district conference of Rotary International.

"In the past 37 years," Kramer said, "it has generally taken a serious economic decline in presidential election years to oust the party in power."

He added: "Certainly, today it is difficult to see how economic conditions can become bad between now and November. For, today we have in the United States the greatest and most widely distributed prosperity ever bestowed upon the people of any nation any time, anywhere."

GREEK CYPRIOTS TO HEAR MESSAGE FROM MAKARIOS

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

NICOSIA, Cyprus, May 5—A message from exiled Greek Orthodox Archbishop Makarios will be read in all Cypriot Orthodox churches tomorrow. The church, which adheres to the Gregorian calendar, will be celebrating its Easter.

The message, which presumably was scrutinized by British security authorities before publication, then will be posted on church doors.

Archbishop Makarios, political and spiritual leader of the Greek Cypriot community, was deported to the Seychelles islands in the Indian ocean on March 9. He was accused by the British of association with the terrorist movement in Cyprus.

His 500-word message takes the form of a conventional Easter message, but it contains allusions to the archbishop's predicament and his compulsory absence from his flock during the holy season.

Holy week in Cyprus was marked by comparative peace. Only a few incidents of violence were reported.

GAINZA PAZ TELLS RUSSIANS DICTATORS FEAR FREE PRESS

NEW YORK, May 5 (UP)—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz told the Soviet peoples in a broadcast beamed behind the Iron Curtain today that dictators live in mortal fear of the truth disseminated by a free press.

The publisher of La Prensa, Argentina's largest newspaper, based his comments on his own experiences under the Peron dictatorship, which confiscated his newspaper.

Gainza Paz gave his views on freedom of the press on "Soviet Press Day" under auspices of Radio Liberation, the anti-Communist exiles' station in Germany.

U.S. PLANES IN GERMANY CHASE BACK CZECH MIGS

BONN, May 5 (UP)—A group of Communist Czechoslovak MIG jet fighters flew over the border in West Germany yesterday but were chased back by United States Air Force planes, a West German government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said between two and six MIGs crossed the border at an altitude of about 30,000 feet and penetrated German territory to a depth of 3½ miles. He said no protests were planned since the border violation was considered accidental.

4-CENT TAX RATE CALLED TOO LOW TO RUN COUNTY HEALTH DEPT.

Commissioner Pleads for Penny Increase — Warns Funds for 1956 Are Insufficient to Carry Personnel.

The four-cent tax rate set in 1955 to finance operation of the St. Louis county Health Department was too low, Health Commissioner Herbert R. Domke asserted yesterday, declaring that the rate should be raised to five cents this year.

He warned that the 1956 appropriation of $657,986 for the health department is insufficient to carry all the personnel, and some workers may have to be laid off if more funds are not provided.

A study made by the Post-Dispatch shows that the fund for maintenance of the county health center dropped $49,641 and the fund for hospital maintenance was reduced by $5569 as a result of the tax rate cut which accompanied the upward revision of real estate assessments last year.

Tax Rate Cut 35 Cents.

The over-all county tax rate for 1955 was reduced from $1.01 per $100 of assessed valuation to 66 cents after real estate assessments were revised in compliance with the State Tax Commission order to bring assessments up to 30 per cent of market value.

The 1955 tax rate for the health center fund, which had been set at seven cents before the equalization program went into effect, was cut to four cents. As a result, current tax collections for this fund dropped to $355,437 last year.

The tax for the hospital fund was reduced from 20 cents to 13 cents and brought in $1,151,705. Hospital Commissioner Curtis H. Lohr viewed the minor decline here as no cause for concern.

For three other major funds, the tax revision brought increases in revenue. The general revenue fund received $11,963 more from current tax collections in 1955 than in 1954; the special road and bridge fund got $96,069 more; the park maintenance fund, $3488 more.

Revenue estimates made before the 1955 tax revision indicated that tax collections would amount to $5,664,361. Actually, the total collected was $5,840,221. However, the estimates used for the 1955 budget made no allowance for increases in valuation resulting from normal growth in the county. When allowance is made for this, the excess of $175,860 is wiped out.

Final Assessments.

The final assessments on county real estate for 1955 amounted to $756,331,410, according to a report by County Auditor Clarence H. Hackmann. In its equalization program the State Tax Commission had ordered that assessments be increased to a total of $769,891,919.

The real estate assessments made by the county at first totaled $777,728,990, nearly $8,000,000 more than the figure set by the state commission, but reductions obtained through appeals and reclassification of acreage property urban in character cut the amount by more than $21,000,000.

ST. LOUIS AREA RANKS NO. 7 IN 1955 WORK STOPPAGES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5—The St. Louis-East St. Louis metropolitan area ranked seventh among large cities in the country in the number of work stoppages due to labor-management disputes in 1955, the Department of Labor said today.

Ninety-six work stoppages involving 41,900 workers were recorded by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the year. Man-days lost due to stoppages totaled 433,000. The report covered all stoppages involving six or more workers and lasting one day or a full shift or longer.

Kansas City had 26 work stoppages involving 21,600 persons and resulting in 234,000 man-days of idleness. The total for Missouri was 111 stoppages involving 64,300 workers and 871,000 man-days of idleness. New York City and northeastern New Jersey led the nation in number of stoppages with 565.

'Finder' and 1200 Young Fans Spend Day in Tom Sawyer's Boyhood Haunts

Followers of "The Finder" pause at Grand avenue, largest passageway in the Mark Twain cave at Hannibal, Mo., as guide tells them how Twain himself played there as a boy. The cave figured prominently in the stories about Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn.

They Go to Hannibal by Train and Roam 'Delectable Land' of Mark Twain's Hero.

By CARL R. BALDWIN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Twelve hundred young followers of "The Finder" of television station KETC paid a day-long visit to the boyhood country of Mark Twain yesterday under conditions as idyllic as those described by the master word-painter in his "Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

"Saturday morning was come, and all the summer world was bright and fresh, and brimming with life," wrote Twain. "There was a song in every heart; and if the heart was young the music issued at the lips."

And so it was yesterday as Steve Bloomer, a modern and benign Pied Piper featured on Channel 9's most popular program, met his enthusiastic fans at Union Station and began the journey to Hannibal, Mo., 120 miles to the north.

Each fan was presented with a Tom Sawyer-type straw hat, the kind with the raveled straw brim, as he entered the gate leading to a special Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train, brought here from the Chicago-Aurora commuter run especially for the occasion.

Divided into Two Groups.

The trip to Hannibal was treat enough for the youngsters but that was only the beginning of an eventful day. The large group was divided into two sections upon reaching the scenes of Twain's stories about boyhood.

One group disembarked at Injun Joe junction, south of town, and immediately hiked to the Mark Twain cave, where Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn and Becky Thatcher played and had amazing adventures.

Guides led the sightseers through narrow, electrically illuminated passageways, safely past the labyrinth of blind alleys where Tom and Becky wandered, hopelessly lost, in total darkness; where they hid from Injun Joe, "that murderin' half-breed," and where they found the robber gold.

The other group of visitors went into Hannibal and were led to the top of Cardiff Hill, that "delectable land, dreamy, reposeful and inviting," where Tom and Joe Harper fought with lath swords, acting out the parts of Robin Hood and Guy of Guisborne.

Townfolk Welcome Visitors.

The people of Hannibal, who never had been faced with an invasion of 1200 youngsters before, turned out en masse to receive the visitors. A military police unit of the National Guard assisted Missouri state troopers and city police in directing traffic and rounding up stragglers.

A good show was staged for "The Finder's" crew, too, as the formal crowning of Hannibal's Tom Sawyer and Becky Thatcher of 1956 was held in front of the statue of Tom and his pal, Huck, which stands at the foot of Cardiff Hill.

Six barefooted boys and six pretty girls, wearing pre-Civil War frocks and embroidered pantalets, competed for the honor. Chris Winkler, son of the owner of the local Mark Twain Museum, and Perva Lou Smith were declared the winners. They will be awarded a trip to Hollywood next month for the opening of the "Treasure Island" section of Walt Disney's "Disneyland."

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

A modern, freckled-faced Tom Sawyer, JIMMIE KRUSE, 7 years old, whitewashes the famous fence as PATRICIA ANN DORRANCE, 9, looks on. Jimmie, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Kruse, 9421 Echo lane, and Patricia Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Dorrance, 2402 Sims, both of Overland, were members of the "The Finder's" expedition.

Adults Tire Out Early.

By noon some of the den mothers and other adult group leaders were ready to call it quits, but the young fry were just getting warmed up.

The two groups followed the Mark Twain trail, stopping at Mark Twain home on Hill street, where the author, then known as Samuel Clemens, lived until he was 18 years old. They visited the memorial museum adjacent to the house; saw the freshly whitewashed board fence, similar to that which belonged to Tom's Aunt Polly, and stopped at the Becky Thatcher house across the street.

On their way to and from the cave, the groups stopped off at Nipper Park for basket lunches and some members of the expedition found time to take short excursion rides down the Mississippi river.

They visited Turtle and Jackson islands where Tom, Huck and Joe Harper played on a raft, using the terrible countersign "Blood" as they portrayed the Black Avenger of the Spanish Main, Finn the Red-Handed and the Terror of the Seas.

Impressed by Cardiff Hill.

Cardiff Hill, standing majestically at one end of town, was still a magnetic attraction as the end of a wonderful day neared. Boys and girls shouted, "Oh, boy, look!" as they approached it. They scampered up the steep slopes to the lighthouse at the top, but their adult leaders, tired and bedraggled, just said, "Oh, no!" and stood watching, unable to follow.

By 4 p.m. everyone was back on the train (the excursion sponsors hoped) and the trip back to St. Louis began. Everyone agreed it was the most ambitious outing yet planned by "The Finder" and he has put on some good ones, including a trip to Onandago Cave, a farm and several in which his followers studied the stars.

Miss Katherine White, who supervised the expedition for the educational station, agreed the train ride was a feature of the trip almost as exciting as the places of interest in Mark Twain land.

There was a song in every young heart going to Hannibal and coming home as everybody joined in singing such old-time favorites as "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and "Groundhog." Leading the singers were "The Finder," who strummed his guitar, and a musical group of young John Burroughs School students known as the Missouri Ridge Runners.

Good Job of Keeping Order.

Harried Burlington employes had their hands full, guarding the vestibules and restraining ambitious young Huck Finns who wanted to ride with the engineer. Eighteen KETC staff members, using portable loud speakers, attempted to keep some semblance of order and prevent groups from becoming hopelessly separated. They did a pretty good job.

Those who chose the second deck seats of the gallery cars were treated to beautiful panoramic views of freshly green countryside and the majestic sweep of the river, the same river that Mark Twain wrote about, even if sleek diesel towboats have replaced his old sternwheelers.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED BY OUT-OF-CONTROL AUTO

Mrs. Mary Sisley, 221 South Beaumont avenue, was seriously injured last night when she was struck by an out-of-control automobile as she was standing with a blind man on the northeast corner of Beaumont and Walnut street. The driver fled on foot.

The driver of the automobile lost control after he struck a parked car while backing east in Walnut. The automobile shot diagonally across the intersection, knocking Mrs. Sisley down and pinning her beneath the machine. The blind man, Fred Taylor, 220 South Beaumont, suffered only minor injuries.

Police arrested the owner, Wendell Batchman, 3027 Clark avenue, who denied he was the driver but was unable to name the man who was at the wheel. Mrs. Sisley was taken to City Hospital with compound fractures of both legs. All are Negroes.

BAR OWNER HURT, 2 HELD

Joseph Monti, operator of the Savoy Bar, 2001 Marconi avenue, suffered a broken jaw yesterday in a fight with two customers who assaulted him when he remonstrated with them for annoying other patrons.

Police, called to quell the disturbance, arrested William F. Walsh, 23 years old, and Frank Parrino, 23, both of 2638 Dalton avenue. They were charged with resisting arrest and peace disturbance.

MORE ABORTION MILL PATIENTS ARE DISCOVERED

County Prosecutor's Office Finds Women Who Were Treated at Establishment.

More women who went to an abortion mill in Webster Groves for illegal operations were found yesterday by the prosecuting attorney's office in St. Louis county, the Post-Dispatch was informed.

Earlier, authorities interviewed seven to eight women, most of them young and married, who told of going to a house at 415 Tuxedo boulevard.

Officials have obtained the names of two St. Louis physicians who reportedly referred women to the abortion mill.

One physician was said to have jotted on a piece of paper the telephone number of an operator of the abortion mill. This paper, given to a young woman who went to him for advice, has been recovered by authorities.

Warrants charging abortion have been issued against Mrs. Julia Rackey, 54-year-old widow, 7932 Captain Conn drive, Affton, and Mrs. Fraulin Scown, 40, a divorcee, 404 East Big Bend boulevard, Webster Groves, who were arrested Thursday night after an extended police surveillance of the house on Tuxedo boulevard.

Pick-up Points.

Authorities were told that pregnant women wanting abortions were given instructions, after being put in contact by physicians with Mrs. Rackey and Mrs. Scown, to go to Hampton Village shopping center at Hampton avenue and Chippewa street or to the Wabash Railroad station on Delmar boulevard.

Doorways of three stores in Hampton Village were designated as pick-up points where the young women would wait until Mrs. Scown pulled up at 9 o'clock at night in a Cadillac sedan, sometimes using her own, at other times one belonging to a man friend.

Cash in Advance.

At the shopping center and the railroad station, Mrs. Scown would approach the young women and say: "Are you waiting for someone?" prosecuting officials in the county were informed. If the answer was yes, she would identify herself.

In the house on Tuxedo boulevard, the young women were given pills after being assigned beds for the night. The cost of the abortion, $125, was collected in advance, in cash, police said. During all procedures of the illegal operation, the women were blindfolded but at least one slipped her blindfold long enough to identify Mrs. Rackey, police said.

Mrs. Scown always referred to her companion as "doctor," and there was no conversation to indicate the other operator was a woman. When the abortion, performed on a kitchen table, was completed the following morning, the women would be assisted back to their beds and given a cup of coffee.

A short time later, Mrs. Scown would drive them to the Maplewood "loop" at Manchester and Yale avenues, where they would be let out of the Cadillac.

Officials told the Post-Dispatch their investigation indicates Mrs. Scown and Mrs. Rackey had been engaged in illegal operation practices for a year in an establishment in the West End in St. Louis before moving to Webster Groves.

Boy, 4, Recovering From First Heart Operation of Kind Here

Obstruction to Blood Flow Removed — Bubble Oxygenator Is Used.

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

DONALD JONES

Donald Jones, 4 years old, was recovering yesterday after St. Louis University physicians removed an obstruction to the flow of blood from his heart in a type of operation performed for the first time in the St. Louis area.

The operation was made possible by use of a machine known as a bubble oxygenator, which took over the heart's functions while a team of 12 surgeons removed the obstruction.

The boy, son of Mrs. Hazel Jones of Caruthersville, Mo., is now up and about at Firmin Desloge Hospital, where the operation was performed April 27. Physicians said he would have soon died if the congenital heart condition had not been corrected.

His heart is functioning properly and it is expected he will be able to live a normal life, instead of having restricted growth and activity as formerly.

The surgery department at the university's School of Medicine rehearsed the operation for months in the laboratory. The method used by the surgeons was to divert the flow of blood, open the heart and remove the obstruction under direct vision.

Oxygen was added to the diverted blood when it was pumped into the arteries after bypassing the heart and lungs. The heart continued beating but its chambers did not contain blood during the 15 minutes the machine took over its functions. The over-all operation lasted four hours.

Under the old method, surgeons would exercise the obstruction or cut through it while blood was still coursing through the heart, making it difficult to observe the affected area.

ATOM-POWERED TRAIN PREDICTED WITHIN 20 YEARS

There is a "distinct possibility" that within 20 years an atom-powered train will make the 290-mile run between St. Louis and Chicago in 2½ hours, the Railway Clerk magazine predicts in its current issue.

The magazine, official publication of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway Clerk, points out that experts now are working on application of atom power to railroading. Consensus of engineering opinion is that by the time railroads are replacing their present fleets of diesel locomotives the "economic aspects of atom motive power and fuels will be ready for commercial application," the magazine said.

In appearance an atomic locomotive would look something like a big diesel. It would carry a heavily shielded reactor from which atomic power would be drawn to generate a turbine. One unit would control circulation of hot water through the condenser. Power would be transmitted to six-wheel power trucks.

JOINT TALKS MONDAY IN COCA-COLA STRIKE

Session at 7:30 A.M. to Be Followed by Drivers' Meeting at 8:30.

Representatives of Teamsters Local 688, AFL-CIO, and the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. will meet tomorrow at 7:30 a.m. in the offices of the local, 1127 Pine street, to continue negotiations toward settlement of the strike of 200 drivers of the company which began last Nov. 9.

Harold J. Gibbons, secretary-treasurer of the local, said yesterday a meeting of the drivers will be held at the Italian Fraternal Building, 626 Vandeventer avenue, at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow.

He added that such meetings are held every Monday by the drivers to discuss plans for continuing the strike. Gibbons declined to comment on whether he thought the strike might be nearing a conclusion.

Union and company representatives have met three times since Thursday in "exploratory conferences," he said.

The Coca-Cola Bottling Co.'s drivers are on strike to obtain recognition of Local 688 as their bargaining agent.

TWO PERSONS KILLED WHEN TRUCK OVERTURNS IN DITCH

Two persons were killed yesterday when a truck in which they were riding overturned in a ditch beside Franklin county Route N, three miles south of Robertsville, Mo.

State Patrolmen listed the victims as Mrs. Esther G. Deaner, 30 years old, living in the 2800 block of Montgomery street, and Clifford E. Walker, 34, of Robertsville. Both were Negroes.

Patrolmen said the flatbed truck was being driven south on the gravel road by Walker when it apparently went out of control and overturned. Both occupants were trapped in the cab, which was demolished, patrolmen said. Robertsville is about 35 miles southwest of St. Louis.

NATO COUNCIL ACTS TO EXTEND FIELD OF UNITY

relax their vigilance until these problems have been solved and until a disarmament plan providing the necessary guarantees to all and an effective control system has been put into effect.

"Soviet military power continues to increase. Security remains therefore a basic problem, and the Atlantic powers must continue to give priority to the maintenance of their unity and strength."

Two Difficult Problems.

In three long sessions of the council yesterday and last night it became clear that there were two problems on which agreement was difficult—the extent of changes in the Soviet Union and the means by which to coordinate Western economic policies, notably as regards aid to underdeveloped countries.

The broad dilemma was whether to carry on a kind of economic cold war by competing with the Soviet Union in aid for backward areas, or to try to place the competition within a framework of ostensible collaboration.

The United States and Britain took the lead in proposing that NATO try to harmonize economic aid programs for underdeveloped countries. The actual delivery of aid would be left to outside agencies such as the Colombo plan for Southeast Asia, the International Monetary Fund and the Organization of European Economic Co-Operation.

There was a cool reception for Pineau's proposal for a new aid agency within the framework of the United Nations.

"The Atlantic powers already possess in the North Atlantic council an instrument of unity and a forum for consultation regarding policies of general interest," the communique said.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd seconded the motion of Secretary of State Dulles that the council name the committee of three ministers to study future non-military activities of NATO and report back. It was Lloyd who promptly gave the committee the name "the Three Wise Men."

A similar committee called the "wise men" was handed the task in 1951 of parceling out the cost of the young NATO alliance and its responsibilities. The 1951 committee consisted of Averell Harriman, the present governor of New York who was then chairman of the temporary NATO council, Jean Monnet, French economic expert, and Sir Edwin Plowden of Britain.

The United States, France, West Germany, Italy and Canada are among the nations which have readied ideas and paper proposals for study by the "wise men." But nobody knows just how far the NATO partners will be willing to go toward co-ordinating political and economic policies.

Pooling of economic aid programs and dovetailing foreign policies, it is said, would involve giving up some national independence in these fields. At the moment the foreign ministers are dubious about how much of this sort of thing home governments and public opinion will buy.

2 PARTIES JOIN FORCES AGAINST CITIZENS' SLATE

a brother of Magistrate Anton Sestric, Democratic committeeman of the Eighth Ward, an active opponent of the Mayor-citizen candidates.

Walsh, an attorney, is former president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Missouri. Naber is a business agent of Local 688, Teamsters Union, which is controlled by Harold J. Gibbons, a political foe of Mayor Tucker.

Several ward leaders told the Post-Dispatch they have received money from COPE to use in support of that slate in Tuesday's election.

Theodore J. Fischer, Republican committeeman of the First Ward, said COPE gave him money to hire precinct workers, who are expected to help bring out a vote for the politicians-COPE candidates.

$6 A Precinct.

The payment amounted to $6 a precinct, he said, and the Republican ward organization is expected to put up some of its own money too. There are 30 precincts in the First Ward, indicating a labor campaign payment of $180.

Fischer reported his ward organization will back the COPE candidates, with one exception. He said Grant would be replaced by Pflager on the ward slate. Both Grant and Pflager are supported by the citizens group. None of the politicians' "must" candidates was dropped.

Leo J. Falk, Republican committeeman of the Thirteenth Ward, who also is supporting the COPE list of candidates, said he received a check for $84 from the labor political action committee.

There were numerous reports at City Hall and in political circles that backers of the politicians-COPE slate were offering Republican leaders $200 a ward and Democratic leaders up to $500 a ward to support that slate.

However, reports indicate that a pattern of $6 a precinct is being followed as to both party organizations. The Democratic organizations in the Seventh and Fourteenth wards received this amount, the Post-Dispatch was told. It was distributed by Dwyer as he passed out credentials to watchers and challengers and was in the form of a check drawn on COPE funds.

Postcard Sample Ballots.

Tom K. Smith, chairman of the Citizens Charter Committee, announced yesterday that his group has mailed postcard sample ballots to more than 346,000 St. Louisans registered to vote in Tuesday's election, urging them to go to the polls and mark their ballots for the citizen candidates.

He asked the voters to save the red-white-blue postcards, and to take them to the polls so that they can correctly mark their ballots for the 13 citizens candidates.

He warned the voters not to be confused by last-minute attempts to distribute sample ballots under the name of a "citizens" or "people's" committees. Such sample ballots in support of the COPE slate have appeared in the Twelfth Ward under the name of the "Twelfth Ward Progressive People's Charter Committee."

Smith reported the drive for volunteer poll workers to assist the campaign for the citizens candidates has had "surprisingly good results," but that more volunteers are needed to hand out the committee's ballots on election day. Those interested were asked to telephone CEntral 1-9999.

It was reported that the Democratic politicians have been mailing sample ballots for the COPE slate to voters in the Twelfth and Twenty-fifth Wards, where the Democratic organizations are backing the citizens slate. The addressing of this mail was done by city employes in several of the patronage offices.

Election officials and party leaders differ widely in their forecasts of the expected turnout at the polls on Tuesday. Joseph P. Uxa, chief clerk of the Election Board, estimated that about 123,000 persons would vote, or more than a third of the city's 346,158 registration.

Democratic Chairman Dwyer said he thought the vote will not exceed 70,000 or 75,000, saying he did not think there was too much public interest in the freeholder election. Republican leaders also forecast a light vote.

The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. City, state and federal offices and courts will be open as usual, and most business houses will observe their regular hours. Taverns, however, will be closed until 7:30 p.m., a half hour after the polls close.

Warns of Political Control.

Political control of the provisions of the new charter would be "comparable to a bank auditing its own accounts," Mayor Tucker said in a statement last night urging support of the Citizens Committee slate.

"Political organizations no matter how sincere," the Mayor asserted, "are too close to government to determine objectively its powers, duties and limitations. It is perfectly natural for them to be prejudiced in terms of their future in public office.

"Only an uncommitted open-minded citizen can objectively and sincerely analyze the needs of modern government and how they can best be solved through a new charter. The Citizens Committee freeholder slate provides such candidates."

Candidates for offices established by the charter, Tucker continued, certainly should run on party tickets, "but the rules and regulations of the charter which control their conduct in office should not be Democratic rules or Republican rules.

"It has not been the intention of the Citizens Committee to impugn the integrity of either political party or their leaders. Ours is purely and simpy a disagreement over the role of political parties in this election of freeholders."

Mrs. LuRene C. Kaiser, committeewoman of the Twenty-third Ward, whose organization is taking no position on the freeholders' campaign, denied reports that she had discussed the election with Dwyer or with her employer, Coroner Patrick Taylor. It was reported earlier that Dwyer had asked her how Taylor was reacting to her organization's refusal to go along with the politician's slate. Her only conversation with Dwyer, she said, was on a matter of obtaining credentials for watchers and challengers at the polls in her ward next Tuesday.

Mrs. Adele Wahl, Twelfth Ward Committeewoman, repeated that she is supporting the slate of the Citizens' Charter Committee. She denied reports that the political jobs of some of her constituents had been threatened because of her stand.

Record Budget of $30,364,103, Up 11 Pct., Submitted for Schools

73 Teachers Would Be Added and Size of Classes Cut — Enrollment Will Expand.

A record budget for 1956-57 which would permit hiring 73 more teachers to take care of increased enrollments and reduce the classroom ratio of pupils to teachers has been submitted to members of the Board of Education.

The proposed budget, which board members are expected to approve in substantially its present form at the July board meeting, calls for the expenditure of $30,364,103 to operate the St. Louis public school system for the next fiscal year.

This total is 11 per cent higher than the $27,301,876 which the board voted last year.

Largest items in this increase of more than $3,000,000 are earmarked for teachers' salaries and social security benefits for all school employes.

The budget would permit hiring 39 more employes in the building department than were employed last Jan. 1. This would bring the department's strength to 1012 employes, a rise of 66 over the 946 workers listed in the 1955-56 budget.

The instruction department, under the proposed budget, would have 4020 employes, an increase of 124 over the 3896 listed in the 1955-56 budget, and 92 more than were on the payroll last Jan. 1.

In the proposed budget, $965,000 is set aside as the board's contribution to the Federal social security system for its employes, including retroactive payments from the beginning of 1955. The employes voted in March to obtain these benefits, in addition to their own retirement system.

For teachers' salaries, the proposed increase is $1,510,000. This would provide for normal increments plus a $200 blanket salary rise.

The instruction department is asking for $22,161,052 in the proposed budget, $1,655,180 more than was voted by the board last year.

Building Department Budget.

The building department is asking for $5,434,455, an increase of $428,967 over the total for 1955-56. Because expenditures of the department have exceeded the budget during the year, the new request is only $239,329 more than it is estimated will be spent this year.

A major part of the increase is in maintenance wages paid to craftsmen and laborers. Last year, the board voted $1,310,000 for maintenance wages. Subsequently, School Building Commissioner V. Harry Rhodes hired 49 additional workers in excess of the 215 listed in the approved budget.

To meet the higher payroll, Rhodes last week obtained board approval of an additional appropriation of $175,000. The proposed budget shows he expects to spend a total of $1,510,000 through the end of the current fiscal year.

Daniel L. Schlafly, a board member, has said that an additional $146,000 — from funds other than the maintenance wage fund—will have been paid to these employes by the end of this fiscal year, July 1. He charged that Rhodes is exceeding his budget for maintenance pay by more than $300,000.

For next year, Rhodes is asking for $1,534,434 for maintenance wages. This, however, does not include $123,000 which craftsmen are expected to be paid for work on bond issue projects. The increase over what was budgeted a year ago, therefore, would be $347,000.

An increase of 1700 pupils is expected next September, school officials said in a message accompanying the budget text. Total enrollment is expected to be 95,200.

The present average pupil-teacher ratio of 35.6 is scheduled to be lowered to 35, with the employment of 68 more elementary teachers. Three teachers are to be added to the program of instructing slow learning pupils in high school and two more will be hired for Harris Teachers College.

The higher budget is based on the new school tax rate of $1.30 per $100 of assessed property valuation, a 15-cent increase over the 1955-56 rate of $1.15, which was approved in a special election April 12.

Van Fleet Arrives in Seoul.

14 CRAPSHOOTERS STRIPPED OF GARB, MONEY BY ROBBERS

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP) — Fourteen crapshooters were stripped early today at their favorite pastime.

While 14 men were rolling dice in a Brooklyn club, four gunmen entered and forced them to remove all their clothes. The robbers emptied the pockets of 14 pair of trousers of about $2000.

The crapshooters, who complained to police, said the haul was large since most of the men had just been paid. The gunmen fled successfully. No one pursued them.

CONNELLY TRIAL IS SCHEDULED TO OPEN TOMORROW

Former Aid of Truman Faces Tax Scandal Charge With Caudle and Schwimmer.

Trial of Matthew J. Connelly, T. Lamar Caudle and Harry I. Schwimmer on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Government is scheduled to open tomorrow in United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen's court.

The defense has obtained a deposition from former President Harry S. Truman which it plans to use at the trial in behalf of Connelly, Truman's appointments secretary at the White House.

The indictment against the three defendants was returned by a federal grand jury here Dec. 1 after an investigation into the handling of the income tax evasion case against Irving Sach, head of Shu-Stiles Inc., a shoe brokerage firm.

After a long delay in prosecution, Sachs pleaded guilty and paid a $40,000 fine, but avoided going to prison.

Schwimmer is an attorney who represented Sachs. Caudle was head of the Justice Department's tax division when the Sach matter was under consideration.

Denied Postponement.

The defense has tried unsuccessfully, through a long series of motions and appeals, to have the trial postponed or transferred to Washington, which is closer to the defendants' homes.

Judge Hulen disposed of 28 pre-trial motions filed by defendants, including requests for transfer, continuance, severance, dismissal of the charge and suppression of the evidence. Motions asking for a bill of particulars, inspection of records and right to take depositions were granted in part.

Attorneys for the defendants went to appellate courts and the United States Supreme Court in an effort to stay proceedings.

Defense attorneys would not say if they planned any last-minute attempts to get a continuance. The trial is expected to last five to six weeks. Maximum penalty upon conviction is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The Government has indicated it will require three to four weeks to present its evidence, including testimony from 30 to 40 witnesses and introduction of hundreds of exhibits.

The one-count indictment alleged commission of 24 overt acts by the defendants and co-conspirators iln furtherance of the conspiracy charged. Named as co-conspirators but not as defendants were Ellis N. Slack, former assistant Attorney General in the tax division, Sachs and the Shu-Stiles firm.

It was charged that Connelly was paid $1650 in Januray 1952 by Schwimmer, then defense counsel for Sachs. Although there was no allegation that Caudle received cash, the indictment said that Caudle "influenced by the hope of reward and personal gain, would recommend that prosecution (of Sachs) be declined."

'Intent to Influence.'

As part of that conspiracy, Schwimmer, Sachs and Shu-Stiles, Inc., would promise, offer and give money and other things of value" to Connelly and Caudle "with intent to influence their official decisions," the indictment stated.

The defense deposition taken from Mr Truman was given Friday in a law office in the Bryant bulding in Kansas City. John H. Lashly, St. Louis attorney representing Connelly, told the Post-Dispatch he could not reveal the contents of the deposition, which the court has ordered sealed.

Wyllys S. Newcomb, special assistant to the United States Attorney General and one of the prosecutors for the trial, was on hand to represent the Government. The proceedings required about 30 minutes, indicating the deposition was not long.

Schwimmer, who formerly lived in Kansas City, is a Puerto Rico business man. He also maintains a home in New York. He was charged with perjury in an indictment returned in November after he had testified before the grand jury here.

DEFENSE FILES MOTION FOR NEW GRAHAM TRIAL

Lawyers Base Plea on 36 Alleged Court Errors in Airliner Bombing Case.

DENVER, May 5 (AP) — Defense lawyers for condemned murderer John Gilbert Graham today filed a motion for a new trial, based on 36 points of alleged trial court error.

The motion was deposited in the district court where Graham was convicted at 1:11 a.m. today of killing his mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55 years old, by placing a dynamite bomb in her suitcase just before she boarded an airliner. Forty-four persons were killed when the bomb destroyed the plane in flight last Nov. 1.

District Judge Joseph M. McDonald, who heard Graham's 17-day trial, will receive the new trial motion Monday.

'Contrary to Law.'

Charles S. Vigil, John J. Gibbons and L. Paul Weadick, court-appointed counsel for the condemned crew-cut slayer, contended in the motion that the verdict was "contrary to law and the evidence."

It asserted a statement by District Attorney Bert Keating, in which he referred to "44 murders" was "wholly prejudicial and violated the rights of the defendant," who was tried only for his mother's death.

The defense petition further said the court erred in refusing to permit Graham to be tried without a jury, in refusing to dismiss the case on the ground no crime was committed in Denver and in refusing 14 legal instructions for the jury which the defense submitted.

Vigil said if the new trial motion is denied, he intends to appeal to the Colorado Supreme Court.

Resigned to Death.

Meanwhile, Graham was pictured as resigned to death and unwilling to press for the new trial.

"Regardless of his wishes, however," said Weadick, one of his lawyers, "it is one of his legal rights and we feel it is our responsibilty to pursue every avenue n his behalf."

At Denver county jail, where Graham is being held, a source said he overheard Graham, 24, telling Gibbons:

"I don't want to appeal. I don't want a damned thing."

Graham will not be sentenced until Judge McDonald rules on the new trial motion. If the court overrules the motion, Judge McDonald will formally sentence Graham and fix an execution date at the Colorado prison in Canon City.

Refugees Wary of Offer.

VIENNA, May 5 (AP)—Polish reports acknowledge that despite intensive propaganda only 50 Polish refugees abroad went home in April. They were from West Germany, Sweden, Norway, France, Belgium and the United States.

SIX FASTING AS PROTEST AGAINST H-BOMB TESTS

MADISON, Wis., May 5 (AP) —Six Madison residents yesterday began a 48-hour fast in what they called a protest against the Eniwetok tests.

The group wired President Eisenhower protesting against the Pacific tests and told the President they would not eat for 48 hours, beginning yesterday morning, as a means of "impressing on you the seriousness of our objection to the H-bomb tests."

Mrs. Betty Boardman, who reported the fast, said five of the six are members of the Madison Friends Meeting House, generally known as Quakers.

LECTURE AT ST. LOUIS U.

Thomas P. Neill, professor of history at St. Louis University, next Saturday will give the last in a series of three public lectures sponsored annually by the university's graduate school. The talk will be at 1:10 p.m. in the university auditorium, 3642 Lindell boulevard.

His topic will be "Intellectual Life and Responsibility to Society." Purpose of the series is to stimulate interest of graduate students in university problems and to acquaint them with the principles of the institution. The previous lectures were given by the Rev. Lowrie J. Daly S.J., assistant professor of history, and the Rev. Robert J. Henle S.J., dean of the graduate school.

ROMANIA TOLD OF U.S. TERMS FOR NEGOTIATIONS

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —The United States has set a relatively stiff price on improving relations with Communist Romania, which recently requested negotiations on some economic and diplomatic problems.

In effect, the State Department has told the Red government at Bucharest that it will have to take restrictions off American diplomats and United States private citizens caught in that country when the Communists took over if it wants to solve trade and other problems.

The American price amounts to a demand for a reduction in Iron Curtain regulations. It was made known by the State Department last night.

The Romanian government sent a note on March 7 to United States Minister Robert H. Thayer at Bucharest proposing negotiations on United States claims against Romania, on recovery of Romanian assets in the United States and on developing trade relations.

WARRANT AGAINST FRIEND OF ADMITTED KILLER DENIED

The circuit attorney's office declined to issue a warrant yesterday against Guy Harold Fitzwater, 1400 block of Temple place, who was arrested with Donald Wesley Edwards last Thursday night in a murder case.

Edwards signed a statement that he shot and killed Malcolm E. Segasture, a taxi driver, in a $10 robbery. Fitzwater told of lending a jacket to Edwards, later seeing blood on the sleeve, and then burning it.

Police sought a warrant charging that Fitzwater was an accessory after the fact of murder, but Assistant Circuit Attorney Henry J. Fredericks said the evidence was insufficient.

CULTURE BECOMES RICHER WHEN IT IS SHARED, POPE SAYS

VATICAN CITY, May 5 (AP) —Pope Pius XII said today that "every man" is one's neighbor and that intellectual justice is a requisite for a fraternal world.

The Pope spoke to members of the International Committee for Unity and Universality of Culture, recently established here, whose members he received in special audience.

Answering the Biblical question, "Who is my neighbor?" the Pope said:

"The neighbor is every man, the Negro of central Africa or the Indian in the forests of the Amazon, awaiting spiritual goods more than material ones."

The Pontiff said that the gifts of civilization and culture are not lost in being spread, but enrich themselves with areas they conquer.

He said the most civilized nations at times have been wrong in their attitude toward people that came under their care.

"It is always necessary," said the Pope, "to realize that people have cultural elements of authentic value."

YOUTH WHO FLED HOSPITAL SEIZED, WEARING LEG IRONS

An 18-year-old prisoner who escaped from Homer G. Phillips Hospital just two days after undergoing an appendectomy was arrested in Kennett, Mo., 163 miles from here, still wearing leg irons, it was reported yesterday.

The youth, Raymond Pruett of Kennett, was being held here on a concealed weapons charge. He was operated on Wednesday and escaped from the hospital early Friday morning.

The chain between the leg irons had been cut but Pruett had been unable to remove the irons, Dunklin county sheriff's deputies said.

NEW PEACE MOVE LIKELY FROM U.N. CHIEF'S REPORT

Hammarskjold on Way Home With Final Document for Security Council.

ROME, May 5 (AP)—Peacemaker Dag Hammarskjold flew toward New York tonight with a report from which the United Nations Security Council may plan new moves to reconcile Arabs and Israelis.

As he walked to the plane, a reporter overheard the U.N. Secretary General say to an Italian diplomat: "We have erected new bases. It is now up to the governments to do something."

He referred to the cease-fire agreements he obtained in his month-long mission. He refused to elaborate on the remark.

Hammarskjold will turn the voluminous report of his mission over to Security Council members, who will study it before the Council meets the week of May 13.

For two days here in Rome, Hammarskjold, truce supervisor Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns and aids worked around the clock competing the report.

This is what Hammarskjold's quiet, persistent personal diplomacy achieved:

1. A fast-deteriorating situation between Arabs and Israelis which might have led to a second Palestine war was arrested.

2. Israel, on one side, and Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, separately, on the other, agreed to a cease-fire along the troubled frontiers.

3. Positive results were obtained toward again honoring the 1949 Rhodes armistice agreements, which call for U.N. truce observation missions, demilitarized zones along frontiers and well-marked frontiers.

The "positive results" Hammarskjold has said he achieved in an interim report, is a far from precise phrase. But in this better climate it could mean much as U.N. teams work with Arab and Jewish officials on the spot.

Hammarskjold's success is evidenced by more than 24 hours without a single incident anywhere on the Arab-Israel frontiers.

CITES USEFUL WORLD ROLE OF PRIVATE PHILANTHROPY

MINNEAPOLIS, May 5 (UP) —The president of the Ford Foundation said Thursday night that private philanthropy in some respects can do more good than government in critical areas of the world.

H. Rowan Gaither spoke to an employes' service dinner of Dunwoody Industrial Institute and paid tribute to the part the institute's officials and graduates have played in the Ford Foundation's work in countries such as Burma and Indonesia.

Private philanthropy can provide more effective technical assistance than the Government because it can be planned on a long-term basis, can function at a personal level, can experiment frankly and has no political strings attached, Gaither said.

Free Speech Not Too Free.

MEMPHIS, May 5 (UP) — Freedom of speech and freedom of the press were the topics of two lectures at a "civil rights school" presented by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for police officers. Reporters were barred from the meeting.

YOUTHS TAKE OVER METHODIST CONFERENCE

5500 Attend 9 Rallies—Delegates Driving Toward Adjournment Tomorrow.

By JOHN T. STEWART
Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 5 — About 5500 youths from Methodist churches all over Minnesota attended nine youth rallies this afternoon in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Tonight they assemble in the Municipal Auditorium here for a program featuring three of the best known Methodists in the country: Jackie Robinson, third baseman of the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team; Ralph Edwards, television star, and Mrs. Henry Cannon of Nashville, Tenn., known to radio and television audiences as "Minnie Pearl." All three are active in their home Methodist churches.

Delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Church, which has been in session here since April 25, had to surrender their reserved seats to youth for tonight's program. It was sponsored by the church's General Board of Education.

The General Conference was driving hard today to make possible a Monday noon adjournment. Delegates were held to an all-day business session, with a short break for lunch. Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Washington, D.C., presided. J. Ernest Wilkins, assistant United States Secretary of Labor, was elected president of the Judicial Council of the Methodist Church. He is the first Negro ever to serve on the council, the Supreme Court of his denomination.

Clarence M. Dannelly, superintendent of public schools of Montgomery, Ala., was elected vice president of the council, and the Rev. Dr. Ralph M. Houseton of Hempstead, N.Y., secretary. Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr., of St. Louis, who was elected a member of the council Thursday, was unable to attend today's organization meeting.

The action of the General Conference yesterday in granting full clergy rights to women ministers was hailed today by Bishop Edwin E. Voight of Aberdeen, S. D., as a possible solution of a major problem of the rural church. He supervises Methodist work in the two Dakotas in which there are only 12 churches that do not classify in the "town and country" category—under 10,000 population.

"With the new opportunities in the church for young women, it will be easier to recruit them for the rural ministry," Bishop Voight said.. "Then, when they marry ministers, as they probably will, we will have two fully ordained pastors instead of one. Together they can serve larger parishes of four or five churches. I could use a dozen such preacher-couples right now."

By the Associated Press.

On a subject about which Protestanism has rarely voiced an official, joint opinion—by any whole church—the general conference said today:

"We believe that planned parenthood, practiced in Christian conscience, may fulfill rather than violate the will of God."

The stand was approved, without a dissenting vote.

The conference denounced the liquor trade as a spreading blight on American society, and accused it of trying to lure American housewives and "even children" to drink.

To Delete Race Designations.

IOWA CITY, Ia., May 5 (AP) —The University of Iowa will delete race designation from all its student records, Registrar Ted McCarrel said yesterday. About 90 per cent of the Negro students at the university had signed a petition requesting a change. More than 120,000 permament records of former students will be changed.

KEFAUVER BELIEVES BUTLER IS NEUTRAL

Felt Party Chairman Earlier Had Leaned Toward Stevenson.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 5 (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, said today he thinks Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler now is "trying to stay neutral" rather than favoring Adlai E. Stevenson in the scrap for the party's presidential nomination.

Arriving in Indianapolis on a fast one-day campaign swing in advance of Indiana's primary election Tuesday, Kefauver said of Butler: "I did feel some time back that he leaned some toward Adlai E. Stevenson."

Butler is a resident of South Bend, Ind.

Kefauver predicted in an airport press conference that the Democrats will carry Indiana in November.

Kefauver said earlier in the day he thinks Stevenson is "a little ahead" in California's presidential preference primary.

He told reporters in Evansville he believes he has an even chance with Stevenson in their Florida contest.

Kefauver, who will be unopposed in Indiana's primary next Tuesday, told an Indianapolis luncheon he believes President Eisenhower should name former President Harry S. Truman a special Ambassador for Truman's forthcoming trip to Europe.

"I think it is time now that politics be forgotten once more, and the future of America be placed above petty partisan advantage," Kefauver said. "I know of no man who has the esteem abroad that Harry Truman has."

Kefauver, in his breakfast speech before 200 guests in Evansville, predicted five to eight ballots in the Democratic national convention.

He said the Republicans borrowed their soil bank program from an idea originated by the Democrats three years ago.

"This must have gotten up to Madison avenue and some of the slogan writers," he said. "They dubbed it a soil bank. And when the Republicans heard the word bank, there was a chain reaction."

ANTI-SHOPLIFTING GROUP TO ELECT AREA OFFICERS

Permanent officers will be elected at a general membership meeting of the newly-formed Association for the Prevention of Shoplifting in Greater St. Louis Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Hotel Kingsway.

The organization also will establish a program to educate employes of member retail stores in the detection of shoplifters and make other plans to combat the increasing number of store thefts.

A total of 117 stores has joined the new association and invitations have been sent to more than 800 merchants in the metropolitan area to become members.

Utilities Pushing Bill Designed To Legalize Power Combines

before the Pastore subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee centered on the controversial Section 5 of the bill.

This provision would enable electric utilities, if they were not already holding companies, to set up new merger companies for the generation and transmission of electric power without becoming holding companies subject to SEC regulation.

What Present Law Does.

Under the present law, utilities which form new "G-T" companies become holding companies within the meaning of the 1935 act.

The present law gives the SEC authority to prohibit such utility combinations if it finds that they "impair the advantages of localized management, efficient operation or the effectiveness of regulation."

In addition, the 1935 act provides a direct federal control over use of utility funds for political purposes.

Section 12 H of the act relates to political contributions by registered holding companies, their subsidiary companies and new companies formed by mergers of two or more utilities.

Such companies are prohibited from making "any contribution whatsoever in connection with the candidacy, nomination, election or appointment of any person for any office or position in the Government of the United States, a state or any political subdivision of a state, or any agency, authority or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing; or to make any contribution to or in support of any political party or any committee or agency thereof."

By exempting individual utilities from the jurisdiction of the Holding Company Act when they set up new "G-T" utilities, the Potter-Pastore bill would amend a major provision of the 1935 law out of existence.

1920 Inquiry Recalled.

A historic investigation by the Federal Trade Commission into the pyramiding holding companies which controlled most of the country's electric power production in the 1920s led to enactment of the holding company law.

Opponents of the present bill fear the same abuses could result from its approval, although in a new form. They foresee the growth of "holding companies in reverse."

Instead of the holding company structure of the 'twenties, in which huge firms controlled dozen of subsidiaries by purchase or interlocking directorates, the bill could lead to regional power combines in which individual utilities set up new companies.

Except for the fact that the Dixon - Yates combine was formed by two firms which were already holding companies, and therefore subject to SEC regulation, the new type of power company integration permitted by Section 5 would be similar to the Dixon-Yates procedure.

In hearings before the SEC, opponents of the Dixon-Yates deal relied heavily on the argument that the proposed contract would be detrimental to the public interest, a criterion which the SEC, under the Holding Company Act, is permitted to take into account in deciding whether it will approve a stock issue.

The pending bill would deprive public power advocates of this argument against utility mergers, in so far as non-holding company utilities were concerned.

Further Hearings Likely.

Additional hearings probably will be held next week on the Potter-Pastore measure. Opposition already has been registered by the American Public Power Association, the National Rural Electric Co-Operative Association and other public power groups.

In a recent speech before the Northwest Public Power Association, Alex Radin, general manager of the A.P.P.A., said: "We have seen enough of the holding company act in recent years to know that, if anything the act needs strengthening, rather than weakening.

"Moreover, there is nothing to indicate that the abuses which resulted in enactment of the Holding Company Act would not again be revived if the controls provided by this act were suddenly eliminated. Certainly a bill such as the Potter bill would open up a veritable Pandora's box."

Another opponent of the bill, Leland Olds, former chairman of the Federal Power Commission, believes the measure is specifically designed to permit four utilities in the Pacific Northwest to set up a new generation and transmission company.

Washington Water Power Co., Pacific Power & Light Co., Montana Power Co., and Portland General Electric Co. have proposed formation of the Pacific Northwest Power Co.

Olds told the Post-Dispatch the projected new utility would be "set up to take over the major integrated regional wholesale power supply function until now performed by the Bonneville Power Administration," a federal agency.

Morse Gives It a Name.

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.), Oregon, has described this proposal as "the Ebasco Valley Authority," a reference to Ebasco Service Services, Inc., the service company for the Dixon-Yates combine.

Section 5 of the Potter-Pastore bill, Olds said, "would permit a new type of giant regional private power company combinations without adequate safeguards to protect the public interest."

Olds said Section 5 "would provide that a power company shall not be considered a holding company under the Holding Company Act because of ownership or control of 10 per cent or more of the voting securities of a power company engaged only in the generation and transmission of power for wholesale supply to the owner power systems.

"Actually, this would open the way to huge regional private power consortiums in which the wholesale power supply companies would provide the bases for joint boards of directors.

"It would be a holding company set-up which might be described as Electric Bond and Share Co. in reverse, with management and engineering companies like Ebasco, wholly owned by the old holding companies, still in the driver's seat."

Exemption Under Section 5.

Section 5 of the bill would exempt any generation and transmission company, and the companies owning it, from SEC regulation regardless of whether the "G-T" utility used conventional or atomic fuel, so long as the owner utilities were not already holding companies.

Opponents see no reason why this exemption should be included in a bill advertised by its proponents as primarily designed to encourage development of low-cost atomic power. SEC chairman Armstrong has called the exemption too broad.

Backers of the measure, however, contended before the Pastore subcommittee that the bill was necessary to assure utilities and industrial firms interested in developing commercial atomic power that they would not be considered holding companies.

SEC regulation, they told the subcommittee would hamper the embryonic atomic power program because of its expensive, time-consuming aspects.

Section 4 of the bill provides that no company shall be considered to be an electric utility company, and subject to the Holding Company Act, if "its only connection with the generation, transmission or distribution of electric energy is the ownership or operation . . . of facilities for the production of heat from special nuclear material."

Testifying before the Pastore subcommittee, Walter L. Cisler, president of Detroit Edson Co., warned that private development of commercial atomic power would be seriously delayed unless the 1935 act were amended.

STATUE OF VIRGIN CROWNED AT NURSING SCHOOL FETE

Miss Peggy Dirnberger, secretary of the junior class of St. John's School of Nursing, crowned the statue of the Blessed Virgin at the annual May Day festivities on the grounds of the nurses residence, 4961 Audubon avenue, yesterday.

Miss Dirnberger is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Dirnberger, 547 South Geyer road, Kirkwood. Her guard of honor was composed of Misses Dorothy Moore, Patricia Large, Judith Lenzmeier, Nancy Jones and Joyce Thomas. The festivities, including a reception and tea following the outdoor ceremony, were sponsored by the Sodality of Our Lady at St. John's Hospital.

BAR GROUP FORMS LEGAL AID SOCIETY

For City, County Residents Unable to Pay for Legal Services.

Formation of a Legal Aid Society for St. Louis and St. Louis county was announced yesterday by T. Hartley Pollock, president of the Bar Association of St. Louis.

The society has been organized as a non-profit corporation to help improve and enlarge present legal aid facilities for persons without means to pay for legal services, Pollock said.

Directors of the society will include representatives of organized labor, industry, the United Fund, social service agencies, the Bar Associations of St. Louis and St. Louis county and the law schools of Washington and St. Louis universities.

The decision to form the society came after a year's study by the St. Louis Bar Association's legal aid committee, headed by John E. Curby, and a survey made by the National Legal Aid Association under the direction of Junius L. Allison.

The survey, sponsored by the Social Planning Council, the St. Louis department of public welfare and the Bar Association, dealt principally with the work now being done by the city's Legal Aid Bureau.

"Formation of the Legal Aid Society was deemed the next step in a long-term project to see that all people who need legal assistance are able to obtain it in this community regardless of their means," Pollack stated.

He said Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, city director of public welfare, had co-operated fully in the effort to improve existing legal aid facilities.

House Collapses, 4 Killed.

VIENNA, May 5 (AP)—Four workmen were killed and one seriously injured today in the collapse of a bomb-ruined apartment house which they were clearing away for a new building site in downtown Vienna.

PRAVDA RAPS 'POLITICAL DRIVE' IN RUSSIAN DRESS

LONDON, May 5 (UP)—The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda today marked the 44th anniversary of its founding by criticizing its fellow Russian newspapers for "drabness" and for printing "political drivel."

Pravda called for a sweeping reorganization of Russia's press "to eliminate such shortcomings." Its coments were broadcast by Radio Moscow and monitored here.

The official party newspaper demanded an end to "talmudistic writing in the clouds." It complained that some editors greatly fear "spoiling" relations and value "Philistine peace and harmony above all else."

Pravda said there were 7300 newspapers in Russia with a total daily circulation of 48,000,000.

NAVY AGAIN TO ATTEMPT TO SET NEW ROCKET MARK

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Navy will make a second try next Tuesday morning to reach a new altitude record for rockets at White Sands Proving Grounds, N. Mex.

The first attempt failed Wednesday when a new Aerobee-Hi rocket fizzled out after reaching only 18,000 feet. The objective is an altitude of 190 miles. The present record for single stage rockets is 158 miles, set by a Viking rocket in May 1954.

AEC ANSWERS PLEAS TO HALT NUCLEAR TESTS

Gives Out Carefully Prepared Statement Drafted Initially for Stassen's Use.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD U.S.S. MT. McKINLEY, Off Eniwetok, May 5—The Atomic Energy Commission today answered the suggestion of 1952 Democratic presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson and of its own commissioner Thomas E. Murray that the United States halt nuclear tests.

The answer was given by AEC commissioner Harold E. Vance in a talk to the correspondents and civil defense observers at Eniwetok for the first public observation of a thermonuclear test. Vance said that he had been authorized by the AEC to make the statement and that it had been carefully prepared.

It was prepared initially for the use of the President's special assistant on disarmament, Harold E. Stassen, to assist him to meet the popular Soviet proposal at the London disarmament conference to bar immediately all nuclear tests regardless of whether an agreement on disarmament had been reached.

Vance said: "Careful consideration of the reasons for and the effects of nuclear weapons testing leads to two conclusions: (1) That continuation of such testing by the United States is essential for maintaining our national defense and the security of the free world in the absence of a comprehensive disarmament system; (2) that harmful effects of the testing are insignificant outside the testing areas.

"Basic to the philosophy of testing all types of armaments is the conviction that a superior weapons capability in the hands of a nation dedicated to peace provides the maximum assurance that a breach of the peace will not be attempted."

Tests for Specific Needs.

Vance explained that a wide variety of nuclear weapons is required and that each must be tested to determine its suitability for specific needs. Nor, he said, can a superior weapons capability once gained be maintained without further effort.

The AEC has been greatly disturbed by the sentiment that seems to have arisen against further nuclear tests. It is receiving about 300 letters of protest daily.

The Soviet Union has on several occasions officially and unofficially protested against United States nuclear tests in the Marshall islands trust territory even when it was making thermonuclear tests of its own in Siberia.

The Marshall islanders petitioned the United Nations April 20, 1954, against nuclear tests after fallout injured the inhabitants of Rongelap. They repeated their protest when they learned that further tests were planned for this year.

The United Nations Trusteeship Council by a vote of nine to four recommended only that precautions be taken to guard against injury and that claims for damages and compensation for loss of property through evacuation be promptly settled.

A minority of one in the Atomic Energy Commission, Commissioner Murray, on April 12 before the disarmament subcommittee of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate recommended that:

(1) The size of thermonuclear bombs should be limited; (2) the numbers in the stockpile should be limited; (3) increasing effort should be made to stockpile a wide range of very small nuclear weapons and (4) that tests of multimegation (many millions of tons of TNT) nuclear weapons should be stopped.

Stevenson Statement.

On April 21 Stevenson associated himself with Murray's proposal, saying: "I believe we should give prompt and earnest consideration to stopping further tests of the hydrogen bomb as Commissioner Thomas E. Murray of the Atomic Energy Commission recently proposed."

This of course played into the hands of the Russians at the disarmament conference in London and helped the Soviet efforts to stir up agitation in Japan against the tests.

A few days later Stevenson's suggestion was demolished from two opposed sources. Soviet party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev in London announced that the Soviet Union had air-dropped a thermonuclear weapon whereas the United States was only planning to. This was an obvious demonstration of the need for more testing of United States weapons.

The fact is that longe-range guided missiles are going to be so inaccurate that only nuclear and thermonuclear warheads with their great area of destruction will enable them to hit the target.

To the military and other officials involved in the weapons testing program it is so obvious as hardly to need explanation that so long as a nation has arms and is in an arms race with a potential enemy, it must test and improve. To do otherwise would hand the enemy superiority by default. Testing armaments, in their minds, is simply a part of having armaments. It is impossible to divorce the two.

HEATED CONTEST FOR GOVERNOR IN FLORIDA PRIMARY

Democratic Fight Features Segregation Talk and Personality Clashes.

MIAMI, Fla., May 5 (AP)—A Florida governorship race heated by segregation talk and personality clashes winds up at the polls Tuesday in the first Democratic primary election.

An estimated 800,000 Democrats are expected to turn out for the election, in which the battle for Governor has completely overshadowed a senatorial contest, four other statewide races and three congressional tilts.

Republicans hold a primary the same day but no statewide offices are being contested and a turnout of about 140,000 is expected. Major attractions on the G.O.P. side are two congressional races in South Florida.

Candidates must obtain a clear majority next Tuesday in order to win in the first primary. The two top candidates battle it out in the runoff May 29 if there isn't a majority. On May 29 the presidential preferential primary will be held.

Political Newcomer.

Senator George A. Smathers is being opposed by a political newcomer, Erle L. Griffis, a MacClenny attorney, who has contended Smathers was not doing all he could to prevent integration. Smathers has done little or no campaigning and Griffis has concentrated on handshaking efforts.

The governorship contest is a six-man affair in which an incumbent Governor, 47-year-old Leroy Collins, is in the rare role of seeking re-election.

Florida's Constitution prohibits a Governor from seeking re-election, but the State Supreme Court ruled that the prohibition did not apply to a part-term Governor such as Collins. Collins was elected two years ago to serve out the remainder of the four-year term of Governor Dan McCarthy, who died in office.

This year's race had been long heralded as a struggle between Collins, Tallahassee attorney and a tireless salesman of Florida attractions, and silver-haired Fuller Warren, colorful and controversial former Governor.

Four-Cornered Fight.

It has turned into a hot four-cornered fight in which former House Speaker Farris Bryant, 41-year-old Ocala attorney, and 63-year-old Sumter L. Lowry of Tampa also have become major contenders.

Lowry, plain-spoken retired National Guard commander and insurance company head, has supplied some of the campaign's major fireworks by his biting attacks on his major opponents and on the Supreme Court.

The two other candidates, Peaslee Streets, Lake Park constable, and W. B. Price, Jacksonville used car salesman, have done comparatively little campaigning.

All of the candidates except Streets have pledged their efforts to preserve segregation, but have differed in their approach.

Streets, who concedes that he has little chance for election, has come out for integration.

Maryland Primary Interest Is in Senatorial Races.

BALTIMORE, May 5 (AP)—Marylanders will decide Monday whether to give President Eisenhower and Senator Estes Kefauver first claim on the presidential nominating votes from this political weather-vane state.

The only opposition for either is a faceless entry called "uninstructed delegation." Neither write-in voting nor crossing of party lines is allowed. Democrats will have 18 votes in their national convention, Republicans 24.

Most interest in the campaign has been focused on the senatorial primaries.

Millard E. Tydings, a veteran of 24 years in the Senate and chairman of its Armed Services Committee before he was bumped from the seat by Republican John Marshall Butler six years ago, is out to get it back.

Tydings, who tangled with Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, over a Tydings subcommittee's handling of a loyalty-in-government investigation, is one of five candidates for the Democratic nomination.

Butler, whose surprise election resulted in a special Senate investigation, is running for renomination against two political newcomers. In 1950 he was backed by Maryland elements friendly to McCarthy.

Eisenhower and Kefauver Popularity Contest.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 5 (UP)—President Eisenhower and Senator Estes Kefauver stage a popularity contest Tuesday in Indiana's presidential preference primary.

Organization politicians on both sides of the fence showed little enthusiasm for the balloting, and only Kefauver tried to drum up interest among the voters.

The President has token opposition in the Republican primary, which doubtless will commit Indiana's 32 G.O.P. national convention votes to him on the first ballot.

Kefauver is all alone in the Democratic primary. His supporters are working for a big vote of confidence in the hopes it will keep 26 Democratic votes from straying to Adlai E. Stevenson after the convention's first ballot legal obligation is fulfilled.

ALLEN DULLES SAYS REDS SEEK TO INFILTRATE

CIA Head Warns They Still Use Subversion and Contrived Civil War, However.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5 (AP) —Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said last night the Communists hope to infiltrate legislative systems of the free world, but still will use "the weapons of subversion and of contrived civil war."

In a speech at the University of Pennsylvania Law Review dinner, the CIA chief added: "It is well to recognize the danger. There is no ground for panic."

Dulles said Americans seem reluctant to heed official statements by political leaders in other countries, particularly when these statements appear bombastic or unrealistic.

But, he added, Hitler's Mein Kampf, written in 1924, was the "blueprint for the Hitlerian policy."

"Much the same can be said about the writings of Lenin and Stalin. We were too inclined to laugh off their theories of world revolution and of the inevitability of conflict between Communism and the free world."

He said Communists seek to take over "our parliamentary governments, and to use the freedom which our system of government gives to destroy all vestiges of that system.

Other Techniques.

"Of course, I do not wish to leave with you the impression that even for the immediate future the Soviet proposes to limit their subversive techniques to the single policy of infiltrating Western parliamentary systems and then taking over and destroying these systems.

"The weapons of subversion and of contrived civil war will still be used wherever they think they can get away with them. And there will be no abandonment of the use of strikes and such forceful tactics, especially through labor unions."

Dulles added, however, the Kremlin leaders have indicated what their plans are.

"It is up to the leaders of the free world," the official added, "working together as allies and friends, to help uncover and to frustrate this Communist design which otherwise could threaten to wreck the free institutions of many countries and even endanger our own."

View on Anti-Stalin Drive.

Earlier, in a television interview, Dulles attributed the current anti-Stalin campaign in Russia to two things:

"First, I think they (Soviet leaders) felt Stalin were taking risks which would involve the Soviet Union in war. Today they are not ready for war.

"Second, there are pressures within the Soviet Union that got so strong that I think they felt they had to do something to persude the people that the old terrorist campaign of the past, the old NVD terrorism, was going to be done away with. I don't say that it is going to be done away with. I think a lot of this is sham because many of the men who are carrying it out worked cheek and jowl with the terrorists for 20 to 30 years."

EISENHOWER EDGE OVER STEVENSON IN ILLINOIS IS 63,968

SPRINGFIELD, May 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower received 781,710 votes in the April 10 Illinois primary, or 63,968 more than Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson, the official vote canvass disclosed yesterday.

The voting in the preference primary was not a direct contest between the two candidates since voters were restricted to calling for either a Republican or Democratic ballot.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee drew 34,092 write-in votes on the Democratic presidential ballot and Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio got 1146 write-ins.

On the Republican side, Senator William F. Knowland of California received 33,534 votes for President and Lar Daly of Chicago obtained 8364.

The total state-wide primary vote was 1,839,577, which was higher than unofficial returns had indicated. The vote was divided 961,999 for Democrats and 877,578 for Republicans.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT BACKS EISENHOWER-NIXON TICKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., May 5— Mrs. Robert B. Petts of Warsaw and Ralph E. Davis Jr. of Boonville were elected delegates to the National Republican Convention at the Eleventh District Republican meeting today. The district indorsed President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon for renomination.

Mrs. Petts is vice chairman of the Benton County Committee and Davis is chairman of the Cooper County Committee. Alternates for convention delegates are Mrs. Claudine Stamper of Stouland and Loren W. Wells of Glasgow. Mrs. L. C. Davis of Boonville was indorsed for national committeewoman and Mrs. M. Stanley Ginn of Columbia as a delegate-at-large.

Lon Hocker of St. Louis, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, told the convention that Missouri has failed to share in the postwar prosperity largely through lack of co-ordinated planning to meeting modern conditions.

HIS SEGREGATION CASE ROLE JUST, SAYS SOBELOFF

Opposition to Judicial Appointee Based on Issue, Head of Senate Committee Concludes.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff assured senators today that, if confirmed as a federal judge, he will deal with segregation issues with "fairness, moderation and understanding."

He told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee considering his nomination to be a judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond that he thought this was shown by the nature of his argument before the Supreme Court in the school segregation cases.

His statement climaxed a five-hour subcommittee hearing—the first held on Sobeloff's nomination since it first was submitted by President Eisenhower in July of last year.

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, the subcommittee chairman, said near the conclusion of the hearing that "it is quite apparent that most, if not all, of the opposition arises" from Sobeloff's participation as solicitor general in the school segregation cases.

Opponents to Nomination.

Consideration of the nomination was deferred last year at the request of Sentaors James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, and Olin D. Johnston (Dem.), South Carolina. At today's hearing two other southern senators, Sam J. Ervin (Dem.), North Carolina and John Stennis (Dem.), added their voices to the opposition.

Stennis said in a statement that Sobeloff "advocates a judicial philosophy wholly foreign to the American constitutional concept."

All four senators were among the 101 southern members of Congress who recently issued a manifesto vowing to use all legal means to upse the Supreme Court's unanimous 1954 decision barring racial segregation in the public schools.

Arguments in the case had already been concluded when Sobeloff, a Baltimore Republican, obtained Senate confirmation as Solicitor General, but in 1955 he represented the Government in arguments before the court on how its ruling in the school case should be put into effect.

In doing so, he testified today, he steered a colrse between the extremists on both sides and urged careful and sympathetic consideration of the "human elements" involved and the granting og time for orderly compliance.

Explains His Argument.

Sobeloff said that at the time southern newspapers generally commended his argument as "theh voice of moderation."

He said the "whole thrust" of his argument was that enforcement of the court's decree be put in the hands of federal district court judges who were in the best position to determine how rapidly school integration could proceed in different areas.

He said he "certainly" had never advocated the use of force to compel compliance with the court's decision and had urged that there be "no spirit of vindictiveness or imperiousness."

Sobeloff said that, speaking for the Government, he had of course made clear that he favored bringing about compliance with the court's decision "as quickly as feasible."

But he said he thought there was "nothing in the fact" that he had argued the case for the Government that disqualified him to sit on the iCrcuit Court.

The Fourth Circuit embraces Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Maryland's Republican senators, John Marshall Butler and J. Glenn Beall, praised Sobeloff as a man of the highest character and integrity who is eminently qualified to serve on the Circuit Court. So did a number of judges, lawyers and others.

Indorsed by Bar Associations.

The hearing also brought out that Sobeloff has the indorsement of the American Bar Association, the Maryland Bar Association and other bar groups.

Judge John J. Parker, chief judge of the Fourth Circuit, sent a letter to the subcommittee indorsing Sobeloff.

O'Mahoney told reporters that it would be up to the subcommittee to decide whether any further hearings should be held. He and Senator Arthur V. Watkins (Rep.), Utah, were the only subcommittee members present. Other members of the subcommittee are Senators Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, and Herman Welker (Rep.), Idaho.

The full judiciary committee, headed by Eastland, will have to pass on the nomination before it can be taken up by the Senate itself.

$2,002,165 SUIT HERE IN DISPUTE OVER GREEK OIL

Five St. Louisans Take Action Against Martin Lerman and His New Firm.

A dispute over an oil venture in Greece led a group of five St. Louisans to file suit yesterday against American-Greek Oil Co., Inc., and its president, Martin Lerman. The plaintiffs asked damages of $2,002,165 and title to oil leases purportedly acquired by Lerman after he disassociated himself from the St. Louis group.

The suit was filed in the court of Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss at Clayton by Marvin Blum, Ben Fixman, Marvin Cherry, Richard Cutter and Erwin Fischer as minority stockholders of International Enterprises, Inc.

Firm Started in 1953.

The petition set out that International Enterprises was organized May 6, 1953, after Lerman told investors that valuable oil leases and drilling concessions could be obtained in Greece.

Lerman put up no money himself, while the others invested a total of $2165, the petition continued, but Lerman was elected president of the company and was given 102 shares of stock, a majority holding, while the plaintiffs acquired 75 shares.

The company financed a trip by Lerman to Greece in November of 1953, the plaintiffs stated, but after several months of negotiations Lerman returned with word that oil leases could not be obtained, so the project was dropped.

Lerman resigned as president of International Enterprises on Sept. 7, 1954, but never formally resigned as a director, it was set out.

Surprise for Ex-Associates.

His former associates said they were very much surprised when the Post-Dispatch last April 6 published a story announcing that Lerman was proceeding with the Greek oil venture as head of the American-Greek Oil Co., which was incorporated in Maryland.

The suit charged that Lerman breached his fiduciary relationship with International Enterprises and deprived the St. Louis group of valuable assets by misrepresenting facts and withholding information. American-Greek Oil Co. was formed "as the alter ego" of Lerman, it asserted, contending that Lerman and American-Greek Oil Co. should be declared trustees for the benefit of International Enterprises.

The court was asked to enjoin the defendants from disposing of any assets except through transfer to International Enterprises. The suit asked for $2165 in actual damages and $2,000,000 in punitive damages, and requested appointment of a referee and receiver if necessary for an accounting.

Lerman is the 25-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lerman, 7128 Tulane avenue, University City. His public relations representative, James Gribble, has reported that a New York syndicate has underwritten a $1,750,000 venture to be undertaken by American-Greek Oil Co.

New Firm's Position.

Harold Kaminsky, attorney for American-Greek Oil Co., said that allegations made against the company were untrue. The International Enterprises venture "died a death of its own making," he declared, and in negotiating for leases, American-Greek Oil "started from scratch."

After severing his connection with International Enterprises, Lerman went to Greece "on his own" in November 1954, and revived the negotiations that had fallen through for lack of additional capital, the attorney continued.

Following his return to the United States Lerman obtained the backing of another group of St. Louisans who organized American-Greek Oil in February 1955, Kaminsky said. He declined to disclose Lerman's new associates.

It was not until last September that Lerman obtained approval of an oil lease from the Greek government, the attorney declared.

Approximately $50,000 has been invested thus far in the American-Greek Oil venture, he reported, explaining that working capital is to be raised through public sale of stock.

CAN'T FIND JOBS ON OUTSIDE, 1100 KEPT IN PRISON

ALBANY, N.Y., May 5 (AP)—Wanted: Jobs for 1100 Men—so they can get out of prison.

The men have paid their prescribed debt to society, in New York state institutions. They have been approved for parole.

They are free men in name only, because the law says they must find a job before they can be released on parole. So they linger on in their cells, hoping that tomorrow might be the lucky day.

For some, the tomorrows have stretched into weeks, and months. Some have waited as long as six months, and beyond—a few up to a year.

The long wait makes them restless, tense and sometimes surly. They want out. They could be out, if only they had a job.

That's the picture painted by Charles S. Antolina, deputy state commissioner of correction. The problem is not new. What is new is that the correction department, parole division and other state agencies are about to launch a determined effort to wipe it out, or diminish it drastically.

Antolina said a program would be announced soon to cope with the question.

RUSSIA CHARGES WEST CRIPPLED ARMS PARLEY

Soviet Statement Says Such Conditions as 'Open Skies' Plan Balked Disarmament.

LONDON, May 5 (AP)—Russia charged tonight the Western powers crippled the London disarmament talks by raising such conditions as President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan.

The Western powers said Russia prevented an easing of the world's armaments burden by refusing to agree to an adequate inspection system.

A Soviet statement maintained that Mr. Eisenhower's "open skies" inspection plan had "nothing to do with the real control of disarmament" but had other aims. Those aims were not specified. The implication was that Russia felt the Western powers wanted to spy on it.

In the United States' view an aerial inspection system is the key to the whole problem. The idea is that air inspectors would spot disarmament violations or massing of men for an attack.

The Russian position was given by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in a statement distributed by the official Soviet Tass agency.

Gromyko was the Russian representative at the United Nations subcommittee disarmament talks here.

Stassen On Way Home.

Harold E. Stassen, special assistant to President Eisenhower, represented the United States at the talks, which closed yesterday. Stassen left tonight by plane to report to the President. Britain, France and Canada also participated in the discussions.

Stassen told a news conference the seven-week talks covered "four miles of the nine miles" the nations have to travel to reach disarmament. He said progress from here on would be difficult.

Stassen said the talks made headway on some issues and cleared away some misunderstandings.

Gromyko also took issue with the Western position that settling such problems as divided Germany and Korea must go right along with disarmament.

He said that to make the question of reducing armed forces "dependent for example on settlement of the German problem" meant "to evade solution of the question of a reduction of armaments and armed forces."

Gromyko described Mr. Eisenhowevr's "open skies" plan this way:

"One of the main obstacles to the achievement of . . . an agreement is the putting forward by Western powers of new conditions not put forward previously, such as the well known proposal on aerial inspection, which actually have nothing to do with real control of disarmament but have other airms."

Russian Proposal.

Gromyko noted that Russia proposed the Soviet Union, the United States and Communist China limit their armed forces to from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men with 650,000 each for Britain and France. The Western powers wanted 2,500,000 each for the United States, Russia and Communist China and 750,000 each for Britain and France.

Stassen argued that the simple reduction of men under arms was no solution, since a nation with a big arms stockpile can rearm quickly.

Arms stockpiles must be reduced and safeguards agreed upon to prevent an outbreak of nuclear war, Stassen said.

Gromyko said the Western Powers refused to adopt a new approach to disarmament but sought to keep the talks running "in a vicious circle, the same vicious circle in which we have been running already in the course of 100 years.

The Russian concluded by saying the Soviet Union "will be making efforts in order to facilitate a solution of the problem of disarmament." He expressed the hope "other powers concerned will also be striving toward this."

MAYOR COBO OF DETROIT WILL RUN FOR GOVERNOR

DETROIT, May 5 (UP)—Detroit Mayor Albert E. Cobo today told the Republican state convention he will campaign for the party's nomination for Governor.

The Republican nominee is expected to have four-time Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Democrat, as a general election opponent. Williams has not formally announced his candidacy, but is expected to do so before or during the Democratic state convention June 2.

Cobo, who in 1954 and early this year had turned aside efforts to make him a candidate, today gave an affirmative answer to the group of Republican leaders who started a "draft Cobo" campaign.

Cobo faces a stiff primary fight for the nomination against Donald S. Leonard, 1954 party nominee for Governor and former state and city police commissioner.

PROTEST OVER STUDENTS TAKING WEAPONS TO CLASS

MANILA, May 5 (AP)—The Cavite City Lawyers' League recently asked police to keep high school students from carrying guns and other weapons to class.

"The students usually use the arms either for threatening their teachers or unduly commanding the respect of their fellow students," said Homero Alberto, president of the league.

Cavite, southwest of Manila, has a reputation as a trouble spot.

EISENHOWER'S STAND 'SHOCKING' TO BUTLER

Democratic Chairman Raps President's Reaction to Chotiner Case.

MADISON, Wis., May 5 (AP) —President Eisenhower's reaction to Murray H. Chotiner's disclosures of White House calls involving Chotiner's law practice is "shocking," Democratic national chairman Paul Butler said last night.

"There's a distorted sense of what is right and what's wrong in the White House," Butler told a press conference. "The Republicans who ran in 1952 with promises of a high degree of public morality are hardly living up to their promises.

"This is the same administration that saw nothing wrong with a government official who during the noon hour worked on getting government contracts for his clients."

He told reporters he was referring to former Air Force Secretary Harold Talbot, who resigned last August.

Butler asserted that "had a Democratic President acted in a like manner, the press would have screamed for censure, if not impeachment."

President Eisenhower said yesterday at his press conference that there were absolutely no grounds for belief that there was anything improper in White House visits by Chotiner, an attorney who was Vice President Nixon's 1952 campaign manager. Chotiner previously told a Senate committee that he had talked with two members of the White House staff about cases with which he was connected as an attorney.

Butler later gave the keynote speech at a mock Democratic convention at the University of Wisconsin.

HARRIMAN SAYS EISENHOWER IS INACTIVE, TIMID

Asserts President Stood 'Idly By' on Farm Problems Until Election Year.

MILWAUKEE, May 5 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York said tonight, "Middle-of-the-road is Eisenhower's trademark. Let him keep it. It is a front for inaction."

The Governor, who calls himself "not an active" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, accused President Eisenhower of standing "idly by" on farm problems until election year.

He said the President "failed" to give leadership in the field of civil rights.

He attacked what he called "timid thinking" of the Eisenhower Administration in the fields of social security, education and housing.

The Governor also called the President "A prisoner of big business."

Harriman's speech before a Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner here was the first of nine he will deliver outside New York in the next two weeks.

While repeatedly attacking the President directly, Harriman made no reference in his text to his own candidacy.

Need to Change Programs.

But he suggested that a Democratic blueprint for victory lay in realizing that "programs that met yesterday's needs are not good enough for today" and that the people's needs must be met with forthright action.

He said the Democrats won in the past when they took this course but lost "when we tried to make ourselves over in the image of our opposition."

Devoting most of his speech to farm problems, Harriman said in his prepared address:

"Our first goal, at home is to reverse the farm recession.

"For three years, the President stood idly by and refused to take action of any kind.

"Not until he looked at the calendar and saw an election coming up was he willing to propose anything at all, and then he picked up the Democratic idea of a soil bank — which his Administration had rejected as recently as last fall."

Harriman said "this farm recession of the Eisenhower years" had spread to those who sell and distribute to farmers, and that employment in cities had been affected.

"But Eisenhower's big business administration," he said, "apparently never will understand that what's good for the farmer is good for General Motors."

On foreign affairs, Harriman said:

"Almost every competent observer returning from abroad agrees that the prestige and leadership of the United States has declined precipitously in the last three years . . .

"And the man who must bear the responsibility for our disastrous decline is the same man who will be heading the Republican ticket in this year's election.

"When Harry Truman left office, our prestige had never been higher and we were winning the cold war."

Referring to civil rights, the Governor declared:

"President Eisenhower has failed in this issue, too.

"Had he shown the concern —had he asserted the leadership we have a right to expect from the President of our country—we would not have reached the present state of tension that exists in some parts of our nation today . . .

"There have been differences in our party, yes, but these differences did not and could not stand in the way of our leading the nation in steady and rapid progress in civil rights."

RACIAL 'WALLS BREAKING' IN PROTESTANT CHURCHES

Racial integration in Protestant churches here is increasing and "the walls are breaking down," the Rev. Ralph Abele, chairman of the racial and cultural commission of the St. Louis Metropolitan Church Federation, said yesterday. He is minister of the Holy Ghost Evangelical and Reformed Church.

The first organized step toward promoting such integration was taken Friday afternoon and night at meetings sponsored by the federation and the St. Louis Fellowship of Reconciliation, at the Antioch Baptist Church. Representatives of various churches attended.

A majority of those present expressed agreement that "it would be wise strategy for Protestant churches to declare a policy of the open door for all people, and say so in so many words," the Rev. Mr. Abele said.

216 APPLICANTS TAKING TESTS FOR POLICE JOBS

Mental tests are being given this weekend to 216 applicants for Police Department commissions, including 35 women, to fill 153 vacancies in the department. Medical examinations will be given early this week.

'OPERA THROUGH THE AGES' EXHIBIT AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

An exhibit on the growth and development of opera is being held in the main hall of Central Public Library, 1301 Olive street, and will remain until May 31. It includes opera scores, librettos, records and books from the collection of the St. Louis Public Library.

The display, following the theme "Opera Through the Ages" begins with recordings of Claudio Monteverdi's "Orfeo," first produced in Italy in 1607, and other early operas are represented by musical scores and records.

An entire case has been devoted to the musical dramas of Mozart in honor of the composer's 200th birthday anniversary. Other well known opera composers, including Carlo Gian-Menotti, also are represented in the exhibit. Histories of the opera, biographies of great singers and photographs of composers complete the display.

EDUCATOR ASSAILS U.S. DRAFT SYSTEM

Plan Is Unjust, Fails Military Requirements, Amherst College President Says.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

ALBANY, N.Y., May 5—A vigorous attack on the military service system was made here yesterday by Dr. Charles W. Cole, president of Amherst College. He said the existing system was not only unjust and inequitable, but produced unsatisfactory results for the armed services.

The criticism came at the eighty-eighth convocation of the Board of Regents where Dr. James E. Allen Jr. was installed as Commissioner of Education and president of the University of the State of New York.

The present system, Dr. Cole warned, is about to break down. Because the 1-A class is growing fatter than our military requirements, many young men will escape military service, he said.

"The uncertainty as to service makes it impossible for a young man to develop reasonably secure educational or vocational plans, for even if he asks to be drafted, he may not be called for months or even years," he said.

Since it takes nearly two years to train some types of airplane mechanics, he said, it is "senseless" to train a man who is to serve only two or three years. Because of a low re-enlistment rate, especially of specialists, he said, much of our elaborate equipment is inadequately manned and maintained despite billions spent for defense.

The difficulty, he said arises from the fact that the nation is trying to do two different things at once—maintain defense forces based on elaborate machines that require trained specialists, and keep a system which requires military service of all fit young men.

Dr. Cole offered two proposals which he believed would help eliminate most of the current failings:

Smaller and more highly trained armed forces composed of men induced to enlist for long terms by highly advantageous conditions of pay and service.

A system that will be truly universal, based on only three to six months of service for all young men. These reservists would be taught military discipline, drill and knowledge of the basic weapons.

"In the long run," said Dr. Cole, "such armed forces would probably be less expensive than our present costly, clumsy and ineffective procedures."

Danger of Hung Jury Lessened After Lynching Mural Is Hidden

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., May 5 (AP)—Future federal juries will be able to concentrate on testimony without any mental hazard from a mural depicting a lynching scene on the walls of the federal courtroom here. The mural was directly opposite the jury box.

Along with several others in the same room, it was deemed "inappropriate for a court" in the words of United States District Judge Henry B. Graven.

Federal employes believe the paintings were done as part of a relief project many years ago. They were already in place when federal court sessions started in the room in 1944.

Intermittently the murals were the subject of judicial criticism. The issue came up again when it came time for redecorating the room. Photographs of the murals were sent to Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the United States courts. Both concurred in the opinion of the court in Cedar Rapids.

Removal was authorized and the plan was to take the murals down and ship them to the General Services Administration in Kansas City. This was found to be impractical.

So an obliterating coat of paint was brushed over the offending scenes.

SCHOLARSHIP AT M'MURRAY

Miss Carol Ann Price, daughter of Mrs. Olive O'Rourke, 1134 Pembroke drive, Marlborough Village, has been awarded a four-year scholarship to MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Ill., it was announced yesterday.

Miss Price, a senior at Affton High School, plans to study liberal arts. The scholarship, valued at $1200, was awarded on the basis of scholastic record and the character of the applicant, the college said.

TWO CHARGED WITH ROBBING GROCERY CASHIER OF $1113

Warrants charging armed robbery were issued by the circuit attorney yesterday against two men, who were spotted by police and arrested Friday a short time after the cashier of a National Food Center store was held up and robbed of $1113.

Named in the charge were Gerald L. Rolf, 25 years old, 6600 block of Vermont avenue, and Joel I. Grove, 25, Cahokia, Ill. Rolf was identified as the man, wearing sunglasses and carrying a pistol, who obtained the money from Mrs. Ann Gilbert, cashier in the store at 2747 Goodfellow boulevard.

Sidney Goldfarb, the manager, obtained the license number of the machine, which was recognized by officers, receiving a police broadcast. Rolf and Grove admitted the robbery after the money and pistol were found in Grove's machine.

Text of Final Communique Of NATO Council Meeting

PARIS, Sunday, May 6 (UP).

Following is the final communique issued after the NATO council of ministers meeting here:

THE North Atlantic Council met in Paris on May 4 and 5 under the chairmanship of Dr. Gudmundsson, foreign minister of Iceland, and issued the following communique:

1. The Atlantic powers, seven years ago, entered into the North Atlantic treaty in face of the Communist threat to their common ideals and civilization. For they had seen imperiled all the human rights which their peoples regard as essential for their life and freedom, particularly representative government, freedom of the individual, the rule of law and liberty of the press.

With the disappearance of the last free regime in eastern Europe, that of Czechoslovakia, the Berlin blockade in 1948, and two years later, the invasion of Korea, the concern of the free world reached its climax. The need for collective military defense was all the more obvious because at the end of the Second World War the free world had disarmed.

These were the circumstances which led to the creation of NATO and its military strength, and this is why the sacrifices necessary for the defense of the Atlantic community have since then been borne.

2. The collective defense efforts of the Atlantic powers have not been in vain. They have successfully deterred Soviet aggression in Europe and have contributed to the adoption by the Soviet government of the so-called policy of co-existence.

To the extent that this policy involves a certain easing of tension and the admission by the government of the U.S.S.R. that war is not inevitable, it is welcomed by the Atlantic powers, who have always supported this idea. It is now possible to hope that those principles of the United Nations Charter which have regulated the relations between the peoples of the Atlantic community may eventually also regulate the relations between the Soviet Union and the Western powers.

3. The reasons which gave rise to the Atlantic alliance have not, however, disappeared. No progress has been made towards solving certain vital European problems including the reunification of Germany in freedom, which have to be solved on a basis which would satisfy the legitimate security needs of all. The Western powers cannot relax their vigilance until these problems have been solved and until a disarmament plan providing the necessary guarantees to all and an effective control system has been put into effect.

Soviet military power continues to increase. Security remains therefore a basic problem, and the Atlantic powers must continue to give priority to the maintenance of their unity and strength. However, present prospects seem to leave scope for further peaceful initiatives on the part of the Atlantic powers. They are determined to pursue these initiatives with the same energy that they displayed in building up their defense organization and with which this will be maintained.

They solemnly affirm that this policy will be pursued in common and based on the unity, solidarity and co-operation of peoples sharing common ideals and standing together in the cause of freedom.

4. The Atlantic Council consider it timely and useful for the members of the Atlantic community to examine actively further measures which might be taken at this time to advance more effectively their common interests. The Atlantic powers already are a forum for consultation regarding policies of general interest. In order to enable the council better to perform these tasks, the ministers agreed to appoint a committee of three ministers to advise the council on ways and means to improve and extend NATO co-operation in non-military fields and to develop greater unity within the Atlantic community. The committee of hree was requested to submit its report as soon as possible.

5. In the meantime, the council agreed:

(A) To undertake periodi- examinations of the political aspects of economic problems;

(B) To strengthen economic co-operation between member countries, to seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies, and to promote conditions of stability and well-being.

(C) To instruct the permanent representatives of the council to examine economic jproblems in the light of the ideas set out above and of the plant put forward by M. Pineau, Foreign Minister of France, calling upon the services of a committee of technical advisers working under their authority.

6. Members of NATO are by their treaty dedicated to "safeguard the freedom, common heritage and civilization of their peoples, founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of low."

Their first seven years of working together have resulted in marked success and have strengthened the bonds between them.

The members of NATO are determined to remain united and steadfast to their ideals. They face the future with confidence.

F. C. MERKER DIES ON TRIP; WOODWARD & TIERNAN HEAD

Frank C. Merker, president of Woodward & Tiernan Printing Co., died of a heart ailment etarly yesterday at Tupelo, Miss., while he and his wife were en route to Florida for a vacation. He was 61 years old, and lived at 7526 Byron place, Clayton.

Mr. Merker was born at Louisville, Ky., and came to St. Louis when he was about nine years old. He became president of the large printing and lithographing concern at 1819 Tower Grove avenue in 1930. He had been with the concern more than 40 years. In World War I, he served with an artillery unit of the Thirty-fifth Infantry Division.

Surviving in addition to his wife, the former Mary Willie Woodward, are a son, David E. Merker, and a brother, E. Leonard Merker of St. Louis. The funeral will be Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Church of the Ascension, 830 Goodfellow boulevard, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

$1.17 PAY RISE RETURNED BY CLEVELAND CITY WORKER

CLEVELAND, May 5 (UP) — Mayor Anthony Ciebrezze received a check for $1.17 from a city employe who said it was the amount of his salary adjustment. He said if that was all the city could afford maybe they could find a better use for it than he could.

"Apparently we can use it better than he can," the mayor said, "and we can use the pay rise of anyone else who feels the same way."

LAOS TROOPS SAID TO HAVE ATTACKED COMMUNIST UNITS

HONG KONG, May 5 (AP)—Peiping radio reported today that a battalion of royal Laotian troops had attacked Pathet-Lao (Communist) fighting units southeast of Muong Khoua, in the northern Indochina state.

The Red China broadcast said the battalion, commanded by a royal Laotian major and "having two French advisers," attacked Pathte-Lao units April 28. The Laotian units were said to have come from Luang Prabang.

"They encountered resistance from local people and Pathet-Lao fighting units which halted their attack later the same day," the radio said.

GIVEN HISTORICAL RECORDS

V. E. Phillips, a Kansas City attorney, and member of the Missouri Constitutional Convention of 1943 and 1944, has presented to the Western Historical Manuscript section of the University of Missouri all of his files compiled while he was a member of the convention, it was announced yesterday.

found in many countries profound distrust of the motives and of the stability of purpose of the United States."

"What many fail to realize," the travelers added, "is that the Communist offers of assistance carry with them many expertly disguised and hidden strings, intended to open the way for the establishment of Soviet influence and eventual domination over the peoples of the Middle East and Southeast Asia."

Distrust West In Pinch.

There was an increasing conviction, the report contended, that in a showdown, the United States and the colonial powers of western Europe would sacrifice the interests of Asian countries "if that seems to promote their own interests and security."

Also, there existed a feeling that the United States, because of Japan's potential might, tends to put Japan ahead of other Asian countries that have "not forgotten their occupation by Japanese armies."

The report stated that the "very efficiency" with which the United States carries out its aid programs has produced increasing irritations, even resentment.

"We simply will have to do a better job with our human relations in our various aid programs," the report added. "The key thing is not the amount of aid. It is the manner. It is not enough to analyze figures; we must do a better job of analyzing people. This is where the Communists have left us far behind."

By the United Press.

The Zablocki mission's report to Congress said the West must apply its highest diplomacy to settle the Arab-Israeli dispute or risk World War III. It severely criticized both Isreal and the Arab nations for endangering the peace and added that Russia's intrigue in the area has complicated the problem.

The members opposed supplying either side with arms but said that unless a settlement of the dispute could be found, it might be "advisable or necessary" for the United States to provide arms for Israel.

WIFE IN HOSPITAL, SHE AND HUSBAND TALK BY RADIO

Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Clark, both licensed ham radio operators, are putting their hobby to good use. Mrs. Clark, in the maternity ward at St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, speaks with her husband three times daily over a portable short wave radio transmitter in her hospital room, Clark said yesterday.

Mrs. Clark gave birth to a son last Wednesday. Friday Clark, a radar technician for the Civil Aeronautics Administration ,installed the small portable set in his wife's room and that night they conversed.

The Clark home is at 3 Welland avenue, Pattonville, about 6 miles from the hospital. In their first broadcast Mrs. Clark spoke with her other two children at home and then asked her husband, "Are the dishes done?"

HARVARD PROFESSOR MAKES RESERPINE IN LABORATORY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 5 (UP)—A sedative used in treatment of mental disorders and formerly found only in an Indian plant now can be produced in the laboratory, thanks to a Harvard researcher.

Prof. Robert B. Woodward has succeeded in the total synthesis of reserpine, a tranquilizing agent," Harvard announced today.

The sedative also can be used in treatment of high blood pressure and nerv s disorders, Woodward reported. Reserpine, used as a sedative since ancient times, until now was extracted only from a plant found in India.

REED PROPOSES TOP-TO-BOTTOM CUT IN TAXES

Lawmaker Offers Plan for Three-Point Revision When Budget Permits.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—A top-to-bottom reduction in federal income tax rates "as soon as the budget permits" was proposed today by Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York.

Reed, senior Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, proposed a three-point revision of individual income tax schedules at a time when prospects of a Treasury surplus have revived talk of tax cuts at this session of Congress.

Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey has repeatedly put a damper on congressional tax reduction moves. The 80-year-old Reed, who has bucked the Administration before on tax matters, did not predict when he thought the budget would permit action on his program, but he urged that studies "be begun immediatey."

George for Tax Cut.

In the Senate, Senator Walter F. George (Dem.), Georgia, member of the Finance Committee told reporters he did not think there was a "doubt in the world that we should cut taxes this year." He added: "I think there should be a tax cut, but I haven't seen much evidence that the House Ways and Means Committee plans to undertake it."

Senator John Marshall Butler (Rep.), Maryland, announced he would ask the Senate Tuesday to set up a special commission to conduct a broad study of the impact of federal taxes on individual taxpayers, small business and the national economy.

"I heartily agree with former Internal Revenue Commissioner Coleman Andrews that our tax structure needs a complete overhaul," Butler said in a statement. "For years we have tolerated a system which piles tax upon tax and is full of inequities."

Describing it as a "Rube Goldberg" tax system, Butler said it "obstructs incentive and threatens the destruction of the middle class."

"It is also discriminatory in the low income groups," he said.

Butler's proposed commission, which he would pattern after the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization, would not be required to report before April 15, 1958.

Democrats Waiting.

Democratic House leaders have curbed tax cutting moves until they have a better idea of the size of the expected Treasury surplus at the end of the tax collection period.

Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, second ranking Ways and Means committee Democrat, last Tuesday estimated the probable surplus at more than two billion dollars but said general tax reduction now might involve serious "inflationary dangers" that would cancel out any benefits.

Reed advanced a program of tax reduction applying to all income brackets together with tightening of tax loopholes "as a first step toward a fairer and simpler income tax system."

His program, which he carefully made conditional on the time when the Government's operating budget will permit, proposed:

"First, the top (income) bracket rate should be reduced to at least 75 per cent (from 91 per cent at present).

"Second, all other bracket rates including the bottom should be graduated downward to conform to the new top rate, and

"Third, the law should be simplified by the elimination of as many of the special exemptions as possible."

Reed said this program "should commend itself to every member of Congress, irrespective of party," but he refrained from putting a specific date on it—whether this session or later.

Opposes Repeal.

Reed prefaced his statement with a critical reply to advocates of repeal of the federal income tax system.

Although he mentioned no names, it appeared to be in answer to a recent published article by former revenue commissioner T. Coleman Andrews. Andrews, who resigned to become head of a Virginia insurance firm, said income taxes should be repealed and another tax system instituted.

Reed agreed there was "room for improvement," but he placed the blame for present difficulties on excessive rates and accompanying pleas for special relief.

He asserted that talk of abolishing the income tax "is totally unrealistic" and "like trying to cure the patient by killing him."

GIRL AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Helen Sweet Long, Ferguson High School senior, has been awarded a four-year part-tuition scholarship to Wooster (O.) College, it was announced yesterday. She is the 17-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert I. Long Jr., 119 North Clay avenue, Ferguson. The Rev. Mr. Long is pastor of Ferguson Presbyterian Church.

Miss Long's award was based on academic attainment and leadership. She is a member of the National Honor Society and of the school's student council, a violinist in the school orchestra and a cheer leader and was chosen a maid of honor at the school yearbooks' annual dance.

'CRIME DOES NOT PAY' AUTHOR HELD AS A BURGLAR

CHICAGO, May 5 (INS)—A 36-year-old former convict, who became an author of "crime does not pay" novels, evidently did not have faith in his message.

He is Salvatore De Rose of Chicago, who was captured last Saturday as a member of a burglary gang and identified yesterday as the author of realistic crime novels.

According to Lt. James Lynch of the burglary detail, De Rose put on the typical "I refuse to talk" act of a hardened criminal when he was arrested. Later it was revealed that he had published the crime novel, "Michael Donovan," in 1952 and had two other published works to his credit.

The message in each book was that a criminal eventually has to pay his penalty.

De Rose and three other men were arrested at a garage where stolen cortisone and other drugs valued at $118,000 were hidden. Police said the drugs were stolen by four masked men in December from the Sharp & Dohme Co. warehouse.

De Rose has a record of arrests and convictions which began when he was 21.

PSYCHOLOGISTS HEAR REPORT ON ANXIETY

No Single Test Can Measure This Condition, Scientists Are Told.

Anxiety is not all of one piece, but comes in different shapes and forms which are not capable of being measured by one test, two psychologists declared here yesterday at the final session of the twenty-eighth annual scientific meeting of the Midwestern Psychological Association at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

Douglas N. Jackson, of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan., and Robert Bloomberg of the Veterans Administration Hospital at St. Cloud, Minn., studied four different tests by which psychologists have sought to measure anxiety.

An individual who was shown by one test to be anxious would be shown, according to the results of another test, as being without anxiety, they said. Consequently, they pointed out, these hitherto accepted tests are not measuring the same thing, and the results of their study disprove "the unitary conception of anxiety."

Marked personality changes have occurred in some patients who undergo surgery for a heart condition known as mitral stenosis, a narrowing of the mitral valve of the heart, Misha S. Zaks and Marion H. Groves of the Illinois Institute of Technology and George K. Yacorzynski of Northwestern University School of Medicine reported at the meeting.

They said that a higher degree of anxiety, depression, suicidal trends, and aggressive feelings were shown by these patients than by normal individuals, or by patients with other types of heart ailments.

Some of these personality changes have lasting effects, they added. It is not known whether they are caused by the stress under which the heart patient lives, or by organic changes in the brain as the result of impairment of oxygenation during the heart condition.

Cardiac surgery, which is sometimes resorted to in cases of mitral stenosis, may temporarily exaggerate these symptoms, they said, but with the passage of time the patient will show better results than before his operation.

About 1000 psychologists attended the three-day session here, at which papers touching on many phases of research in the field of human behavier were delivered.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS GIVES HIS $500 AWARD TO STUDENT

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Tennessee Williams has turned over his $500 Pulitzer prize drama award to the graduate school of journalism at Columbia University for presentation to a student interested in the creative arts.

"Good journalism is always creative, and in some respects more important to us than fiction," he wrote the school.

The school announced today the $500 prize had been given to Ruth Haskins of Greenfield, Mass. A graduate of Bates college, Miss Haskins will receive her master of science degree in journalism next month and then become a reporter for the Berkshire Evening Eagle, Pittsfield, Mass.

Williams won the award last year for his play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

NEWSPAPER GRAZES FIRE ALARM BOX, 6 TRUCKS REPLY

PASADENA, Calif., May 5 (AP)—Accidental false alarms got specacular results in Pasadena yesterday.

A newspaper carrier threw a folded paper high into the air. In falling it grazed the lever of a fire alarm box, bringing six fire trucks shrieking to the intersection.

Firemen said carrier Ronald Vestal, 14, was considerably awed.

Just as awed was City Controller Oswald Dietrich when a dozen police officers burst into his City Hall office. Somebody had leaned against an alarm button beside the City Hall safe, signaling police headquarters.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN IS FINED FOR SPEEDING ON THAMES

DARTFORD, England, May 5 (UP)—Capt. Frederick Briggs was fined £5 ($14) for speeding this week.

Police said he piloted the 2230-ton ship Cavallo down the river Thames too fast.

STEVENSON LINKS SIX INFLUENCE CASES TO G.O.P.

Says President's Promise Peddlers Will Be 'Thrown Out' Has Lost Flavor.

VENTURA, Calif., May 5 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson said tonight the case of Murray Chotiner's White House contacts indicates to him that the Eisenhower Administration gives business men "special opportunities to use public office to private advantage."

Stevenson said, in a speech to a Democratic party rally, that "in at least six previous instances high Republican officers have mixed up private business interests and their public responsibilities."

Stevenson added: "After so many cases the President's promise that influence peddlers will be "thrown out instantly" begins to lose its flavor."

'Pious Pronouncement.'

He was referring to President Eisenhower's statement yesterday in response to questions concerning calls made by White House aids for Chotiner on behalf of legal clients. Chotiner, a Beverly Hills attorney, was Vice President Nixon's 1952 campaign manager.

The Stevenson remark came in the eighth speech of a campaign-packed day in southern California. The 1952 presidential candidate, trying for the June 5 California primary nomination, declared:

"I don't think the country understood in 1952 that the highly-advertised business man administration was to be one in which business men were to have special opportunities to use public office to private advantage.

"If it were the Nixon-Chotiner matter alone, I suppose it could be dismissed as the President has dismissed it, with the pious pronouncement that the aid which two White House staff members gave Mr. Nixon's campaign manager's clients was only the 'courteous treatment' that 'any individual coming in this government' gets.

Doubts Clients Believed It.

"I don't think anybody in the country, including the President, really believes this. And I'm sure Mr. Chotiner's clients didn'tt believe it, or they wouldn't have paid Mr. Chotiner to do their job for them.

"But the important thing is that in at leastt six previous instances high Republican officers have mixed up private business interests and their public responsibilities. They have, to be sure, left Washington—hurriedly. One of them, the former Secretary of the Air Force (Harold Talbott) was even decorated as he departed. (Stevenson did not name the other five officials.)

"After so many cases the President's promise that influence peddlers will be 'thrown out instantly' begins to lose its flavor. You begin to think it might be better to keep them out in the first place. There's an old adage about not leaving building of chicken coops to foxes."

Economic Policies Attacked.

Stevenson also criticized the Eisenhower Administration's economic policies. He asserted that under the Truman Administration the budget deficit was slashed by 12 billion dollars and under Mr. Eisenhower the deficit has increased by 13 billion dollars.

"I'll tell you why the President decided to run again," Stevenson said. "He discovered he couldn't afford to return to that farm in Gettysburg."

Earlier he said President Eisenhower was "confused" about thermonuclear weapons development and characterized Vice President Nixon as a political "poisoner."

PIGMENT IN EYE CAN NOW BE MEASURED

British Expert Describes New Technique in Lecture Here.

The quantity of sensitive chemical pigment in the retina of the eye, on which vision depends, can now be measured by a new technique, William A. H. Rushton, Fellow of the Royal Society, of Cambridge University, England, said yesterday in a lecture at the Washington University School of Medicine.

Beside rhodopsin, the chemical contained in the cells of the retina which is responsible for colorless vision, Rushton has succeeded in identifying two hitherto unknown pigments which are responsible for man's ability to see colors, he said. In color-blind persons, these pigments are abnormal, he added.

The human eye operates like a camera, Rushton explained, and like a camera it must have a "sensitive film," or sensitive chemical, at the back. Dazzling bright light will temporarily "bleach" this chemical away, he said, but it returns to full strength when the eye is compelled to function in darkness.

To measure the amount of sensitive chemical in the eye at any given time, Rushton said he took light which is reflected back from the eye—just as the headlights of an automobile are reflected back from an animal's eye at night—and analyzed its colors.

If there is a large quantity of the sensitive purple pigment in the eye, the reflected light will be purple, while if most of the pigment is absent, the light will behave as if it had passed through transparent glass, he said. Techniques have been developed to make exact measurements of the amount of rhodopsin present at any one time.

Tourist Business.

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The California State Automobile Association reported that 26 states now rank travel among their three biggest industries. In New Jersey and New Mexico the tourist business tops the list.

COUPLE KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASH-LANDS, TWO INJURED

AUSTIN, Minn., May 5 (AP)—A light plane carrying two Austin couples crashed on a rain-soaked farm field near here early today, killing one couple and injuring the other two, one seriously.

Dead were Mr. and Mrs. Laverne (Bud) Comeau, each about 35 years old. Mrs. Franklin King was taken to an Austin hospital in serious condition. Her husband suffered head cuts, bruises and shock. The Kings also were about 35.

King was able to walk a half mile to the farm home of Donald Gartner for help.

King was unable to explain what forced the plane down, but authorities believe Comeau, apparently at the controls, was attempting to land in an open field. The plane, a four-place Stinson owned by Comeau, apparently flipped over on its back during a skid.

WARNS SECURITY SYSTEM COULD WRECK SECURITY

Cain, Subversive Control Member, Says Enemy May Prey on Unjustly Accused.

NEW YORK, May 5 (UP)—A member of the Subversive Activities Control Board said today the nation's internal security system is a "twentieth century American tragedy" that may create more security risks than it uncovers.

The board member, Harry P. Cain, held that a person unjustly relieved of a government job, and unable to find employment, might become a prey to enemy agents. Cain is a former Republican Senator from Washington.

Cain addressed the Jewish Labor Committee at the National Trade Union Conference on Civil Rights. He said in his prepared speech:

"What I must try to accomplish now is to convince the President that the principle which he puts first—the individual is of supreme importance—is being so little understood or dishonored in practice that the internal security of our beloved nation is in danger of being undermined.

"Should we permit this to happen, we shall have been guilty of the greatest and most easily avoidable crime against freedom in the history of mankind."

'Has No Real Knowledge.'

By the United Press.

He charged that President Eisenhower "has no real knowledge about how the individual is being treated." He implied that he had been unsuccessful in conveying his own strong feelings on the subject to the President, whose appointee he is.

He gave a detailed case history of a long-time Government employe suspended and under investigation for two years who was recently approached by a Soviet agent.

"Had my subject capitulated, would the blame have been his? Indeed it would not. Any time our Government places one of its loyal servants where he can't reasonably live without becoming prey for vultures, shysters or enemy agents, then that government is solely responsible for any crime or disaster or tragedy which follows," Cain said.

The man in question became suspicious of the "prospective employer" who answered his job-hunting ad and reported his suspicions to the proper authorities. The "employer" was identified through a picture as one Methiov, "a translater with a military mission at the Soviet embassy," Cain said.

Because this man proved his loyalty, Cain said, "it does not follow that Methiov and others of his bent will not be successful in future attempts to find American spies to serve Soviet purposes. Perhaps past attempts have been successful. . . . I wonder how many of these unfortunates have been approached; how many have closed their eyes to doubts and agreed to work for the other side because they had to eat?"

Still Considered 'Risk.'

This man's proper and loyal behavior in dealing with a suspicious job offer has not, however, lifted the cloud from his record. Two weeks after a report on the incident was filed with the department concerned, Cain said, the man received notice of a tentative decision to dismiss him as a security risk. Further appeal may be made by next Tuesday, Cain said.

Cain opened his address with a detailed statement of his admiration for President Eisenhower for his actions as a wartime commander and his statements as President in upholding the importance of the individual's rights and dignity as a bulwark of American democracy and freedom.

Then Cain said: "You have never heard the President speak out in his wrath, as I am speaking now, over the fashion in which individuals have been and are being mistreated. He does not speak because he does not know. Too many of those who let it be known that they represent, speak for and protect him have never brought him face to face with what I am talking to you about."

As he began his case history, he said that in addition to illustrating his point, it "serves another purpose. It may come to the attention of the President who may wish to check the accuracy of my recitation by talking with the so-called security risk who is involved. I pray that the President can spare the time for such an adventure, out of which could come a great good for the country."

A New City Charter

St. Louis Has Changed Much in 42 Years

Government's Structure Has Not Kept Pace With Times — New Problems Now Confront City.

Local Government Is 'Big Business' — Services and Expenditures Both Have Increased Vastly.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. LOUIS VOTERS will have an opportunity next Tuesday, their second in six years, to take a direct hand in support of the prolonged fight to achieve good city government through realistic modernization of the city charter.

The new opportunity will come when voters go to the polls in the special election to name a board of 13 freeholders to study the need for charter revision, and to recommend changes in the basic structure of their city government.

AN ISSUE involving the city charter is one of the most important municipal matters that can come before the people. The charter is the fundamental, organic law of the city, serving St. Louis in the same manner the Federal Constitution serves the United States. It establishes the basic framework of local government and defines its powers, functions and responsibilities.

Citizen survey committees and students of municipal government who have made thorough studies of the subject have agreed that the present city charter, adopted in 1914, should be completely overhauled and geared to modern-day needs. All have urged that this be done in the interest of more effective and economical administration of city services and functions.

Even the entrenched city officeholders and politicians, who have consistently opposed and harassed charter improvement efforts, concede that some changes would be a good thing. As far as the charter is concerned the major controversy—and it is a heated one—is over the question of how far the freeholders should go in altering the city's basic law.

Municipal government has undergone tremendous growth and change since the existing charter was adopted 42 years ago, pointing up the urgent need for a major overhaul. Numerous vital new services, necessitated by changing conditions, have been added. Most of the traditional municipal functions have had to be greatly expanded.

Complex public problems, which did not exist and were not foreseen in 1914, now confront the city, including traffic control, slum clearance, public housing, expressways, airport facilities and public health and welfare services. All of these have given the city new responsibilities and require huge expenditures which would have staggered the imaginations of the city fathers 42 years ago.

Municipal operating expenses and the number of employes have increased steadily during this period. New forms of taxes are being levied to provide the necessary revenues to finance these increased governmental expenditures.

But the 1914 charter, designed to meet the needs of that horse-drawn, gaslit era, has not been elastic enough to meet the mushroom growth of local government.

As a result, St. Louis city government has ended up today with a hodge podge of overlapping boards, commissions and agencies scattered senselessly among various city departments. Authority and responsibility are either conflicting or spread among several agencies, resulting in a chaotic lack of administrative co-ordination.

ST. LOUIS'S local government today is a "big business," as its $50,000,000-a-year operating budgets and its 11,000 employes clearly demonstrate. Dispersion of authority and costly inefficient operations, however, make it a grossly ineffective organization which is costing its stockholders—the taxpayers—thousands of dollars annually.

In 1914, St. Louis was a city with a highly concentrated population of about 700,000. It had not yet filled all available area within its 1876 boundaries, which in later years were to strangle the city's growth and expansion and create new problems. At that time 5075 acres within the city limits, or more than an eighth of the city's total area, was in farm land.

The city's 1914 payroll listed about 5600 employes, including the members of a police force almost as large as the one which serves today. Municipal operating expenditures for the fiscal year ended April 13, 1914, totaled $9,859,000, less than a fifth of what they are now. Automobiles were appearing more frequently, but horse-drawn vehicles were still common.

Within a few years the automobile came into general use and brought with it new traffic and parking problems, which eventually required street widenings and construction of traffic relief superhighways. Development of air travel called for new expenditures and improvements. The depression in the 1930s brought perplexing health and welfare problems. Expenditures in this field have increased from about $20,000 in 1914 to $1,500,000 last year.

Also, many new services were added in the intervening years, including rubbish collection, rat control and restaurant inspection. Additional health centers and baby clinics, mental and industrial hygiene services had to be provided. Adoption of the sanitary milk law, the smoke control ordinance, and the advent of slum clearance and public housing, necessitated establishment of new municipal authorities.

Over the years these new functions and services were assigned to various departments without logical grouping. Most city departments are now a conglomerate array of divisions and agencies, whose functions and duties have no basic relationship to the primary assignment of the department.

MAYOR TUCKER
Time to park horse and buggy.

The Department of Public Welfare, for instance, has jurisdiction over parks and playgrounds, hospitals and health centers, the city jail and workhouse—institutions and services having little in common. The city's professional engineering services are scattered among four departments instead of being handled by a central agency. Contractors must call at four different city offices to obtain the necessary permits to build a home.

The most glaring defect in the framework of city government, however, is the lack of a central finance department and the absence of independent budget and audit divisions.

At present, the collection of city taxes and revenues is handled by at least five different city officials. Major taxes and fees are collected by the Collector of Revenue and the virtually duplicate office of License Collector. The City Treasurer collects parking meter funds. The collection of tolls on MacArthur Bridge is handled jointly by the Department of Public Utilities and the Comptroller's office. Toll collectors are employed by the public utilities department. The toll checkers working at the side of the collectors are employes of the Comptroller.

Several official surveys of the city government have been sharply critical of this lack of a central revenue collection agency, and the absence of an independent audit. This situation is comparable to the wide dispersion of collection duties which formerly existed in state government, and which was corrected by the 1945 Missouri Constitution through the establishment of a state department of finance.

ANOTHER SERIOUS DEFECT in the present city charter is its $10,000 limitation on salaries which can be paid by the city. Although this may have been regarded as adequate compensation 42 years ago, it has proved today to be a serious handicap in the efforts to recruit qualified persons to fill top administrative positions and jobs requiring specialized technical skills.

All of these matters point up the necessity for major revision of the present outmoded charter. The question of the charter revision study has already been decided in the affirmative, and will not be an issue in Tuesday's special election. The success or failure of that study, however, may well depend on what happens at the polls, when the voters will elect the 13 freeholders to undertake this important task.

Forty-five persons are seeking election to the charter board, a fact which may cause some confusion among the voters. The race, however, has largely narrowed down to a contest between a group of candidates selected by a citizens group and another supported by most of the Democratic and Republican ward politicians.

One slate of 13 "independent" candidates is sponsored by the nonpartisan St. Louis Citizens Charter Committee and backed by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, who has led the fight for governmental reorganization. The other slate, picked by labor's Committee on Political Education, is being supported by most politicians and Democratic city officeholders, who hope to control the drafting of the new charter so they can retain the present elective city offices and their patronage.

The forthcoming charter revision study offers a new opportunity for the city to replace the present antiquated charter. Handled objectively by public-spirited freeholders, the charter study could result in a proposal bringing about more efficient and more economical administration of city services, and providing far-reaching benefits for the well-being and stability of the entire community.

Mayor Tucker and members of the citizens committee have warned that if the politicians control the study, it could result in proposals for only minor amendatory changes which would leave the major charter problems unsolved.

If the study should end in a deadlock and complete failure, the city government would be forced to continue operations under the existing inadequate charter. And there is a threat, the Mayor warned, that a charter dictated by a politically-controlled board of freeholders may be worse than the present one.

The fight for charter modernization began 15 years ago when the Citizens Advisory Committee appointed by former Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, a Democrat, made a comprehensive survey of city government with the assistance of expert consultants. It recommended a broad program of governmental reorganization under a new charter, declaring in its 1941 report: "The existing plan of reorganization of local government in the city is such as to limit seriously the possibilities of securing effective and economical administration."

The outbreak of World War II compelled sponsors to abandon plans to set up a charter board of freeholders at that time. The movement got under way again in 1947, when the Citizens Tax Commission named by former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, a Republican, concurred strongly in the previous recommendation for a new charter.

It was not until 1949 that a board of freeholders was elected to take up the task of writing a new charter. That board was headed by Tucker, then professor of mechanical engineering at Washington University. After a study of almost a year the board recommended a new charter containing most of the long-sought improvements in municipal government.

The proposal was defeated when submitted to the voters in 1950, largely through the vigorous opposition of organization Democrats and Republicans who joined together to block the proposed cut in political patronage. Had the 1950 charter been approved there would have

Need for a Big Foreign Aid Program Is Noted--And Filed

Eisenhower Administration Not Likely to Get Action for Several Years at the Present Rate of Events.

President Tells the Press He Anticipates No Early Change in Program, but Will Have 'Study' Made.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.

CURRENT, congressional criticism of the multi-billion dollar foreign aid program has raised the important question of the relative responsibilities of the executive and legislative branches of Government for initiating a plan to meet the new Kremlin challenge of economic and political penetration into the world's trouble spots.

So far, leaders of both branches have merely proposed creation of an "outside commission" to study the problem. Although the shift in Soviet tactics was easily discernible at the Big Four summit conference in Geneva last year, the Administration is still following the old policy of greatest emphasis on military aid to the free world and little emphasis on economic co-operation with the underdeveloped or uncommitted nations.

At his press conference yesterday President Eisenhower said no radical changes were planned in the present program. He said he and others were studying plans for creation of a commission to look into a long-range plan and that it might be able to report to him and Congress by Jan. 20. A commission, even though it could report on a controversial and complicated subject by next January, could not hope to have its recommendations carried out before late 1958 or early 1959 at the earliest because of budgetary study and congressional debate.

Both the White House and the Capitol talk about new plans and programs to counteract the Soviet switch but this is an election year and economic aid must still labor under the Republican-isolationist labels of "giveaway" and "operation rathole," contemptuous terms that are being repeated now by some Democrats.

THE FAILURE of the White House to explain its foreign aid policy adequately to Congress and to the people has endangered the requested authorization of $4,900,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Any reduction in the authorization, which is largely determined by the Senate Foreign Relations and the House Foreign Affairs Committees, will be reflected shortly thereafter in the appropriations that must be voted by the Appropriations committee and the two chambers.

Present indications are that the committees and Congress will cut the money available for expenditure next fiscal year and are likely to put in restrictive provisions when greater flexibility and long-term commitments appear essential.

Basic responsibility for a new and more energetic economic program rests, of course, with the executive branch, specifically, the White House, the State Department and the International Co-operation Administration. The executive branch has, or should have, the requisite information, some of it confidential or classified, from all parts of the world and the experts to evaluate it for use in planning.

Congress or an outside group without detailed and comprehensive information, could only approve or modify an executive branch program. Congress and the outside group could also justify the program to the voters, who, in the last analysis, will decide whether we have an adequately financed and administered long-range answer to the Communist challenge.

JOHN B. HOLLISTER
From Hoover to Eisenhower.

The highest policies for economic co-operation are made by the President after consultation with the Secretary of State. Since the economic program, beginning with the Marshall Plan of 1947, has been closely tied into the national security, it would appear that the proper group for recommendations to the President is the National Security Council.

National Security Council proceedings are relatively secret but this reporter, after checking competent sources in the Government, has found no evidence that the State Department's Policy Planning Board, the ICA's planning board, the NSC planning board, the NSC itself, or the NSC's Operations Co-ordinating Board—which monitors President's directions—has reached any substantive policy to counteract the jovial salesmanship of Russian Prime Minister Bulganin and party boss Khrushchev and the long-ranged planning of the Kremlin masterminds.

President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles have made repeated statements about the dangers of the new Soviet economic and political offensive. In his Mutual Security message to Congress in March, Mr. Eisenhower said:

"In its new departure in foreign policy, we see that the Soviet Union continues its familiar pattern of ceaseless probing for opportunities to exploit political and economic weaknesses. We cannot view otherwise the arms traffic in areas where tensions are high and peace is in danger. We cannot view otherwise the extension of credits hand in hand with exploitation of ancient animosities and new hatreds in a world already overburdened with them.

"We must, therefore, assume that Soviet expansionism has merely taken on a somewhat different guise and that its fundamental objective is still to disrupt and in the end to dominate the free nations. With Soviet leaders openly proclaiming their world aim, it would be folly for us and our friends to relax our collective efforts toward stability and security."

In foreign affairs, however, as in domestic affairs, the President and his White House advisers have taken a seemingly bold stand on a program and then often appointed men to administer it who were apathetic or hostile to its announced purpose.

The President's Special Assistant on Foreign Economic Policy is former Director of the Budget, Joseph M. Dodge, a Detroit banker, whose principle interest in Government has been to cut down expenditures. Dodge's present activities are said to be confidential. At the time of his appointment, it was announced that he would co-ordinate the foreign economic work of the State, Defense, Treasury and Agriculture departments, the ICA and the Export-Import Bank, and devote some of his time to "special projects" in the economic field. No interviewed official was able to give this reporter a specific example of any accomplished deed by Dodge.

In June Mr. Eisenhower selected John B. Hollister, a Cincinnati corporation and tax lawyer, to head the International Co-operation Administration to succeed Harold E. Stassen, who had directed its predecessor, the Foreign Operations Administration. Stassen had Cabinet rank and sat regularly with the Cabinet and National Security Council. Hollister's position was downgraded into the State Department and only occasionally has he attended NSC meetings on invitation.

Hollister was Executive Secretary of the Hoover Commission for Governmental Reorganization when he was appointed to the ICA job. He said he had not sought it and did not know who had recommended him. He was a law partner of the late Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and the guess at the time of his selection was that he would be influential at the Capitol with Senators and Representatives who had looked to Taft for leadership.

There is a sharp contrast in the ways foreign economic aid was initiated by President Truman and administered on a nonpartisan basis, and the Eisenhower methods.

STARTING IN 1946 with the $3,750,000,000 loan to Great Britain at 2 per cent interest, Truman subsequently vigorously pushed through Congress in 1947, within a little over two months, the Greek-Turkish aid program, both a military and an economic measure.

The Marshall Plan for aid to Europe was proposed by State Secretary Marshall in June, 1947 and became a law in April, 1948. To direct the Marshall Plan, Truman selected a Republican—and one of the great salesmen of the world, Paul G. Hoffman. For this four-year plan, Republicans, under the leadership of the late Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, joined Democrats for comparatively long term commitments, something the Eisenhower Administration is asking today.

The Marshall Plan under Hoffman, who selected some of the best administrators seen in Government, paved the way for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Mutual Defense Assistance Act of 1949. In his inaugural address in January 1949, Truman devoted 65 words to his Point IV program of technical assistance to underdeveloped countries. In the spring of 1950 he put real pressure behind the idea which has had the widest acceptance of any of the economic aid proposals. The Korean war broke out in the summer of 1950 and the next year Truman and his advisers developed the Mutual Security Program with its military and economic aid to most of the free or uncommitted nations.

President Eisenhower reorganized the foreign aid program into the Foreign Operations Administration and put it under Stassen. In 1955 this organization lost some of its prestige by absorption into the State Department as a semi-autonomous ICA.

The differences between the Truman and Eisenhower direction of foreign aid were that the former took the initiative and put immense drive behind his plans to get them approved by Congress and to have them administered with imagination, vigor and efficiency. Hoffman, the brilliant salesman, sold the Marshall Plan idea to the Congress and the benefiting countries. Both the American taxpayers and the foreign recipients were fully and continuously informed about the operation of the plan. For its part in stemming Communist aggression by economic means, the Marshall Plan, or ECA, was as successful as NATO.

Under the Republicans, the White House and Congress took a dim view of the efficacy of foreign aid. Emphasis has been on military pacts and military assistance. Last year Stassen and State Secretary John Foster Dulles cautiously put out for an idea that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization could be made the vehicle for long-term economic aid to underdeveloped and uncommitted countries in that region. They were quickly squelched by Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey and the then Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes.

Since the new Soviet offensive, which started after the desanctification of Stalin, the Eisenhower Administration has taken a keener interest in foreign aid. Lately there has been unofficial talk, deplored by the White House, of using NATO as an instrument of economic help. This talk, here and abroad, was occasioned by Secretary Dulles's remark to an Associated Press luncheon in New York that under Section II of the treaty "the time has come to advance NATO from its initial phase into the totality of its meaning." Section II related to "economic and political co-operation" among the member nations. Foreign ambassadors were unable to learn from the State Department what the Secretary meant by his vague phraseology but the White House has disclosed that the Administration was thinking about "political" and not "economic" co-operation.

The foreign ministers of the NATO countries today agreed to let a three-man committee give the question further study.

Will H-Bomb Explosions Change the World's Weather?

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, May 5.

IN the far Pacific the series of nuclear test explosions being conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission has begun. While there will be no effort to exceed the big bang of March, 1954, computed at 10 to 16 megatons—the equivalent of 10,000,000 to 16,000,000 tons of TNT—this awesome force unleashed again is certain to stir the recurring fears for the future of mankind on this small planet.

These fears persist above all in the matter of climate. After every series of tests the commission receives thousands of letters blaming any excess of heat, cold, drouth or rainfall on the explosions.

Yet a look at the record shows that all the scientists in meteorology and related fields, with one or two exceptions, who have studied the results of the H-bomb explosions, find nothing to support the fear that the weather is being altered. Great as is the force of the explosions, they are small in comparison to the volcanic eruptions which in the past are believed to have had a temporary effect on climate.

Each time a test has been conducted in the Pacific a number of weather analysts have participated. This time the weather group is larger than ever before. Directly associated with the test are 39 weather analysts and forecasters. More than 500 other weather specialists are on planes and ships in the area.

Their primary task is to determine wind directions and velocities in the upper air so that the path of the fallout of radio-active material in the immediate aftermath of an explosion can be charted. The fallout of radio-active ash on a Japanese fishing vessel 85 miles from explosions in the tests of 1954 caused serious injury to members of the crew. But the weather specialists also observe and record the effects of a nuclear blast on cloud, wind and rain at the site.

One of the few scientists suggesting that nuclear explosions do have a long-term effect on the weather is Charles Noel-Martin of France who published a paper on the subject in November 1954, that caused wide comment. Martin wrote that "some dozens of explosions" could cause a decrease in the intensity of the sun's radiation, result in excessive rainfall and contaminate the world's atmosphere for a considerable period with radio-active material sufficient to influence the rate of abnormal births in future generations. It is the known effect of radiation in increasing amounts in causing the birth of a greater percentage of defectives that has stirred the deepest fears.

Two of America's most distinguished meteorologists, Lester Machta and D. L. Harris of the United States Weather Bureau, published the results of an extensive study in Science in January, 1955, showing that no effect on weather could be established. In this paper they were concerned particularly with the relationship between A-bomb tests in Nevada and the weather. They asked the opinion of 80 weather specialists and they reported as follows:

"None of the scientists who replied to the inquiry about A-bombs and weather felt that the energy of the explosion could have a significant effect on the weather."

As Martin had pointed out in his paper, an H-bomb of three to 50 megatons is equal to 1000 to 2500 A-bombs of the "classical" Hiroshima type. He estimated that Russia and the United States had set off 10 H-bomb explosions.

But the two American scientists, and along with them virtually all weather specialists in other countries, are convinced that despite this magnitude of explosive power no relationship to the weather has been demonstrated. A graph shows clearly the same extreme variations of rainfall and temperature recorded over the years long before anyone dreamed of unlocking the power of the atom.

The analogy popularly cited to show a relationship with the weather is the effect of volcanic explosions. The greatest such explosion since science began to observe these matters was when the volcanic island of Krakatoa in the South Pacific blew up on 1883. This released an enormous cloud of dust particles into the upper atmosphere that gradually spread around the entire world. Observers estimated that at certain points and certain altitudes the sun's radiation was cut by about 20 per cent for one month.

The explosion on Krakatoa threw an estimated 13 cubic miles of the earth's surface into the air of which about one-third stayed up in the atmosphere for several months. In contrast the first H-bomb detonated is estimated to have thrown up one-thirtieth of a cubic mile of earth. This amount is considered far too small, in its distribution in the upper air, to influence solar radiation.

Two Japanese scientists, H. Arakawa and K. Tsutsumi of Japan's meteorological research institution, are not satisfied that nuclear explosions have had no effect on the world's weather. They point to the two cold, wet summers in Japan in 1953 and 1954 and say that "possibly" the American Pacific tests in November of 1952 and the spring of 1954 along with the Soviet test in Siberia in August 1953 were the cause. But they offer no proof.

The conclusions of Sir John Cockcroft, Britain's leading atomic scientist, are in accord with those of American meteorologists. He reported to the parliamentary and scientific committee concerned with radiological hazards a year ago that any effect on weather would necessarily be extremely small. Cockcroft concluded his paper by saying:

"The level of radio-active contamination in the world produced by all the atomic explosions and peaceful atomic energy activities is at present so low that it should not cause any anxiety. The radiation level which would give rise to serious harmful effects is probably at least 1000 times the present level of contamination. We do not at present know this figure with any accuracy and long term genetic studies are required to determine this. . . ."

But where popular fears are concerned, scientific testimony no matter what the authority and the volume may well be irrelevant. The horrors of the H-bomb, achieving temperatures equivalent to those in the interior of the sun, have been widely advertised. And the potential for ultimate and final destruction can scarcely be exaggerated.

It is understandable that an element of irrationality should enter into these fears. There is a sense that something is happening which may easily get out of control. Here is a force beyond the power of ordinary human beings to control.

The fact is, as many scientists have pointed out, that the great cities man has created and the industrial wastes he pours into the atmosphere have done much more to alter the climate than any potential change foreseeable from peacetime tests of nuclear weapons. The smog over Los Angeles, the industrial vapors over certain Pennsylvania towns and in Belgium—these are the truly baleful effects exerted on the weather. But popular apprehension—it might almost be called superstition—clings to the power once again being tested in the empty wastes of the Pacific.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'Never Again'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your May 2 leading editorial, "Never Again," adequately expresses the opinion of civilians on harsh training methods of the peacetime Marine Corps.

Men of Sgt. McKeon's breed will necessarily be different and not too far removed from the sadistic extremes revealed in the sad episode at Parris Island. These men, however, are the backbone of a training system which has proved itself innumerable times in lives saved and in battles won. Discipline can only be indelibly instilled in a recruit during his training period.

The early days of the Korean war are easily forgotten. The pampered and poorly disciplined Army troops were utterly confused and then slaughtered by the hundreds when first faced by the terrific shock of battle. It's a lesson we should remember. W. U. KELLEY.
Dittmer, Mo.

Undoubtedly Sgt. McKeon was wrong in ordering that march as discipline. However, it is plain to see that he was only following a procedure which was more or less standard. Had it not been, he would not have dared order such a march, drinking or not.

I agree with you that action should be taken against his immediate commanders and most certainly against the base commander, Maj. Gen. Joseph Burger, all of whom must have known that such practices existed.

But I would even go a step further. The Marine Corps commandant, Gen. Randolph M. Pate, made a statement some time ago to the effect that during his career he had no knowledge of such things ever having happened. If this is true, then Gen. Pate has not kept himself fully informed on the training procedure followed at the training bases.

If Gen. Pate then does not keep himself properly informed, he is not a competent man to fill such a responsible position as that of Marine Corps commandant, and he should be relieved of his command by the Defense Department.
AN EX-SERVICE MAN.

Granted military training should not be inhuman nor should individuals be mistreated. But training of the individual for his own protection should not be jeopardized because it is a little harder and sometimes more unpleasant than the training expected by our "protected citizenry."

The average citizen of the United States knows war only as he has read about it or as he has seen it in the newsreels. Never has he felt it unless he was a service man on foreign duty. That service man had to go through the rugged training your editorial deplores. Ask him if he thinks the Marine Corps training is too severe.

I would not sell my experience in the Marine Corps for anything and I believe all Marines feel as I feel.
FRANK BUSSING.

I admire the Post-Dispatch for giving complete display to the news about the condition of the Marine sergeant who ordered his platoon on a punitive night march through the South Carolina swamp that claimed the lives of six of his men.

I am also struck by the telling work of your composing room "make-up" man who placed the part of the news continued from page 1 around a large vodka advertisement on page 11. This continuation said that the "sergeant 'drank an unknown quantity of vodka' in the morning, afternoon and early evening."

This was above the advertisement which was headed: "Suddenly, Everybody's Drinking Vodka." The advertisement also contained the promise: "It leaves you breathless."

Decay at Jefferson Barracks

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Yesterday I went for a spring stroll through an area that was very familiar to me more than 50 years ago when I came to St. Louis as the bride of an Army officer stationed at Jefferson Barracks. As I walked north from the Parade Ground, toward the old frame residence which stands so impressively on top of a hill overlooking the river, I recalled that it had been the home of the commandant.

Not only was I saddened to find it standing vacant, but angered that so historic a structure should be left in the condition it is today. It looks structurally sound, and I remembered the many beautiful parties that were given there during the summer of the World's Fair.

On north of the old residence was evidence of more neglect, not only on the grounds, but around the old stone buildings in the northeast corner of the reservation. The quaint old stone house and stable near the north gate are in a sad state of disrepair, while just across the road from them is a saloon with a brazen new front. Two suspicious-looking men came out of it and stood in the middle of the roadway a long time, as though they owned the place. Can it be that the Federal, state or county government—whichever is in charge of this place—have such men in their employ in what should be revered grounds?

It is high time the various patriotic societies, both male and female, in the St. Louis area aroused themselves to see that this place is carefully and authentically restored; not by political appointees, but by those who are, by training and experience, best qualified to do the work.
MRS. BRADFORD LOWELL.

At Stake? The Future of St. Louis

If St. Louis had just been shocked by a vast political scandal—say, one of the variety that afflicted Kansas City 20 years ago—voters undoubtedly would be lined up at the polls all day Tuesday when freeholders are to be elected to study reform of the City Charter.

St. Louis, however, has a reputation for better than average city government. That is because it does not take a shock to interest voters in their municipal affairs. They have always kept a fairly good eye on City Hall.

The City Charter is as important an ingredient as public interest in producing good city government. After all, it limits what the voters and their elected officials may do. And there is much which cannot be done under the present Charter, adopted more than 40 years ago.

Under the old Charter there are wasteful duplications of function. The collection of taxes and fees is not efficiently centralized, nor is the paying of the city's bills. Several city departments are charged with duties which are not in line with their chief functions. The old Charter provides for less home rule than is desirable. It gives undue importance to the so-called county offices. These have not been brought under civil service as the city offices have been. In a sense, this gives minor politicians more power than is in the hands of the Mayor. All such provisions need to be examined with a view to recommending changes.

There is also the question whether an expanding, progressive community—in a time utterly different from that in which the present charter was adopted—does not need a scope for decision and action not dreamed of four decades ago. There is a question, for example, whether the present Charter enables the city to deal properly with new relationships with St. Louis county and its incorporated communities. Those relationships will assume greater and greater importance as the county becomes less and less a rural area and more and more an urban extension of the city.

The 13 freeholders to be elected Tuesday are not expected to have the answers to all of these questions. Their task will be to decide which of the questions call for answers, and what those answers should be. Their conclusions will be brought before the voters within a year. But it is of the utmost importance now that the voters turn out to elect men and women in whose work they can have confidence.

The Post-Dispatch recommends the election of the 13 members of the Citizens-Tucker ticket, whose names are listed in the box herewith. We believe a vote for all 13 is the best way to assure election of a free and uncommitted Board of Freeholders which will study the charter in the light of the broad public interest.

The politicians will have their "regular" voters at the polls. They know what they want. That is, first of all, what they believe is best for themselves rather than what is best for the city. When it comes to city jobs, they obviously prefer the patronage system to the merit system. If they elect "captive" freeholders, the ensuing Charter recommendations almost surely will propose a step backward rather than a step forward. But the issue is not in the hands of the politicians. It is in the hands of the voters. If they turn out in large numbers, they can elect the kind of freeholders they want.

Maybe the selection of 13 men and women for a rather technical undertaking lacks the emotional charge which comes with "throwing the rascals out" after a scandal. To some, the revision of a dated charter may seem an unexciting business. But it is of the utmost importance. Making a good city government better is not a minor challenge.

A modernized Charter will determine what the people of St. Louis will be able to do in the years ahead. Community progress will largely depend on a good Charter. If the politicians have a pocket-book interest in revision, the community at large has an even greater interest in determining the kind of government it will have in the future, whether it will be wasteful and expensive, or economical and efficient.

This may depend more on the Charter freeholders than on the city officials of the future. It should make the election important enough to induce every registered voter to go to the polls.

"SELECTIVE PROSPERITY"

Fishy Smell From the Wabash

Has the United States District Attorney's office at East St. Louis seen the report of the special House committee that investigated the "financial position" of the New Harmony bridge? If not, at least cursory perusal would seem to be in order.

Surely this report is one of the most remarkable documents to issue from Congress in a long time. It tells in detail about the financial monkey business that has been going on in connection with this important toll bridge link over the Wabash river on the highway between St. Louis and Evansville, Ind.

The report tells, for example, how the bridge commission, headed by former Republican Congressman Roy Clippinger of Carmi, paid for typewriters turned over to and used by the Carmi Times of which Mr. Clippinger is publisher. When the committee asked Mr. Clippinger why bridge tolls, extracted from the public, should buy typewriters for his newspaper, he replied:

> After all, I had a fellow, when they were doing a lot of advertising—I had a fellow that prepared the copy and things of that kind to use a typewriter.

The report shows that the bridge commission paid out $374.04 for a camera kept in the Clippinger newspaper office; that the bridge paid $105.45 for insurance for a Carmi Times auto; that the bridge paid for decorating the newspaper office; that it paid out $40,000 in five years on salaries for Carmi Times employes; that it paid Mr. Clippinger for printing pamphlets and tickets double what it would have cost to have the printing done in St. Louis or Washington.

Mr. Clippinger professed to know little about all this. When the committee asked why the bridge bought 1350 camera flashbulbs in 1952, he said: "I don't know. I will say this. There were several things that were jointly bought." Then the committee wanted to know why the bridge bought 1440 pencils in one year. That time the bridge manager-newspaper publisher answered simply: "I don't know."

When the committee totaled up, it found $69,101.74 of "ascertainable financial detriment to the commission and corresponding benefit to Roy Clippinger's interests." But it said that "expenditures not readily ascertainable" would "probably add a number of thousands of dollars."

The House committee, composed of Congressman Winfield K. Denton of Indiana, chairman, and Congressmen Melvin Price and Sid Simpson of Illinois, recommends that the bridge commissioners be ousted and the bridge be turned over to Illinois or Indiana in the public interest. It also recommends that the attorneys general of Illinois and Indiana and the United States attorneys whose territory includes the bridge "take appropriate action."

And so we wonder again if the report has found its way to the office of United States Attorney Clifford Raemer in East St. Louis.

Dr. Condon Comes to St. Louis

Chancellor Shepley has met the severest test so far of his administrative courage at Washington University. He has done this in his approval of Dr. Edward U. Condon as chairman of the university's department of physics.

Dr. Condon is known as one of the world's outstanding scientific research men, identified in the history of science with atomic energy development. He is also a "controversial" figure because of a derogatory opinion from J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey when that gentleman, subsequently a federal prison inmate for payroll kickbacks, was chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee. But how little Dr. Condon's colleagues thought of that can be judged from the fact that they subsequently elected Dr. Condon president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, whose membership is reckoned into many thousands.

There is another reason for putting a high appraisal on Dr. Condon's services. If he is an academic physicist, he is also a practical man of science as demonstrated by his connections with Westinghouse Electric and Corning Glass. And when a man rises to head the United States Bureau of Standards he is a man of attainment in his field. Chancellor Shepley and the University board have acted in the best traditions of free academic inquiry by setting aside fear of criticism to bring Dr. Condon to St. Louis.

A Task for Wise Men

NATO foreign ministers have agreed to appoint a committee of three to study ways of broadening the organization's base. Whether the committee earns the right to be called the "three wise men" will depend upon who its members are and what proposals they arrive at. But there is no question that the strengthening of the Atlantic community's political and economic ties needs thoughtful examination.

Some confusion has crept into the discussion. Heretofore, those who called for making NATO more than a military alliance referred to such steps as cutting tariffs and other trade barriers, developing common political institutions, and even working toward an organic unity of government structure.

Judging from news reports of his remarks at a secret NATO session, Secretary Dulles has given the idea a new twist. He seems to be thinking not so much of strengthening the Atlantic community from within as of enlisting its members in a political and economic counter-offensive against the Soviet Union. The object would be to win over the uncommitted peoples of Africa and Asia to the Western side in what a news dispatch from Paris calls "the battle of peaceful coexistence."

One thing the three wise (or otherwise) men of NATO will want to consider is whether such a concept really responds to the widely felt demand for a more positive and constructive orientation of Western policy. A military alliance of mutual defense is necessarily negative. But it cannot be made positive merely by extending into political and economic fields the psychology of military containment.

In any case the very fact that NATO is now seriously thinking of what it can do along non-military lines is a gain. The three foreign ministers who study the problem will have an unusual opportunity for creative statesmanship.

Affluence Dept., Piggy-Bank Div.

Owners and riflers of piggy-banks generally will be interested in pondering the case of the purloined piggy-bank, if such it may be called, from the home of Ira Gershwin, the song lyric writer, in Beverly Hills. Mr. Gershwin reported to police that his home had been entered and a piggy-bank containing $300 was missing.

Maybe that's a piggy-bank in Hollywood, where the men grow taller, the women prettier, and the bankrolls fatter than they ever do in real life. Maybe $300 is standard small-change in the world of verse and chorus where the June moon covers lovers and the morning-glories twine around each door, forevermore.

But for our money that would be a full-grown hoggy-bank and exceptionally well-fed at that.

A Proper Complaint

There is a letter on this page that ought to be of interest to every resident of St. Louis county and particularly to the County Supervisor, Luman F. Matthews. For St. Louis county did take on an obligation when it assumed control of the historic Jefferson Barracks park property.

Yet as this letter shows, the county's possession has been allowed to fall into lamentable decay. To make matters worse, the county has spent taxpayers' money putting a garish modern front on an old wreck of a building which promptly was turned into a tavern.

Jefferson Barracks is one of the historic spots in the western history of the United States Army. It deserves a fate in keeping with its contribution to the winning and development of the nation. Surely, as the letter writer intimates, there are people in the St. Louis area who could plan and supervise a proper restoration of the county's Jefferson Barracks park.

The present sorry state of affairs is a reflection on everyone concerned.

How the Press Views the Nixon Candidacy

The New York Times

Though some slight element of doubt has prevailed in recent weeks, it comes as no real surprise that Mr. Nixon is willing to accept the Republican nomination for the vice presidency.

Politically speaking, therefore, the real question is whether any votes his renomination may cost the Republican party among the Republican liberals and the independents will or will not be more than offset by the number of Republican conservatives who will be attracted to the polls specifically because his name is on the ticket.

Only the election itself will answer that question. For the present, we may note that it is more or less standard procedure in American politics to attempt to achieve party unity by giving both liberals and conservatives, or Northerners and Southerners, or Easterners and Westerners, or "nationalists" and "internationalists" a top nomination on the party ticket.

Chicago Daily News

Hoping to center their fire on Nixon, Democrats have exerted pressure on the President for an early declaration concerning his running mate—a thing without parallel in American political history, so far as we can recall. Franklin Roosevelt had three Vice Presidents, but there was no disclosure of their identity in any instance until the conventions at which they were nominated.

How about turning about, now, for a little fair play? Whom does Stevenson want for Vice President? Whom does Kefauver prefer? Whom Harriman, Symington and the other candidates for the top job?

We await the answer with no expectation whatever of getting it.

The Louisville Times

We have witnessed a conclusion as foregone as any ever heard of in our politics. Vice President Nixon has announced for renomination on the ticket with President Eisenhower.

In professional political circles, everybody seems to be pleased. The Republican pros regard Mr. Nixon as one of their own, and an effective barnstormer besides. The Democrats think that he is vulnerable in an important particular. That is, they think that a host of voters, even including some Republicans, view Mr. Nixon as of considerably less than presidential stature.

We happen to take that same dim view of him ourselves. Americans today are more than usually conscious of the truth that a vice presidential nominee clearly ought to be a man of presidential stature.

Chicago Sunday Tribune

Richard Nixon's declaration that he will be available for Republican renomination as Vice President was greeted with delight by Mr. Eisenhower and with expressions of hostility from the Democrats.

Typical of these reactions was that of Paul M. Butler, the Democratic national chairman, who complained that Mr. Nixon places partisanship ahead of the bonds of national unity. What Mr. Butler is really saying is that the Democrats know, to their sorrow, that Nixon has proved an effective campaigner and an asset to his party.

It seems to be the Democratic position that Democrats should be free to throw any available rocks or mud, but that Mr. Nixon should discuss nothing derogatory to them. The simple fact is that the opposition to Mr. Nixon comes from Democrats.

The Sacramento Bee

The decision of Vice President Richard M. Nixon to seek re-election is a profoundly unfortunate development for this nation. Because of Eisenhower's recent grave illness and because of his age, that decision presents the American people with the more than ordinary possibility that in voting Republican they may be voting for Nixon as President of the United States.

An Eisenhower-Nixon ticket would not present a clear-cut opportunity for the voters to decide whether they wanted Nixon as President. Under existing circumstances such a choice would go far to nullify the electoral process as it applies to the most important office in America, and possibly in the world.

What is more, a choice like this would force those voters who want Eisenhower to take the risk of opening the White House doors to an opposite personality and differing policies.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot

This is a candidacy that raises important questions, and the fact that they are also unpleasant questions does not justify ignoring them. Mr. Eisenhower will be 66 years old when he takes the oath of office in January—if he is re-elected. With the sole exception of William Henry Harrison he will be older then than any other man was when he took the presidential oath for the first or second time (and older than Franklin D. Roosevelt was at his third and fourth inaugurations).

In these circumstances it is impossible to think of Mr. Nixon as Americans have thought of Vice Presidents, as candidates or in office, most of the time. The next Vice President ought to be a man qualified in every way, so far as that is possible to foresee, to be President.

Mr. Nixon, in our opinion, has come far. He may grow more. But prudence requires that his candidacy be considered in the light of the presidency as well as the vice presidency. In that sense his candidacy raises doubts that will have to be weighed in the circumstances of the ultimate choice.

The Milwaukee Journal

There was never any real doubt about whether Vice President Nixon desired to be a candidate for renomination. It was inconceivable that he would pass up the opportunity to be the nation's No. 2 man under circumstances that may prevail the next four years.

It was also inconceivable that President Eisenhower would "dump" Nixon in view of the latter's labors for the President and the Republican party and the President's repeated lavish praise of him.

The American voters will have plenty of time to decide whether, in view of President Eisenhower's age and health problem, they care to continue a situation in which Richard Nixon may become the next President.

The Des Moines Register

It is customary for the nominee for the presidency to select his running mate. It is unusual for a presidential candidate to state his preference for the vice presidency before he himself is nominated. It is also unusual for anyone to "come out for" the vice presidential nomination.

But the relationship between the President and the Vice President in this Administration also has been unusual. Mr. Eisenhower has trusted Nixon with many special duties not ordinarily given a Vice President.

There has been a sort of father-son relationship between Eisenhower and Nixon. The President's backing for his junior has not wavered despite considerable criticism of Nixon both from inside the G.O.P. and from the Democrats. He has been willing to overlook several unwise statements by Nixon, such as the one about the United States using troops in Indochina and the one about the "Republican Chief Justice."

Nixon's advantages at this early date would seem to be almost insuperable, and we believe the party will nominate him on the first ballot.

The Wall Street Journal

Vice President Nixon has acquired a reputation for having made the most out of a usually obscure job. Certainly he has been no Throttlebottom. Young, energetic and ambitious, he has created opportunities by offering himself as a loyal first lieutenant to the President.

But without in the least detracting from Mr. Nixon's own efforts we rather think that, even so, he would not have become the national public figure he is today without a large publicity assist from his detractors.

An example is the good marks Mr. Nixon got for his conduct during Mr. Eisenhower's illness. Mr. Nixon actually did nothing very startling. He simply behaved as people would naturally expect a Vice President to act in such circumstances.

We do know that politicians don't waste time assailing an opponent unless they respect, and even fear, his public appeal. If Mr. Nixon was as much a liability to the Republican ticket as some people say, the Democrats would be very happy to have him on it.

The Portland Oregonian

The decision was rated as politically wise in advance by the majority of 100 editors and publishers of large daily newspapers polled by Newsweek magazine early last month. Some of these have been editorially critical of Mr. Nixon on occasions. But 58 thought Mr. Nixon would help Ike's ticket; 25 thought he would hurt the ticket, and 17 thought he would neither help nor hurt.

The editor of this page expressed this opinion: "Eisenhower can win with Nixon but would win more decisively, with (1) Dewey, (2) Humphrey, or (3) Herter."

Mr. Nixon will be campaigning in a dual role: For re-election as Vice President, and to establish his worthiness to be President should fate decree it.

Lewiston (Ida.) Morning Tribune

The President's heart attack made Nixon a much more important issue than Vice Presidents normally are. Instead of announcing his answer to one of the most difficult political questions he ever faced, Mr. Eisenhower startled the whole country by putting the answer up to Nixon himself.

As the pro-Nixon Republicans rose in his defense across the nation and even the anti-Nixonites agreed that the President was dodging his clear duty in making a decision, the effect was to give the White House a nation-wide sounding board on the vice presidential issues. No concerted anti-Nixon movement could center upon some other, better qualified, potential Vice President.

Democratic party leaders around the nation probably are reconsidering today the possibility that the charming politically "naive" man in the White House may have fumbled them out of one of their best campaign issues.

The Baltimore Sun

The position of Vice President has been many different things in the American scheme. Right now it has two distinct aspects.

One, assiduously and capably developed by Mr. Nixon, has been that of diligent assistant to the President himself. Mr. Nixon is "regular." To a great many other "regular" Republicans he looks more like a Republican than his chief.

The other aspect of the vice presidency is the Vice President's role not as political assistant to the President but as potential successor to the President. But in raising this, the Democrats must contend with the fact that, more often than not, Vice Presidents stand in political contrast to the Presidents they serve.

Springfield (Mass.) Sunday Republican

Since President Eisenhower has declared that he will not undertake the usual barnstorming tours making political speeches, that duty will fall on Mr. Nixon. The temper of the campaign will depend, to a considerable degree, on how he performs it.

There are two Nixons, as to an even more conspicuous degree, there were, and still are, two Trumans. It was one Nixon who indefensibly sought to associate Adlai Stevenson with Alger Hiss. It was the other Nixon who made an admirable and modest speech on our foreign relations in New York last fall, giving great credit to a Democratic President, Woodrow Wilson.

The question now is which Nixon it proves to be who does the active campaigning this year. We hope it will be the better Nixon.

Continuation of U.S. Point IV Aid Is Strongly Approved by Senate Subcommittee After Long Study

Conservative Republicans Join Democratic Members in Recommendations — Lack of Program's Effectiveness Criticized—Shortage of Technicians Cited.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.

CONTINUATION of United States technical aid to underdeveloped countries was strongly indorsed today in a unanimous report by a Senate subcommittee which has studied the subject in Washington and abroad for the last year and a half.

Technical assistance, or the so-called Point IV program proposed by President Truman, is defined by law as "the international exchange of technical knowledge and skills designed to contribute primarily to the balanced and integrated development of the economic resources and productive capacities of economically underdeveloped areas."

It is relatively cheap and has wide approval in this country. Congress authorized technical aid expenditures for this fiscal year of $146,500,000. The Administration is seeking $142,000,000 for bilateral technical aid next year as part of the over-all $4,900,000,000 mutual security program now before Congress.

A measure of Point IV acceptance is the composition of the Foreign Relations subcommittee that approved the report. Conservative Republican Senators Hickenlooper of Iowa, Capehart of Indiana and Goldwater of Arizona agreed with Democratic Senators Mansfield of Montana, Green of Rhode Island, Fulbright of Arkansas, Kennedy of Massachusetts and Republican Senator Aiken of Vermont.

Going to Senate Monday.

In a statement accompanying the report, which will go to the Senate Monday, Mansfield said the subcommittee study seems to point up "the need for a more basic, thorough-going study of our whole foreign aid policy," as suggested several weeks ago by Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

The Administration has suggested a high-level survey of foreign aid by a non-governmental commission.

While advocating that the program be continued and strengthened the subcommittee found the technical assistance program has not been as effective as it should be. There has been, the report said, inadequate planning, a tendency to attempt to accomplish too much too soon, insufficient attention to the capacity of recipient countries to absorb aid and not enough awareness of the social and political implications of technical change. The program was found to have been of greater technical than political effectiveness.

The subcommittee said one reason why it was not recommending an expansion of the program was the shortage of American technicians and administrators. Difficulties experienced by the International Co-operation Administration and predecessor agencies in recruiting technicians were cited.

What Technicians Should be.

The Senators said the properly qualified technician should be "not only a technician but also something of a linguist, a diplomat, a teacher, a socologist, a cultural anthropologist and a missionary." In addition, he should be willing to live two to four years in an underdeveloped country, to try to learn the local language and to have a family that shares his own qualifications.

"The number of Americans who meet all of these qualifications is not large, to put it mildly," the subcommittee said.

Most of the money spent on technical aid has produced results in the national interest of the United States, the subcommittee said, it stated:

"There is no reason for the United States to be at all hesitant about justifying the technical assistance program on the basis of its real motivation; namely the national interest. Far from imposing American imperialism on underdeveloped countries, as the Communists allege, the American national interest is in fact anti-imperialistic. Attempts to use the technical assistance program as an instrument of imperialism would produce the precise opposite of the results sought.

Mutual Goals Stressed.

"This report has attempted to show that in many respects the national interest of the United States and of the underdeveloped countries coincide. So long as these countries retain freedom, independence, and economic growth as their national goals, the achievement of those goals is in our interests as well as theirs. This is the sense in which technical assistance is a mutual, co-operative undertaking promoting the enlightened self-interest of all concerned."

The subcommittee emphasized that the broader national interests of the United States require a growth in the area of human freedom. The most valuable mutual assistance which can reasonably be expected from most underdeveloped counties is a devotion to their own independence and a determination to work out their own problems, the report stated.

"If we expect them to refuse to prostitute themselves to the Soviet Union," the report said, "we must also expect them to refuse to prostitute themselves to the United States. We are false to our own traditions if we ask them to do otherwise. A strong, free and independent Asia is more important to the United States than a collection of weak dependents in the same area.

Economic Strength Vital.

The Senators said further:

"The emphasis on United States policy in Asia may have been rather too heavily military. The underlying economic and political strength is also important. In this connection it is worth recalling that the military assistance program under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization could not have made the progress it has if it had not been preceded by the economic assistance program under the Marshall plan."

They added that it seems unrealistic to talk about a "Marshall plan for Asia" because the approach required in Asia is entirely different from that needed to rebuild Europe.

The committee said it was "disturbed" by the extent of the use of private business contracts by the I.C.A. and recommended that present procedures be reviewed by I.C.A. and the State Department. There is evidence, the Senators said, that the system through which the Government contracts with private firms for the furnishing of certain types of technical aid has been used to by-pass federal salary ceilings and has increased Government costs.

Complaints Received.

Conceding that private business contracting, as well as contracting with educational institutions and philanthropic organizations has a place in the Point IV program, the subcommittee said nevertheless it had received a number of complaints about the private business contracts and had forwarded them to the Senate Committee on Government Operations for study and possible action.

The subcommittee said I.C.A.'s records of private contracts and of contractor performance were in a "highly unsatisfactory state."

Increasing Communist efforts at economic penetration of Asia and Africa heighten the urgency of the problems with which technical assistance deals but do not change the nature of the problems, the subcommittee said. These efforts, the report added, do not require the United States to do anything which would not be in the national interest if the Soviet threat did not exist.

U.N. Program Effective.

The subcommittee recommended that the United States continue its support of the United Nations technical assistance program and might justify an increase in its U.N. contribution if other U.N. nations increased their donations. The Administration is asking for $15,500,000 for U.N. technical aid for the coming year. The U.N. program was called "highly effective."

The subcommittee rejected the contention that technical aid promotes competition for United States products. It presented figures showing the United States exports much more to developed countries than to underdeveloped nations.

Further integration of I.C.A. with the Department of State was recommended. Technical assistance is administered by I.C.A. The subcommittee also recommended that the five different types of assistance under the mutual security act be reduced to three categories to bring the program in line with current conditions.

Egyptians Seem to Be Highly Pleased With U.N. Secretary's Interim Report

Hammarskjold's Actions Called Technical Victory for the Arabs.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAIRO, May 5.

EGYPTIANS appear to be highly pleased over the interim report by Dag Hammarskjold to the United Nations Security Council. It furthers their professed aim of peaceful relations with Israel. They also believe they have scored several technical victories over the Israelis.

The U.N. Secretary General filed his interim report Thursday. He worked on his final report in Rome and then started back by air to New York where he is due to arrive tomorrow.

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar editorialized that the Arab people welcomed Hammarskjold's report with "genuine gratification" and that "the threat of war, while not altogether eliminated, has become considerably less imminent."

In obtaining new cease-fire pledges between Israel and each of its Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon — Hammarskjold brought about a strong reaffirmation of the 1949 general armistice agreements as the basis for Arab-Israeli boundary relations. This can be counted a victory for the Arabs because Israel has long been arguing that the armistices are outmoded and unworkable and should be replaced by permanent peace treaties.

Territory Demand.

But peace treaties that gave new sanction to the present boundaries would conflict with the almost universal Arab demand for major territorial concessions before they will make peace with Israel.

Another technical Arab victory resulted from the subsidiary Egyptian-Israeli agreement to establish a string of United Nations observation posts along each side of the armistice demarcation line that separates the Egyptian-held Gaza strip from Israel. Mobile U.N. patrols also are to be used when necessary.

Egypt has permitted U.N. observation posts on its own side of the line for some time. Israel has shown a preference for bilateral rather than U.N. border arrangements and has argued that U.N. observers might give away frontier defense secrets either unintentionally or deliberately. Israelis sometimes have confined U.N. observers to their headquarters before undertaking one of their retaliatory raids across the border and also have jammed the radio frequencies used by U.N. personnel that still might be roaming the area. This was justified on grounds of military security.

Egypt may have scored an additional advantage if there are further border incidents like those of the last few years. When Egyptians cross the demarcation line into Israel, Egypt usually contends that it has no responsibility for the infiltrators—that they merely wanted to harvest the crops on their former land or perhaps for sentimental reasons wanted to pick an orange from a tree where they used to live or, at any rate, the infiltration was not at the direction of the Egyptian government.

Fedayeen Raids.

Even in the case of the Fedayeen commando raids of last November and again last month, Egypt does not admit the raiders were trained and directed by the Egyptian army, although Radio Cairo has acclaimed the success of the April raid as a reprisal against Israel for the shelling of Gaza earlier in the month.

Israel disputes this interpretation. It insists that the great majority of the infiltration is under Egyptian government direction as part of a studied effort to terrorize Israeli citizens and impede settlement of new sections of Israeli territory.

Israeli raids across the frontier, on the other hand, generally are admittedly military operations. Israeli leaders describe such expeditions as the normal reaction of a more civilized community to the harrassment by members of a less civilized community.

By restoring the armistice agreement between the two countries to its former stature, the Hammarskjold mission appears to reinforce the prohibition against the organized Israeli attacks but to leave the Egyptian infiltrators relatively free of restriction. The armistice agreement outlaws any crossing of the border by military "or para military" forces but says nothing about unauthorized raids by civilians. Proving that a raid is government authorized can be a difficult matter. As can be seen, the new cease-fire agreements were aimed at immediate reduction of border tension rather than at the basic issues involved in the Palestine crisis.

The Arabs continue to demand major territorial concessions from Israel, repatriation or compensation of the 900,000 Arab refugees who fled from Jewish-held sections of Palestine in 1948, and internationalization of Jerusalem.

Against Israel Policy.

Each of these aims runs squarely against Israeli policy. Israel refuses to give up one inch of territory, contending it will not give up land it won in a war that the Arabs started. Israel also refuses to take back any refugees, on the ground they would constitute a potential fifth column, and insists on holding the new city of Jerusalem, where Israel has established its capital.

The Arab position on territorial changes is that the old 1947 partition lines should be restored. But in private conversations, many Arab leaders add that the partition boundaries would have to be modified to give Egypt a "defensible land link" with the other Arab states. The 1947 partition gave the Arabs only a narrow corridor across the Negeb, Palestine's southern desert.

Another difficulty is that the Arabs themselves are seriously split over the demand to internationalize Jerusalem. Jordan now hold the old city of Jerusalem. The "west bankers"—residents of the portion west of the River Jordan—and the 500,000 refugees in Jordan insist on keeping Jerusalem as a Jordanian city. These two groups make up two-thirds of Jordan's population.

There was no immediate explanation for the peculiar language Hammarskjold used to describe the cease-fire pledges he obtained from Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. He told of the Israeli-Egyptian agreement and then continued:

"Negotiations for similar reciprocal assurances unconditionally to observe a cease-fire, with a reservation as to self-defense, have been conducted with the parties to the other three armistice agreements. The negotiations have in all cases been concluded with positive result. The texts of the messages exchanged will be annexed to my final report."

New Cease-Fire.

Later he referred to the new cease-fire as "the cease-fire I have aimed at."

Nowhere did he say in so many words that he had obtained an unconditional cease-fire from the other three Arab states.

One of Hammarskjold's aids, asked why such language had been used, insisted that his reply be off the record and unattributable and be considered only as his own personal opinion. After that buildup, his statement was that the messages exchanged with the various countries would speak for themselves.

Observers here believe that careful wording was necessary to avoid putting Syria into the position of promising not to begin shooting if Israel goes ahead with its plan to divert water from the river Jordan. Syria has said repeatedly that it would consider Israel's resumption of work on the job an act of aggression and would fight to put a stop to it.

Syria reportedly first demanded a pledge from Israel not to resume work on the project as a condition to signing a cease-fire pledge. If this actually happened and Syria subsequently backed down, it is not yet clear what persuasion was brought to bear.

United States diplomatic sources here discounted a story published by the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram that the United States government would use "diplomatic or other measures" to forbid Israel from diverting the river without prior Arab consent.

A Big Program Of Foreign Aid Is Not Likely

through that means. The member countries are Great Britain, Iraq, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. The Dulles-inspired pact was designed to create a "northern tier" of nations between the Soviet Union and more southerly nations. The Kremlin upset this design by jumping over the barrier by arranging to sell Czechoslovakian fighter planes to Egypt.

The Administration has not revived the Stassen-Dulles plan to use the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization for economic aid. One great drawback to this plan, it is said, is that Japan, whose economic future is vital to the free world, is not a member of this group. Some use, however, may be found for increased co-operation in the British-sponsored Colombo Plan, which includes many important countries in that region.

United Nations.

The best bet for economic aid on a multi-lateral basis is greater American participation in the United Nations program. The United States has been the largest contributor to United Nation agencies and, if congressional opposition could be overcome, it would be a quickly adaptable organization. Yesterday, however, the President said that while the U.N. was theoretically the best body to put aid where it is needed the major American effort would be on a bilateral or an association basis.

This is an election year and many Senators and Representatives are looking for effective explanations to the voters for their stand on foreign aid. In one respect it is an exceptional election year because Senator George is up for re-election and his most formidable opponent is former Gov. Herman Talmadge, who is going over the backroads of Georgia shouting that the senior Senator is voting billions of dollars to foreigners when the money could be better spent for schools and hospitals right down here for good Americans.

The 78-year-old Senator has never been a zealous advocate of foreign economic aid but has co-operated closely with the White House on other international questions. Because of his long seniority in Congress and his sonorous voice in conferences and floor debate, he is highly regarded by other Senators.

Lack of Enthusiasm.

His lack of enthusiasm for the pending program, which the President says represents the minimum requirements of the American interest in world security, has been reflected in the doubtful views of the White House and in Congress. George is likely to be in a bitter fight with Talmadge, and neither President Eisenhower nor George's Senate colleagues want to embarrass their old friend.

The proposed commission on a long-range plan would take George off the political hook. It would also give other Senators and Representatives a defendable explanation for supporting the present "minimum" legislation.

No one can foretell accurately just how far the Kremlin will go in its new economic and political offensive, how many contracts will be actually signed, how many loans actually made, how many arms actually delivered. There is enough authentic information, however, to indicate that the Soviet foreign policy has radically changed since the death of Stalin and it will only be a question of time when the United States must change its policy to meet Communist competition in the trouble spots of the world.

AEC to Handle Own Mediation.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —President Eisenhower yesterday approved a recommendation that the Atomic Energy Commission take back from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service the handling of Atomic energy labor-management disputes. The panel for handling such disputes originally was set up in the AEC but later was shifted to the mediation service.

West-Red Deal On Middle East Being Studied

Policy Concessions by Both Sides Required for Agreement.

By DREW MIDDLETON
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

LONDON, May 5.

THE bare outlines of a possible understanding reconciling the conflicting interests of the Soviet Union and of the United States and the United Kingdom in the Middle East have become apparent here this week.

Diplomatic efforts to achieve an understanding are still in the discussion stage. Success would rest basically on policy concessions by both sides.

The Soviet Union would recognize the vital economic interests of Britain and the United States in the area. The Western powers would accept the Soviet Union as a power vitally concerned in that area because of the proximity of Middle Eastern air bases, present and future, to oil fields and the industrial areas of southeast Russia.

Easier Atmosphere.

The understanding now under discussion does not provide for an end to the simmering conflict between Israel and the Arab states. But if it developed, it is pointed out, the understanding would create an easier atmosphere favoring a peaceful settlement.

In the last two months both Britain and the United States have obtained extensive information about the Soviet Union's views on the Middle East and especially on the Baghdad pact.

Soviet spokesmen have stressed that their concern over the pact centered on the prospect that the United States would build large new air force bases in Iran and Iraq. These two nations, with Pakistan, Turkey and Britain are members of the defensive alliance.

The Soviet government feared that the United States would join the pact ultimately and enhance its military power by airfield construction.

But the United States Government, although it has confirmed its interest in developing the economic aid aspects of the Baghdad pact and supported its defensive military objectives, has not joined the alliance. This has encouraged Soviet leaders toward acceptance of the pact as a non-aggressive instrument.

However the Soviet Union still is in the dark about the construction of airfields. Any indication given privately or publicly that the United States does not intend to proceed with their construction would boost the prospects for an understanding, it is thought.

British Explanation.

On the other side of the picture, Soviet leaders have been given an authoritative picture by the British of the importance of the Middle East to this country and to the United States.

It has been made clear that Britain would, and the United States might, act to prevent any interruption of oil supplies from that area. At the same time the non-aggressive character of the Baghdad pact has been emphasized.

This does not mean, as was reported here, that the two Western powers mean to put the Baghdad pact on ice. The Foreign Office was quick to repudiate this suggestion.

"We stand by the pact in all its respects and welcome the increased support for its aims and activities recently given by the United States Government," a spokesman declared today.

But it is conceded that the character of the pact has changed and that economic assistance, not arms is now its principal business.

Britain is committed to supply arms to Iraq and this supply will continue. The United Kingdom is not going to fall in with Soviet suggestions for a general bar on all arms shipments to the Middle East.

It is probable, however, that in pursuit of an understanding with the Soviet Union, the British government would refrain from increasing military aid to the pact powers. This would occur, naturally, only if the Soviet Union exercised similar restrain on the sale of arms by the Communist bloc countries to Egypt, Syria and other non-pact countries of the Middle East.

27,000 Involved in H-Tests That Will Cost $150,000,000

Preparation of Pacific Proving Grounds Under Way Since October 1954—22 Ships, 57 Aircraft Taking Part.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

ABOARD U.S.S. MT. McKINLEY, Off Eniwetok, Sunday, May 6.

IT IS ESTIMATED that the current series of nuclear tests under the code name of "Redwing" will cost about $150,000,000 exclusive of the cost of fissionable materials, of equipment provided by the services for use in the test and salaries of the scientists of the Livermore and Los Alamos laboratories who planned the technical side of the tests and are participating in them. Approximately 27,000 persons, including supporting personnel, are involved.

The Castle tests in March and April, 1954, used 23,000 people and cost about $100,000,000. The cost to the Atomic Energy Commission of the current tests, which is included in the larger figure, will be about $45,000,000. This is about 30 per cent more than the AEC's costs in the Castle tests.

Vast Preparation Effort.

The effort that has gone into developing the proving ground and preparing for the test series is hardly credible until it has been seen. Here on lonely coral and sand atolls 4500 miles southwest of the Pacific coast the United States has moved in with its Cokes and orange ades, its bulldozers, its ships and its airplanes. Air strips have been built, massive bunkers, some 12 feet thick, have been built, causeways thrown between islands, structures built and aligned by transit test instrumentation purposes, roads graded, heavy equipment moved by LSTs from island to island and community needs provided for at the same time.

Joint Task Force Seven, which will conduct the Redwing tests, was organized on a permanent basis by the Joint Chiefs of Staff March 31, 1953. Earlier tests had been carried out by temporary task forces, which were disbanded, and the knowledge and skills mostly lost as a result.

Assigned Responsibilities.

The Navy is the executive agent for the Defense Department for the operation. The task force consists of elements from the Army, Air Force and AEC. The Army operates the military base support facilities and provides transportation and sea safety patrols. The Air Force provides the air lift inside the proving grounds and performs the air missions in connection with the test. The AEC scientific group, almost entirely civilian, is responsible for all the weapons effects tests.

For the operation the Army has supplied 550 vehicles and signal equipment worth about $2,000,000. The Navy has furnished 22 ships, 31 boats of various types and 57 aircraft. The make up of the aircraft for the test is interesting. There are three of the giant B-52 bombers, one of which will drop the H-bomb, a test explosion now named Cherokee. In addition there are one B-36, four B-47s, three B-50s, and one B-36 Matador pilotless bomber.

Most of the tactical aircraft will be in the air at various positions when the test takes place.

Proving Ground Expanded.

The proving ground originally included only the Eniwetok atoll. This created considerable difficulty for H-bomb tests because so much of the personnel had to be removed when a high yield detonation was set off. It was decided to add the uninhabited Bikini atoll to the proving ground area, primarily for thermonuclear tests. This allows the two main islands of the Eniwetok atoll, Eniwetok and Parry, to be permanently occupied, provided with semi-permanent facilities, while the big tests take place on the Bikini atoll, 180 miles away.

Small tests are conducted on the smaller uninhabited islands of Eniwetok atoll, more convenient in regard to distance from the main base. Eniwetok atoll has a lagoon of 350 square miles surrounded by a necklace of 37 small islands. These have only 2.8 square miles of land. Bikini atoll has fewer islands than Eniwetok and surrounds a lagoon of about 250 square miles. The small extent of land has made it necessary to dredge artificial islands for firing platforms and some explosions have been made from anchored 500-ton navy barges.

Construction Difficult.

Construction has been difficult, with all workers recruited in the Hawaiian islands or the States for short terms. There is no fresh water and all water for drinking and bathing must be distilled. The contracting engineers have devised concrete made with salt water and coral that has proved entirely satisfactory.

Preliminary planning for Redwing was started in June 1954 and the first working party arrived Oct. 12, 1954, at the island of Enyu, where the Cherokee detonation will take place. Work has continued since at an increasing volume and speed until April 30, 1956, when it was substantially finished. The present series of tests will include both very low yield weapons for tactical use and very high yield thermonuclear weapons.

Great progress was made in the comparatively small weapons test last year in Nevada and it is desired to exploit and extend these tests. It has been two years since a thermonuclear test has been conducted and the scientists of the Los Alamos scientific laboratory and University of California radiation laboratory at Livermore have exploited those developments theoretically since that time. They have now, however, reached the stage where the state of understanding must be checked by actual detonation of devices based on that knowledge.

Interest in Yield.

The yield of the March 1, 1954, detonation was about twice as great as had been anticipated, releasing the energy equivalent to 15,000,000 tons of TNT. The Los Alamos laboratory is especially interested in the yield of the thermonuclear bomb to be dropped in this test. The Defense Department is especially interested in the fall-out of a high-powered weapon exploded in the air. If multimegaton weapons spread radioactive poison on friend and foe alike it will not be possible to use them close to friendly territory.

It is anticipated that serious fall-out will not extend beyond 20 miles from the detonation if the fire ball does not touch the ground to pull up into the stem and cloud thousands, or perhaps millions of tons, of vaporized earth and larger particles.

New St. Louis Charter Needed For City Changed Since 1914

Under its provisions, the city's administrative authority would have been centralized in the Mayor. The Mayor would have had the right to appoint all department heads in the new government. He also would have received effective budgetary control powers.

The provisions which most alarmed the politicians would have abolished the office of Comptroller, and established a new city department of finance in which the offices of collector of revenue, license collector and city treasurer would have been merged. The latter three offices were, and still are, among the major "patronage" offices remaining in the city government. Each is occupied by an elective politician-official.

Fight for Patronage.

Although primarily fighting to save these patronage offices, the politicians waged their public fight against the proposed new charter by opposing a provision which would have given the Board of Aldermen authority to levy a 1 per cent earnings tax. It was charged during that campaign that some political leaders attempted to mislead voters by representing the new charter itself imposed an earnings tax of 1 per cent, or double the then existing tax levied under legislative authority.

The earnings tax issue cannot be raised justifiably in this campaign, as the city voters subsequently adopted a charter amendment in 1954, giving the city home-rule authority to levy an earnings tax on a permanent basis, without legislative authorization.

Despite the 1950 setback, the movement for a new charter was resumed in 1953 after the Citizens Finance Committee again recommended this as the most effective means of strengthening city government. Its report asserted that "charter revision and administrative reorganization offer the most promising sources of economy and increased efficiency in the St. Louis city government."

Tucker Elected.

The election of Tucker as Mayor in 1953 also gave impetus to the movement. After taking office, Tucker announced four major goals of his administration: passage of the Plaza bond issue, renewal of the earnings tax to put city finances on a sound basis, approval of a huge civic improvement bond issue, and a new charter.

Having achieved his first three objectives, Tucker began a long battle to get the Board of Aldermen to enact an ordinance for the election of a board of freeholders to revise the charter. His bill was sidetracked by the aldermanic legislation committee, which finally proposed a series of charter amendments in an effort to forestall the election of freeholders.

It was during this phase of the fight that the politicians disclosed to the Post-Dispatch the real reason for opposing a new charter. One of the amendments recommended by the aldermanic committee would have removed 2900 "unskilled" city employes from the city's civil service system and restored these jobs as political spoils.

City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, declared more patronage should be turned over to the politicians. "It is their life blood," he said. "It is neeessary for maintenance of the two-party system."

Public opinion, aroused by the politicians' patronage grab, forced them to abandon this proposed charter amendment, and the Board of Aldermen reluctantly approved the Mayor's bill calling for Tuesday's freeholder election. The battle now shifts to the polls, where the voters will decide who is to be entrusted with this vital task.

The board of freeholders may recommend an entire new charter or they can propose specific amendments to the present charter. Their proposals must be submitted to St. Louis voters for their approval.

PENTAGON NAMES MAKER OF B-52 PART THAT FAILED

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —The Defense Department last night identified Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, as the makers of certain electrical equipment which had to be replaced on B-52 planes.

(A New York Times dispatch Thursday said the component causing trouble was a flywheel in an alternator in the electrical system.)

It was indicated that the component originally produced for the B-52s by Thompson had been accepted after passing tests but subsequently, after one of the B-52s was involved in an accident, the Air Force drafted new specifications for a component which Thompson is producing and which corrected the trouble.

BRITISH TROOPS FIND LARGE MUNITIONS CACHE IN CYPRUS

NICOSIA, Cyprus, May 5 (AP)—British troops today found a large cache of arms, ammunition and explosives in some beehives near two villages 20 miles from Lanarka. The soldiers found the cache after receiving an anonymous tip.

A curfew that had been clamped on the area was lifted lated in the day.

The British authorities said today's haul was the third major find of hidden arms. They said their present search for weapons is the most thorough since rebels began their campaign to unite this British colonial island with Greece.

Army Chief Ends Tour.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, returned here by air today from an official tour of Europe. Taylor, who started the tour April 17, visited Iceland, Germany, France, Spain, Norway and Britain.

BRITISH VESSEL REPORTED HIT BY CHIANG PLANES

LONDON, May 5 (UP) — The Communist Chinese radio said today that Nationalist Chinese jet planes bombed and strafed a British freighter which was stranded off the Chinese mainland.

A Peiping broadcast heard here said eight American-built F-84 Sabrejets of the Nationalist air force attacked the freighter Nigelock yesterday. It did not mention damage nor casualties. It said the vessel was "stranded" near the mouth of the Min river in the Fukien coastal area directly opposite Formosa and the Nationalist chain of offshore islands. According to the broadcast, one Nationalist jet was damaged by Communist anti-aircraft fire from the mainland.

STASSEN SAYS HE HAS NO WISH TO BE VICE PRESIDENT

LONDON, May 5 (AP)—Harold Stassen said last night he had no ambition to be drafted as Republican vice-presidential candidate if the San Francisco convention becomes deadlocked.

President Eisenhower's special adviser on disarmament was asked the question by a British reporter on the British Broadcasting Corp. television program called "Press Conference."

Stassen said he expected the Republican ticket to be same as it was four years ago—Eisenhower and Nixon.

ARABS SHOCKED BY SOVIET PLEA, ALLEN TESTIFIES

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —Congressmen have been told Russia's call for a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israel dispute comes as a shock to some of the Arab world.

"Prior to that time," Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen told the House Foreign Affairs Committee, "the Arab states had thought that they could depend upon Soviet support for their position regardless of what the situation was.

"It has come as a considerable surprise to them and they are still reacting from it in a somewhat uncertain and, some of them, in a somewhat shocked manner."

He referred to Russia's April 17 announcement of readiness to co-operate with the United Nations in seeking peaceful settlement of Israeli-Arab troubles.

Allen, the ranking United States specialist on the Near East, and other Administration officials testified April 20-26 in closed sessions of the committee. Security-cleared transcripts of their testimony were made available today.

Hartley Writes Gentle Satire on Human Nature

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

L. P. HARTLEY

A PERFECT WOMAN, by L. P. Hartley. (Knopf, 363 pgs., $3.95)

ON Page 11 of L. P. Hartley's novel, "A Perfect Woman," the author says of his central character: Isabel Eastwood "knew the nemesis of the dream-fed, of Mme. Bovary and Hedda Gabler; she knew what was likely to happen when a woman of slightly superior social standing, decidedly superior brains and greatly superior imaginative capacity married a dullish man and lived in the provinces, and she was on guard against it."

The novel tells how and why she lowers her guard and what happens to herself and several others as a consequence. It is an absorbing story, gently but plainly satirical, and an apt commentary on everybody's proneness to self-deception.

It all starts when Harold Eastwood, the "dullish" husband acquires a new client in the person of a famous novelist named Alec Goodrich. This Goodrich is a careless sort of fellow who badly needs advice in handling his income tax. Harold, an expert in this field, is prepared to give it for a price and Goodrich through this connection becomes a visitor to the Eastwood suburban residence not far from London.

In no time at all Goodrich gets to know Isabel a little better than she knows herself. For her part Isabel is not only on guard against sentimental self-indulgence and the lure of glamorous associations that Goodrich might offer but is also well fortified against straight-line seduction. Goodrich, as it happens, is much too shrewd to try any such standard maneuver. He suggests, instead, that Isabel can be of great assistance to him as a writer by providing him with a sympathetic spiritual support.

ISABEL is quite susceptible to this appeal. She had read Alec's novels and she admires them tremendously; but she detects a certain weakness in all of them. His important male characters are always frustrated and defeated by his female characters, a fact which leads Isabel to believe that Alec has been woefully unfortunate in his private and personal relations with women. Her compassion is stirred but this is scarcely enough to make her feel inclined to interfere in his life. Then it occurs to her that Alec is not just another human being; he is an artist, a rare and privileged agent of a high culture whose needs should demand a much greater response than mere human sympathy.

So one thought leads to another, thoughts are translated into deeds and Isabel, despite all her elaborate defenses, becomes Alec's mistress and "inspiration." As it turns out she is correct in believing that Alec needs her. He does indeed and he uses her very effectively as material for his newest novel.

But the Isabel that Alec describes in the novel is not the image she has of herself; and realization of the contrast between the two submits Isabel to a psychological experience that only the strongest character can survive. Isabel does survive. She is a strong character and a sympathetic one, despite her tendency to glamorize the commonplace yearnings of the flesh.

OTHER characters and other incidents are involved in the narrative line. The incidents are quite sufficient to bring a steady pace and a shocking climax to the story, and the characters are all persuasively drawn and strongly particularized. Mr. Hartley is quite adroit in taking the skin off his people and putting it back again without doing any permanent damage. His humor is penetrating without being vitriolic except in the case of the witch-like Elspeth, the long-time mistress of Alec Goodrich, who tries to undo everybody and partly succeeds.

"A Perfect Woman" then, fulfills all the purposes of satire and provides, at the same time, a tight and complicated plot without leading the reader to the extremities of disgust and disillusionment.

HISTORY

Britain's Downhill Slide

BRITAIN BETWEEN THE WARS (1918-1940), by Charles Loch Mowat (University of Chicago Press, 694 pgs., $6).

RICHARD W. LYMAN

HISTORY has a habit of creeping up on us; the decades between the wars are now well on their way through that nebulous transition from "current events" to "history." Prof. Mowat's book helps the process along substantially. His is the first real historical treatment of this rather confused and unhappy period in British development.

Heretofore there have been memoirs, polemical accounts designed to score political points, and an occasional journalist's version, more or less acute but scarcely claiming to be at all definitive. Dr. Mowat has now produced a first-rate book—balanced, perceptive and readable. He has, in fact, given the practicing writer of recent history an object lesson in how to do his job.

This is history-in-the-round. No significant aspect of British life in the troubled 'Twenties and 'Thirties is left out; the architecture of London subway stations is there, and so are the social vagaries of the flappers and the cafe society set. But so, also, is an absorbing account of the downhill slide to World War II, and an analysis in depth of Britain's chronic inter-war problem of mass unemployment.

THE book is long, as it would have to be to cover its subject so thoroughly. At times, the statistical evidence presented may prove somewhat indigestible to the general reader; some of it can be safely skipped without losing any of the sense of the author's skillful interpretation.

Here and there Prof. Mowat allows himself a telling, epigrammatic summation: concerning the last agonies of disillusionment with appeasement, in the spring and summer of 1939, for instance:

"There was death in the air; in trying to avert it the British Government (and the French) walked slowly, as in a trance, towards it."

Or, more caustically, concerning Mussolini's legions in Ethiopia:

"Meanwhile, the Italians were succeeding rapidly in their campaign against Haile Selassie's ill-trained levies, starved of arms and supplies. The spraying of poison gas from Italian airplanes proved to be a quick means of bringing victory to the forces of civilization over barbarism."

THE book rests on a truly amazing breadth of reading and study. Its raw materials range from reports of parliamentary debates and the findings of official commissions of inquiry, through the special studies of economists, sociologists and political scientists, to contemporary pamphlets, periodicals, even novels and plays. How Prof. Mowat, who is a young man, has done it all may well fill his colleagues in the historical profession with mixed feelings of awe and despair.

The reader, anxious to know more about how Britain gradually shifted from laissez-faire to the welfare state, or how the British, after so many fumbles and failures in the 'Twenties and 'Thirties, managed to pull themselves together for their heroic and lone stand of 1940-41, has now a wise, reliable, and at the same time entertaining guide in the person of Mr. Mowat.

Toynbee Has Penetrating Critic in Geyl

DEBATES WITH HISTORIANS, by Pieter Geyl. (Philosophical Library, 241 pgs., $7.50.)

A. MERVYN DAVIES

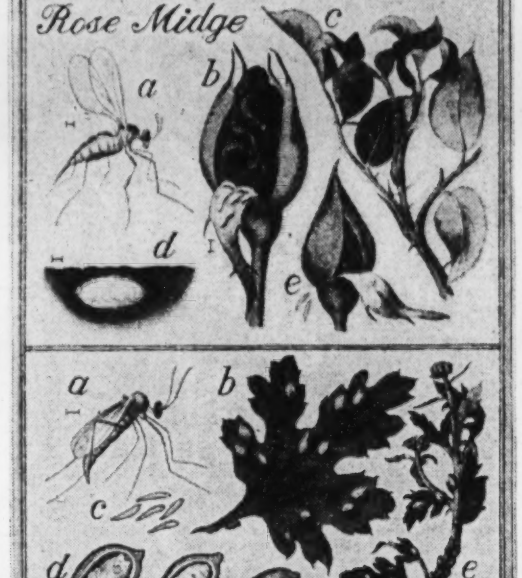
THIS is not a book for the general reader but it is certainly one that all historians and all history lovers should know about. And if you happen to be one of those who have read Arnold Toynbee's "A Study of History," whether in its full 10 volume length or in its condensed form, you owe it to yourself to read Prof. Geyl's penetrating criticism of the Toynbee system and theories, which forms the subject of four essays in this book.

Probably nobody has subjected Mr. Toynbee to more effective criticism than Prof. Geyl. That is his specialty as a historian, to criticize the historical method and theory of his fellow historians, both past and present. He himself is one of the most eminent historians in Europe. As Professor of Modern History in the University of Utrecht, most of his work has been in the field of Netherlands history but he made a big reputation for himself in recent years with his brilliant "Napoleon For and Against," which was the fruit of his wartime internment in Buchenwald.

History may not exactly be the bunk that Henry Ford I is alleged to have called it, but certainly its meaning depends vastly on who is writing it. No two historians have the same method, or the same approach. And even the best of them can trip themselves up — usually by displaying bias or by trying to over-simplify it.

At least, that is the conclusion to which the reader is almost inescapably driven as he reads Geyl's very skilful dissection of writers as famous as Ranke, Michelet, Carlyle and Macaulay, and, in an essay on the American Civil War, of J. G. Randall.

Each of the thirteen essays of which this book consists is illuminating, and the result is a valuable and fascinating contribution to historiography.



"Mary, Mary, so unwary, how does your garden grow? With Chrysanthemum midges, slugs and lowbugs, and millipedes all in a row." For the average weekend gardener who has to find the answer to this one, there is a book which is designed to help him solve many of his problems. It is "The Gardener's Bug Book," which has been completely rewritten and revised by its author, Cynthia Westcott (Doubleday, $7.50.) This handbook on garden pests and their control contains information on 1100 varieties of pests, samples of which are shown above.

The German Soldiers' Hell

THE CROSS OF IRON, by Willi Heinrich. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., 456 pgs., $4.50.)

CARL R. BALDWIN

DEFEATED armies and lost causes have few heroes. In "Cross of Iron," Corporal Rolf Steiner and his comrades fight brilliantly and bravely against impossible odds in the Kuban bridgehead. They fall and are forgotten but are heroes nevertheless, their chronicler insists, because "heroism begins where the meaninglessness of the sacrifice remains the last, the only message the dead can leave behind."

Looking objectively now at World War II, it seems incredible that the Germans, fighting without hope, hung on as long as they did. Major Kiesel, the philosopher of "The Cross of Iron," describes the plight of the German soldier this way: "Our men no longer have any ideals. They're not fighting for world freedom or the culture of the West. They're not fighting for the kind of government they want. They're fighting for nothing but their naked lives, for their bedeviled, unfortunate flesh."

Author Willi Heinrich, veteran of five serious wounds and 8000 Russian miles, was one of the unsung men who became lost in the vast landscapes of the U.S.S.R., and finally were beaten down. His story, written nights while he worked days in a delicatessen, set West Germans on their ears when it was first published. Nationalists screamed foul, condemning it for its brutal honesty. But German literary men immediately acclaimed it.

A GREAT story teller, Heinrich (with an able assist from the translators in the English version) grabs the reader by the scruff of the neck and thrusts him into the savage action.

No one can soon forget the story of Steiner's patrol, trapped miles behind advancing Russian lines, fighting its way back through untracked wilderness. The encounter with the Russian women soldiers and the awful execution meted to the German sentry who left his post to commit rape is one of the most unusual war tales ever told.

Heinrich handles his material expertly. His balance is as certain as that of a wire walker. He squeezes the last bit of breathless drama from each scene and at the exact climactic moment switches to another. His Rolf Steiner, who is both repellent and attractive, is as complex and complete a man as ever issued from a written page.

The book reaches its climax in the incredible assault by Steiner and his men on a huge eight-story factory strongly held by Russians. Some of the best writing is here. Memories which whirl uninvited through Schnurrburt's mind as he and Steiner haul down the Russian flag provide a foreboding of death. The savagery mounts as Lt. Triebig murders one of his own men and a frantic German sergeant runs in blind frenzy across a darkened factory room over writhing bodies of wounded comrades, who wildly curse and grab at his legs, knowing he is abandoning them to Russian bayonets.

STEINER writes his own epitaph as a fighting man in his final face-to-face encounter with the Russians, a group he surprises in an artillery observation post on the top floor of the factory:

"He saw the masklike planes of their faces as they turned, had time to observe the drawing-in movements of their necks and arms, and then he pressed the trigger. The lifeless steel in his hands changed into a roaring, jerking creature that sent the bodies of the Russians spinning as though an invisible lash had struck them. Steiner wondered at how silently they died. Like animals, he thought, and lowered his gun. He felt sick."

D. A. Shocks With Facts On Big Crime

THE MAN WHO ROCKED THE BOAT, Wm. J. Keating, with Richard Carter. (Harper and Brothers, 296 pgs., $3.95.)

R. R. HACKFORD

MOST of us have a comfortable feeling about the protection against crime our various police agencies provide. We seem secure as we read about continuing arrests, prosecutions and convictions of numerous criminals, but this appearance of effective law enforcement may be deceptive. Wm. J. Keating's new book, "The Man Who Rocked the Boat," is a startling document proving that big crime often escapes the punishment it deserves, because of the lethargy or corruption within enforcement agencies.

As assistant district attorney in New York, Keating learned directly that political expediency and public interest are major determinants of the enthusiasm with which the police and the District Attorney pursue different crimes. A certain waterfront murder produced only apathy and extreme reluctance even to investigate. Keating alone would not give up; and eventually three mobsters went to prison.

When Keating left public office to serve as counsel on the staff of the New York anti-crime committee, it turned out to be quite embarrassing to the law enforcement agencies. This "boat rocker" reached the peak of unpopularity with the DA's office when he publicized a hushed-up wire tap raid. The law took revenge by sending Keating to jail on grounds of contempt — he refused to identify his informants. Meanwhile, the wire-tappers went free.

BILL KEATING got into murder, rackets and the sensation of Serge Rubenstein's death. Keating was impulsive, stubborn and awkward; he believed when all else fails exposure to the light of public opinion still brings justice in America. He exposed.

This book is recommended either for excitement or shock. It is a factual report that has the pace and interest of a fast novel. The revelations are enough to frighten honest citizens; and honest citizens would do well to read.

Picture of India

Cynthia Bowles's Warm, Understanding Story

AT HOME IN INDIA, by Cynthia Bowles. (Harcourt Brace and Co., 178 pgs., $3.00.)

CYNTHIA BOWLES

"THE purpose of this book," writes Cynthia Bowles, "is twofold. First, I write because I wish to share, as best I can, my experiences in India with you. I hope I will be able to show you a picture of India as I saw it. I hope you will be able to feel that my friends are your friends.

"Second, I write in the hope that you will conclude, as I do, that my Indian friends are much like boys and girls in America, and indeed all over the world. I believe that an awareness of the great similarities between us and all people, rather than of the superficial differences, is one of our greatest hopes for peace in the distrustful world of today."

Miss Bowles, the very young daughter of Chester Bowles, former United States Ambassador to India, fulfills her purpose magnificently. She went to India when she was 15 years old; now she is barely 20. Most of the book—letters and a diary—was written at the age of 16 and 17, but it is not a children's book.

Intelligent high school students should find its pages fascinating—but it is an adult book, written with disarming simplicity. (Who was it said children are complex, that simplicity is achieved with age and wisdom?)

PRECISELY because Cynthia Bowles is a schoolgirl of no great intellectual pretensions—though obviously a brilliant and unusual girl—what she has to say she says clearly, and with the ring of authenticity. She tells the story of human beings and some of their problems, as she saw the people, with warm sympathy, and understood the problems, at the individual human level. She does not pretend to know everything, to have all the answers.

But how well she sees! And how close she managed to get to the Indian people in two years.

She lived in villages, cleaned drains, washed dirty babies, nursed sick children, caught trachoma herself — and was cured—and exposed herself to all sorts of diseases, drinking dirty well water, going barefoot, dressing as Indians dress, sharing their lives, in school and in their homes. She worked as a volunteer nurse, and had become so fascinated with the Indian people that when her father was recalled, Cynthia Bowles stayed on, visiting first one family and then another. She felt at home because she loved the people and they, obviously, loved her.

Now she is completing college and public health nursing training in the United States so that she may return to India and continue the work she began there when her father was Ambassador.

More than anything else, "At Home in India" exhibits the way of looking at the world which, unfortunately, most adults never learn, but which Cynthia Bowles knows very well. No doubt her father and mother helped, but it must be something everyone finds out — or doesn't find out—for himself.

CYNTHIA BOWLES does not romanticize about India. She sees the faults of the people, their limitations, sometimes their downright ignorance and prejudices—but she also sees their virtues. And most of all she sees them whole, as human beings like herself.

"People live differently in India and America," she says on the last page. "They work differently and play different games. American standards of health, education and agriculture have little application in India at present. Even the values of right and wrong, good and bad in one culture cannot always be applied to the other.

"These differing outside appearances, these differing standards and ways of living and doing things, and even of thinking, often appear as insurmountable barriers in the way of communication, of understanding and of friendship. But is there not something, besides the mere physical fact of our all being human, more basic and more important that is shared between all peoples regardless of the culture to which they belong? Are there not certain universal values and emotions which are common to us all? . . ."

That is the spirit which you see at work as you follow Cynthia Bowles through India, working, playing, going to school—learning to know people. It is the spirit which makes her book—which is not a slick, professional, or even clever work—something touched with greatness.

DIVERSITY MARKS SPAULDING'S ART

One-Man Exhibit Opens at Artists Guild—Works Described.

The one-man show of Warren Spaulding's drawings and paintings, which opens today at St. Louis Artists Guild, 812 Union boulevard, is notable for the diversity of ways in which the artist has chosen to represent his own ideas and the world of nature.

Techniques used by Spaulding, who is instructor in composition at Washington University School of Fine Arts, range from the Expressionism of his "The Contemplation of Nature" through a variety of modes, including abstractionism, realism and non-objective painting.

"The Contemplation of Nature," an amusing canvas showing a nude model posing while a man looks out the window, watching birds, won the Guild's first prize at an exhibit last year and received honorable mention this year at the Midwest Show at Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, Nebr.

This oil painting was done in 1954 and the scene is Spaulding's summer cabin in Maine. The curves of the nude are repeated in the contours of an oil lamp at left. The seated bird-watcher and an angular sheet-iron stove fill out the picture at right.

"Window in Paris," a 1953 painting which also won honorable mention at Omaha this year, has a contrasting mood. It shows a girl playing a mandolin, with an iron grillwork at left. Cool, contemplative tones of green and blue dominate. The style is romantic realism.

Just as "Window in Paris" harks back to the months the artist spent abroad during 1950 on a Yale University School of Fine Arts fellowship, so other pictures in the show recall summers spent at fishing villages in Maine and on Cape Cod. Spaulding came here from New England in 1951.

'Summer Games.'

"Summer Games," a large 1954 oil, is a piece of Expressionist humor that comments on the East Coast station wagon set. It shows a girl in red on a beach pallet, a man seated at a cocktail table, and a tennis game in progress in the background. A tall green wine bottle sets off the warm colors of the rest of the picture.

Another Expressionist picture dating from 1954 is "Bellbuoy with Girls," which shows at its center a girl in sunglasses and orange bathing suit, seeking to embrace the sun as she cavorts on the beach. At left is the deep green sea, and at right the beach in white and yellow.

Spaulding remarked that many of the pictures represented in their subject-matter "an autobiographical, retrospective" effort. Hhe said he had spent some time on Cape Cod in 1950 and had seen a great many girls around the beach, soaking up the sun and waiting for something to happen.

'View In Stonington'

The first painting the viewer sees on entering the gallery is "View in Stonington," an attempt to catch the character of a Maine fishing village in the style of modified cubism. It is done in shades of red, with granite blocks of jetties and a fishing launch or two in the foreground, in gray and black.

Also prominently displayed are a large oil study of a Negro woman and an abstraction of a marine landscape called "Lighthouse Offshore." Both were painted this year. The marine, like several other works on display, uses geometric shapes and figures suggestive of patterns one might see in and around a boatyard.

In many instances, finished oil paintings are hung beside drawings or studies that were made in preparation for them. There are 16 oil paintings and 25 drawings. The exhibition will be on view through May 16. A reception will be held this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Explaining the diversity of the exhibit, Spaulding said he did not want to become stuck with one mode of expression because it happened to be fashionable at the moment. He said he had tried to suit the style to the subject matter.

SCHOENBECK SAYS PRESIDENT IS BEST HOPE FOR PEACE

Albert E. Schoenbeck, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, declared yesterday at Springfield, Mo., at the seventh district Congressional Republican Convention, that the issue in the national campaign is a choice between a man "who is America's best hope for peace" and an untried opponent.

Schoenbeck, who is a St. Louis attorney, declared that President Eisenhower brought an end to the Korean conflict. American voters, he said, will remember the record, and realize that "they have in the President a world leader whose devotion to peace has won the hearts of men of good will everywhere."

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN DIES OF STAB WOUND; MAN HELD

A woman about 60 years old died yesterday at City Hospital of an abdominal stab wound inflicted earlier in the day at 1113 Biddle street by a man reported to have been drinking.

The woman, identified by friends only as "Irene," entered the Biddle street home occupied by Mrs. Anna Harris and Mrs. Mary Lou Scott, and was accosted by the man. All are Negroes.

Police later arrested a man living in the 1100 block of North Thirteenth street and booked him suspected of murder after he was identified by Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Scott as the woman's assailant.

GOV.-ELECT EARL LONG GETS RACE PROBLEM

Louisiana Vote Registrar Quits, Blocks Naming of Successor.

MINDEN, La., May 5 (UP)—A woman vote registrar, accused by pro-white Citizens' Councils of showing partially toward Negro registrants, resigned yesterday and tossed a knotty racial problem into the lap of Gov.-elect Earl Long.

Mrs. Winnice Clement, vote registrar of Webster parish (county) tendered her resignation, effective May 15, and simultaneously obtained a court injunction to prevent the naming of her successor.

District Judge James Bolin will hold a hearing May 14, the day before Long takes office, on the injunction which prevents the parish police jury, the governing body of the parish, from naming her successor. The date of the hearing most probably will enable Mrs. Clement to present her problem and the merits of her dispute with the police jury to the new administration since Long, as Governor, will head the State Board of Registration.

Pro-segregation Citizens' Councils had accused Mrs. Clement of not following the state's voting law and of being partial to Negro registrants. After the councils and the parish police jury asked that she be investigated by the state she began following the law to the letter and flunked 24 white registrants because they couldn't interpret the United States Constitution—a requirement for voting in Louisiana.

In February, when Mrs. Clement contended the councils had asked her to stop registering Negroes, she answered that "what's fair for one race is fair for the other."

The police jury which hired Mrs. Clement did not have the authority to fire her. Her record was investigated by the state registration director, David Baynaud, who turned his findings over to the state board, headed by outgoing Gov. Robert Kennon. The state board, however, refused to fire her.

Long, whose campaign manager in Webster parish was a close in-law of Mrs. Clement, yesterday criticized the Citizens' Councils for blocking the registration of Negro and white voters.

Long said it was "far fetched" to ask a man to interpret the Constitution. He said the persons who ask questions about the Constitution can't answer their own questions.

In most sections of Louisiana, Negroes are permitted to register and vote without interference. Some 135,460 Negroes are registered in the state and Negroes in large numbers in the January primary.

A month probably will be required to process the application, including physical examinations by doctors both of the Police Department and the retirement system.

Parker, 55 years old and a policeman since 1932, is expected to be succeeded by Maj. James F. Thompson, who has been acting inspector since Parker was put on indefinite sick leave last Nov. 7.

Miss Brackebush was former executive-secretary of the health and hospital division of the Social Planning Council. Prior to that position she was director of social service at St. Louis County Hospital and director of social service at the Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital at Columbia, Mo.

UNION LEADER JOLTS FRANCE ON ALGERIA

Wants Fighting Stopped and Elections Held Before Opening Negotiations.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

PARIS, May 5—Home-front support of Premier Mollet's policy of pacifying Algeria before engaging in negotiations with its Moslem population was dealt a damaging blow today.

Robert Bothereau, secretary general of the trade union "Force Ouvriere" and a Socialist like Mollet, told the organization's national committee meeting in Amiens that the French Government's current military campaign is wrong.

In proposing that France should abandon its commitment to restore order in Algeria and hold free elections before opening negotiations with the Moslems, Bothereau asked for talks now by saying: "It is necessary to orient ourselves toward a search for negotiators."

This statement put the leader of the 500,000-man non-Communist union in line with a policy championed only by the Communists in the National Assembly up to this point.

But Bothereau then went farther than even the Communists have dared to go in print or public statements by suggesting that Algeria might be better off as an independent state like Tunisia and Morocco.

"We have been told 'There is no France possible without Algeria,'" Bothereau said. "I am not convinced. Budgetarily, we keep Algeria alive. What we earn as producers in trade, we lose as taxpayers. In close ties or in independence, economic links must exist between France and Algeria."

French Troops in Two Ambushes; 12 Killed in First.

ALGIERS, May 5 (AP)—Nationalist rebels killed French troops in two ambush attacks in the last two days on opposite sides of Algeria.

A patrol was ambushed yesterday about 20 miles south of Tlemcen in Western Algeria near the Moroccan frontier. French casualties were 12 killed, 10 wounded, and 10 missing. The French said rebel losses were heavy but gave no figures.

Other troops began a search for the missing French infantrymen. The attack was one of the worst individual blows inflicted on French forces in the 18-month-old rebellion.

The second ambush was reported tonight. It involved troops near Guelma in eastern Algeria. No casualty figures were released.

Rebel activity erupted in other parts of Algeria. The French said at least 12 rebels were killed in an action today near Tlemcen.

Lookout Saw British Frogman Near Cruiser, Russians Say

LONDON, May 5 (UP)—The Russians dumped the mystery of the missing British frogman squarely into the lap of the British Admiralty today but the Admiralty refused to talk.

A Soviet embassy spokesman said a Russian lookout spotted a British frogman surfacing some 20 yards from the Soviet cruiser Orjonikidze April 18 in Portsmouth harbor.

Presumably it was Reserve Comdr. Lionel Crabb, missing on a mission in the harbor April 18. That was the day the cruiser sailed in with Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin aboard.

"We can say no more," the Soviet embassy official said last night. "It is a matter for the British Admiralty. After all, it was an English frogman, not a Russian."

The embassy spokesman would not comment on reports that Russian frogmen were put overboard by the three Soviet warships during their visit here.

The Admiralty refused to say anything in reply to the Soviet embassy statement or to other reports and speculation on the case appearing in the British press.

It was learned that the 46-year-old Crabb went on a similar mission in Portsmouth harbor last October when two Russian cruisers and four destroyers paid a courtesy visit.

The commander also examined the hull of the Russian cruiser Sverdlovsk during the coronation review in 1953.

Crabb's ex-wife was just as puzzled about his disappearance as reporters. Even she did not know he was missing until 10 days after the plunge—after the Russians had left Britain.

Mrs. Margaret Crabb said the Admiralty's handling of the case struck her as "rather odd."

She said naval intelligence officers who broke the news to her "seemed ill at ease and would not say exactly what happened."

British newspapers have speculated that Crabb might have been captured by the Russians while spying on secret underwater equipment carried by the ship.

The Admiralty lists him as "presumably drowned."

FOUR REVENGE KILLINGS REPORTED IN MOROCCO

RABAT, Morocco, May 5 (AP)—Four more revenge killings among followers of the late Pasha of Marrakech were reported today. Officials said a former tribal aid of Pasha Thami El Glaoui, along with three servants were attacked and burned to death at a village 25 miles from Marrakech.

Sultan Mohamed Ben Youssef announced an investigation to find those responsible for riots at Marrakech which cost some 40 lives among followers of El Glaoui, a pro-French chieftain who helped engineer the Sultan's dethronement in 1953.

The riots resulted in the resignation of Interior Minister Lahcen Lyoussi.

HEARING SET FOR APPEAL ON HOTEL CHASE ANNEX

An appeal from a denial of a building permit for a nine-story addition to Hotel Chase has been set for a hearing Wednesday by the City Board of Adjustment.

The annex, to be erected on the east of the present structure, would contain 45 rooms and a ballroom seating 1500 persons. The cost has been estimated at $1,750,000.

A permit was refused by the Building Commissioner because the project did not meet zoning requirements with respect to rear yard space.

STOCKS LIFTED TO NEW HIGH LEVEL FOR RECOVERY MOVE

Volume Expands on Week's Rise — Concern Is Felt Over Certain Soft Spots in the Economy.

By JOHN G. FORREST
Financial Editor, The New York Times.

Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.

NEW YORK, May 5.

AFTER an unimpressive start, the stock market snapped out of its rut and staged a strong rally in the two final sessions of the week. Prices were lifted to new high levels for the recovery movement on expanded volume.

As in the preceding week, the best performance came toward the close, when the oils, aircrafts, and a number of specialties paced the list. On Friday the turnover rose to 2,864,770 shares—the largest in a month.

The New York Times combined average of fifty stocks touched 344.37, only 1.64 points below the historic high of 346.01 made on April 5. The railroad component hit 117.19, its best level since June, 1930. For the week, the combined average showed a gain on 4.15 points.

A firm tone appeared in the bond market for the first time in many weeks. In the Government securities market, prices staged their best rally this year, with the Treasury's longest-term 3's up 1½ points from the low of 98 touched in April. The improvement seemed to be of the stabilizing kind, offsetting an oversold condition that followed the recent increase in federal reserve rediscount rates.

Centers of Concern.

The Federal Reserve Bank in its monthly review of business said the recent leveling-off in activity and accumulation of inventories was nothing more than a breathing spell. However, certain soft spots—such as the automobile and farm equipment fields — are causing concern. If they are not corrected, they may soon have serious consequences on other segments of the economy.

One question now being raised is whether or not we are headed for a readjustment in business comparable to that of 1946-48. At that time, it will be recalled, we had what is known as a "rolling recession." First one and then another industry had to set its house in order. We certainly are having the rolling end now in one key field—the automobile industry.

If automobiles don't start rolling off the production lines in better volume, and sales fail to pick up, it may be taken for granted that other industries will have to adjust to that situation. Auto production for the three major producers in April was down 3.5 per cent from March and 25 per cent from April 1955. Dealers' stocks of new cars meanwhile continued to exceed 800,000, a near-record. First-quarter earnings of Chrysler and Ford showed sizable dips from last year.

Inflationary Storm Warnings.

Interest continues to be directed toward another economic barometer—installment credit. During March, consumers tacked on $180,000,000 in this form of indebtedness, after whittling it by $11,000,000 in the first two months of the year. However, the gain in "on the cuff" buying in March was sharply below the rise of $466,000,000 a year ago. On March 31, installment credit outstanding totaled nearly 28 billion dollars, about five billion higher than a year earlier.

Several inflationary storm warnings were posted during the week. The First National Bank of Boston declared it saw a serious inflationary threat despite the high level of business activity. It said the danger signals were the leveling-off in production coupled with a 10 per cent increase in bank credit. C. A. Sienkiewicz, president of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association and of the Central-Penn. National Bank, said: "There is some warning for us of inflation in the making, and we cannot afford to ignore this because of possible destructive, deflationary consequences."

Secretary Week's View.

The Federal Reserve Board's recent credit-tightening may prove to be a handicap to business, in the opinion of Commerce Secretary Weeks. However, he feels that this might be offset by "the confidence people have in the future." All in all, Secretary Weeks thought the nation's total output of goods and services—the gross national product—was going to go along in the second quarter about as it did in the first quarter.

A survey of first-quarter corporate reports indicates that most companies increased their incomes but at a slower rate than a year ago. And many showed declines. As for the remainder of the year the First National City Bank of New York said it expected the heavy goods industries to be a solid prop under the nation's economy.

IF WE COULD ADVISE BUT A SINGLE STOCK
THIS WOULD BE IT
(AND THIS IS THE TIME TO BUY IT)

and for these reasons . . . sales of the company here represented are 371% above 1947. This company is one of the great mining enterprises in Canada, and with one exception, is earning more than any therein. Huge backlogs of business insure sound profits far ahead. Assets are nearly three times the 1945 status. Dividends, while not spectacular, have been steadily maintained, and are also nearly three times as great.

WE DO NOT APOLOGIZE FOR OUR CLIENTS' SUCCESS IN IT

Yes, if it were suddenly decreed that each Stock-Market analyst could recommend only one Canadian stock to conservative investors who desired the rich increment practically forced upon them by the tempo of rising world demand; we would choose and name for you the Canadian mining stock we are talking about here. In buying this great investment opportunity, you must know that the first of our many recommendations was bought at a price of 78.1 in 1950. Thereafter, it rose to 125.4, and split 2-for-1. It has risen steadily since that date, but is now poised for additional gratifying — if not, indeed, sensational —advances on today's buying advice to you.

YOU MAY LOOK FORWARD CONFIDENTLY

to an ever greater future for this singular Canadian corporation. It has hit upon a worldwide boom in its principal products; its sales will increase two-fold in the next five years—first, by the growth in population, and then by the penetrating and widespread increase in the use of its product. The management has brains and a certain desirable British stability. We feel that the record already made will be duplicated over the succeeding five-year period of time.

We are willing to anchor this recommendation to the foundation of any estate whatsoever, and to place this stock alongside any of the great names of Western industry, like General Motors and Kennecott Copper.

*Yes, we wish to send you the name of this singular Canadian stock on which we are hanging our entire reputation. It is FREE; an explanation and tabulation of 1955 results go with it; professional use and procedure are given with it, together with our very best wishes. Send no money. # YEAR'S BEST WEEK FOR GOVERNMENT BONDS

Corporates Rise on Average for Best Week Since Early in March.

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)— United States Government bonds experienced their best week of the year. And corporates rose on average for their best week since the first of March.

On Tuesday, Treasury obligations posted their biggest 1956 advance. The 2½s of 1963 jumped 16-32; the Victory 2½s of December 1972-67, shot up 18-43; the 30-year 3¼s gained 10-32 and the 40-year 3s climbed 12-32. Intermediates lost a bit of that on succeeding days but the long-range issues registered small gains.

For the week, the 2½s of 1963 gained 20-32 at 96 8-32 bid. The Victory 2½s advanced 1 2-32 at 94. The 30-year 3¼s and the 40-year 3s climbed 1 4-32 each at 103 8-32 and 93 16-32 bid, respectively.

Investment quality corporates led the advance on the big board, followed strongly by industrials. Rails posted a slight gain. Utilities, however, touched their low of the year Friday, as measured by the Associated Press average of 60 representative bonds. And the foreign department eased again for the fourth successive week.

President Eisenhower joined the mounting controversy over the tight money situation. Three weeks ago the Federal Reserve Board boosted the discount rate (what is charges member banks to borrow money) for the fifth time within a year. Each time the "Fed" has described the credit-tightening as an attempt to head off inflationary pressures.

COMMODITY PRICE INDEX DECLINES FOR SECOND WEEK

New lows for the year were registered by textile and non-ferrous metal groups. Other lower categories were industrials, grains and cotton.

Livestock moved up to a high for the year. Food was also higher.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

MIXED PATTERN

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP).

BUSINESS developed criss-cross patterns this week. Some lines speeded up, some down. Many of the indicators still spelled boom. Government experts said the latest figures on employment would show 64,000,000 Americans in paying jobs in April—an all-time record for that month. Wage boosts helped push total personal income to a new high. Weekly freight carloadings were the highest since 1951; steel production (at 99.5 per cent of capacity) was close to peak levels. Corporate earnings continued to show sizable gains over last year. The stock market, after a couple of false starts, resumed its climb into higher territory.

But in other lines there were tell-tale signs of slowdown.

Auto production ebbed to its lowest level this year. Department store sales slipped below year-ago totals; shipments of corrugated box cartons, a significant barometer of economic activity, reversed a long upward trend and headed lower. Candy sales at latest count were down 7 per cent from a year ago; shipments of women's outerwear were down 9 per cent. Manufacturers' inventories of durable goods climbed while new orders receded.

With soft spots popping up, the credit policies of the Federal Reserve Boarrd came in for critical attention. There were some who said the federal reserve system had gone too far when it jacked up its borrowing rates last month, lifting bank rates all over the country. There were others who said the screws on easy credit had not been tightened enough — and that inflationary forces still were rampant.

SMALLER SUPPLIES HELP SEND HOG PRICES UPWARD

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., May 5—Lamb prices advanced to the best level in more than a year, according to the Producers Live Stock Marketing Association, in weekly summary.

The lamb market made its gain under the stimulus of abnormally light receipts and some specialty buying for the Greek Easter trade. A few lots of choice and prime spring lambs reached $27.50 to $28; most good to prime $23 to $27. A few choice woolskins reached $23.50 cwt.

Hogs showed a net price gain for the period despite a drop in values for wholesale pork. Barrows and gilts 180 lbs. up finished 25c to 35c net higher; lighter weights and sows 25c to 50c up. High point of the week was Monday when the top reached $16, and late sales were downward from $15.85.

Cattle trading was characterized by a broad demand and stronger prices on the better grades, but utility and commercial kinds finished barely steady after some initial strength. Vealers and calves were firm, except for commercial and good grades late which turned weak.

Choice steers bulked at $19 to $20.50, with high choice and prime 1093 to 1302-lb. offerings reaching $21.25. High choice and prime 871 and 941-lb. mixed steers and heifers peaked at $21. Veal calves sold downward from $26.

EMERSON ELECTRIC MFG. CO. NETS $2.40 FOR SIX MONTHS

Emerson Electric Mfg. Co. reported net profit of $1,232,972, equal to $2.40 for the first six months (Oct. 1, 1955 to March 31, 1956) of the fiscal year 1956 compared with $584,627, or $1.11 in corresponding six months of preceding fiscal year.

Net sales were $27,047,748 compared with $17,271,254.

It was pointed out that net sales and profits of the first six months of the previous year 1955 were affected by a two-month strike of the company's production workers and, thus, do not present a typical operating comparison.

OLD SOYBEANS UP 3C AFTER A 40C RANGE

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP) — Soybeans went through a mild week on the Board of Trade this week but, at the finish, it was wheat which had lost the most ground. Corn, oats and rye futures posted gains for the period. Lard was off with a general break in fats and oils.

Old crop soybeans swung over a range of nearly 40 cents in the heaviest trade for this commodity in the board's history. When it was all over they had gains of 1¼ to 3 cents.

New crop soybeans didn't fluctuate as wildly as the old crop months but they wound up considerably weaker—down 4¼@4½ cents.

Wheat finished 3¼@6¾cents lower (The old crop May was weakest), corn ¾@3½ cents higher, oats ¼@1⅜ cents higher, rye 1¼ cents lower @1½ cents higher and lard 45 cents lower to 2 cents a hundred pounds higher.

May wheat fell back on liquidation by longs, most of whom have good profits as this old crop month is selling far above its seasonal low.

Moisture for Wheat.

Nice moisture in much of the winter wheat belt caused an easier tone in new crop months. There also was some selling on a crop estimate by C. M. Galvin of Francis I. du Pont & Co. He placed the crop at 720,435,000 bushels compared with the government's April 1 estimate of 716,447,000 bushels.

In corn the old crop months were strongest. This reflected private reports impoundings of the yellow grain under the government loan continued very heavy. In the cash market corn brought its best price since harvest of the 1955 crop.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH INC. NETS 50C A SHARE IN 1ST QUARTER

Anheuser-Busch, Inc., reported earnings of $2,405,337 for the first quarter of 1956, an increase of $541,657 over the $1,863,680 reported for the corresponding period of 1955. Earnings were equivalent to 50c a share, compared with 39c in 1955 quarter.

Net sales for the period were $47,472,787, an increase of 5 per cent over the $45,238,529 in 1955 first quarter. Beer sales rose slightly less than 2 per cent or to 1,254,250 barrels from 1,231,416 barrels. There were appreciable increases in sales by the company's yeast-malt-corn products and cabinet divisions, the report said.

FIREMEN RESCUE WOMAN OUTSIDE 3RD-FLOOR WINDOW

Mrs. Ann Mae Arnett, 26 years old, was rescued by firemen from the roof outside the window of her third-floor room at 5228 Vernon avenue yesterday after fire broke out in her room. She was treated at Homer G. Phillips Hospital for burns of the left arm and smoke inhalation.

Levert Payne, a Negro, the owner and first-floor occupant, said he was awakened by Mrs. Arnett's calls for help. He investigated and, finding her room in flames, called the fire department. Mrs. Arnett, also a Negro, crawled out the window and onto the roof, closing the window behind her.

Firemen Thomas Stack and George Beaumont of Hook and Ladder No. 15 carried the woman down a ladder. Battalion Chief Julius Vogel said the blaze, which spread to the roof of the brick structure, was apparently caused by careless smoking. Damage was estimated at $1000 to the building and $250 to the contents.

BENSON HOPING FOR FARM BILL 'CLEAN-UP'

Cites Two Bad Features Still in 'Much Improved' Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) —Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said yesterday he hoped the farm bill passed by the House Thursday "can be cleaned up and made workable in the Senate." He conceded the legislation is "much improved" over that which President Eisenhower vetoed April 16.

He told reporters it has two features objectionable to the Administration— mandatory price supports for livestock feed grains and the addition of grazing lands to the soil bank program.

Benson declined to predict whether the bill would be headed for another veto if the objectionable provisions stayed in it.

As passed by the House and sent to the Senate, the bill gives Mr. Eisenhower the $1,200,000,000 soil bank program he asked for, but no authority to make advance payments this year. Farmers could still receive benefits in 1956, if they took land out of production promptly.

Mr. Eisenhower was asked at his press conference yesterday whether he could accept the feed grain support provisions of the House bill. He replied that the provisions struck him as being difficult to administer and for that reason they were "bad." He did not reject the provision outright.

Benson estimated the bill would bring 100,000,000 more acres under federal crop control. He argued it also would distort price relationships of feed, livestock and livestock products.

As for adding grazing lands to the soil bank program, he said such a move would work counter to the government's wool program, under which incentives are paid for increasing wool production.

He said the program would be contradictory to the extent it would apply to wool raisers.

"We would be paying ranchers to increase wool production with one hand, and paying them to reduce with the other," Benson said.

MOLLET WINS THREE VOTES OF CONFIDENCE ON PENSIONS

PARIS, May 5 (AP) — Premier Mollet won three votes of confidence today on his government's bill to increase old-age pensions. The votes were 260 to 138, 334 to 121, and 333 to 95. It was a routine runoff with the results never in doubt.

The first vote was on the initial article of the bill which proposes that the 140 billion francs ($400,000,000) needed to increase the pensions be raised by increased taxation.

The second was on an article dealing with the recipients of the funds. The third was on the project as a whole.

ROLLINGS ORDERS AFL-CIO NEWS FOR STATE OFFICIALS

It won't be the fault of John I. Rollings, president of the new Missouri State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, if state officials, from Gov. Phil M. Donnelly on down, are not informed on up-to-the-minute developments in the labor movement.

Just prior to the state merger, Rollings, then head of the AFL Missouri Federation of Labor, ordered 196 subscriptions to the AFL-CIO News, official publication of the national merged body. Gov. Donnelly headed the subscription list with other subscriptions going to members of his cabinet and of the entire State legislature.

The publication often contains views of labor leaders on political matters.

KARST ISSUES PLATFORM; CRITICAL OF FOREIGN POLICY

Raymond Karst, Democratic candidate for Congress for the Second District, announced his platform in a talk at St. Louis County Democratic Headquarters, 7807 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton, yesterday.

Karst said he recognized the leadership role of the United States in time of peace and would rewrite our foreign policy which he said in its present form is weak, uncertain and contradictory. He said he would resist any further governmental "give-away" of natural resources and vigorously prosecute any form of Communism.

He said he would demand that the Federal Government support the riverfront site, and that he would seek an amendment of the income tax laws to reduce taxes of the lower and middle income brackets.

DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGED TO JOHNNY WEISSMULLER

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 (UP) —Former swimming champion and film Tarzan Johnny Weissmuller was arrested on drunk driving charges last night after his car collided with another car at an intersection. No one was injured, and Weissmuller was freed on $263 bail put up by B. C. Roos, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Police said Weissmuller flunked a sobriety test.

"If I have to go to jail, I'll have to go," he said. "This is a heluva situation."

TRAWLER CREW UNEXCITED ABOUT SNARING NAUTILUS

POINT PLEASANT BEACH, N.J., May 5 (UP)—Jennie, the fishing trawler that briefly snared an atomic submarine, put into port today. It carried 10,000 pounds of fish, and five old salts who were unexcited about their tangle with the nuclear-powered Nautilus off the Jersey coast.

Tonnes Anderson, skipper of the 61-foot craft, stayed below while reporters fired questions at engineer Shirley Friend, who was at the helm when the trawler's nets hooked on to the Nautilus.

Friend apparently was unconcerned that it was an atomic submarine his craft's nets had snared April 22. He said the crew figured it was a submarine when a three-quarter-inch cable snapped as the trawler was drawn backward.

"I never seen any taxis on the bottom out there," he said.

GAMBLING SQUAD SEIZES 2 MEN, 3 WOMEN IN RAIDS

Police Lt. John Bloecher's gambling squad arrested three women and two men yesterday in three taverns and booked all five as suspected of setting up and keeping common gaming houses. Tabs confiscated indicated some of the bets accepted were on the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville.

The suspects and the addresses where they were arrested follow:

Miss Frances Levin and Miss Sadie Hitt, both at 1638 South Vandeventer avenue; Sam Mercurio and Mrs. Mercurio, 4138 Folsom avenue, and Sam E. Garafalo, 4167 Lee avenue.

ADVENTURE-BENT BOY WONDERS WHY MOTHER VANISHED

Three-year-old Bruce Schuh wasn't lost the other day—his mother was.

Mrs. William A. Schuh, 8643 Belhaven drive, St. John, took the adventuresome youngster with her to the drug store. While waiting for a prescription to be filled, Bruce went exploring.

He strolled into the parking lot of a supermarket at Brown and St. Charles Rock roads, two blocks from the drug store, and was discovered by shoppers playing in the sawdust at the evergreen display. The shoppers summoned police.

His mother and father expressed their appreciation to the finders of their son in a Post-Dispatch want ad last Friday. When Bruce and his mother were reunited by police, the boy asked the obvious question: "Where were you, Mother?"

MODEL A
The car that made the American automobile industry the giant it is today. This 2-door is in excellent condition, the ebony black paint is highlighted by red striping, an art long forgotten. The 4-cylinder engine is 26 years old, however, it is sound and runs like a new one. This car does not have modern styling or powerful performance, but it does offer dependable transportation, excellent economy and a very low maintenance upkeep cost and it can be purchased Monday for the low price of only $395. HURRY, it won't last long.

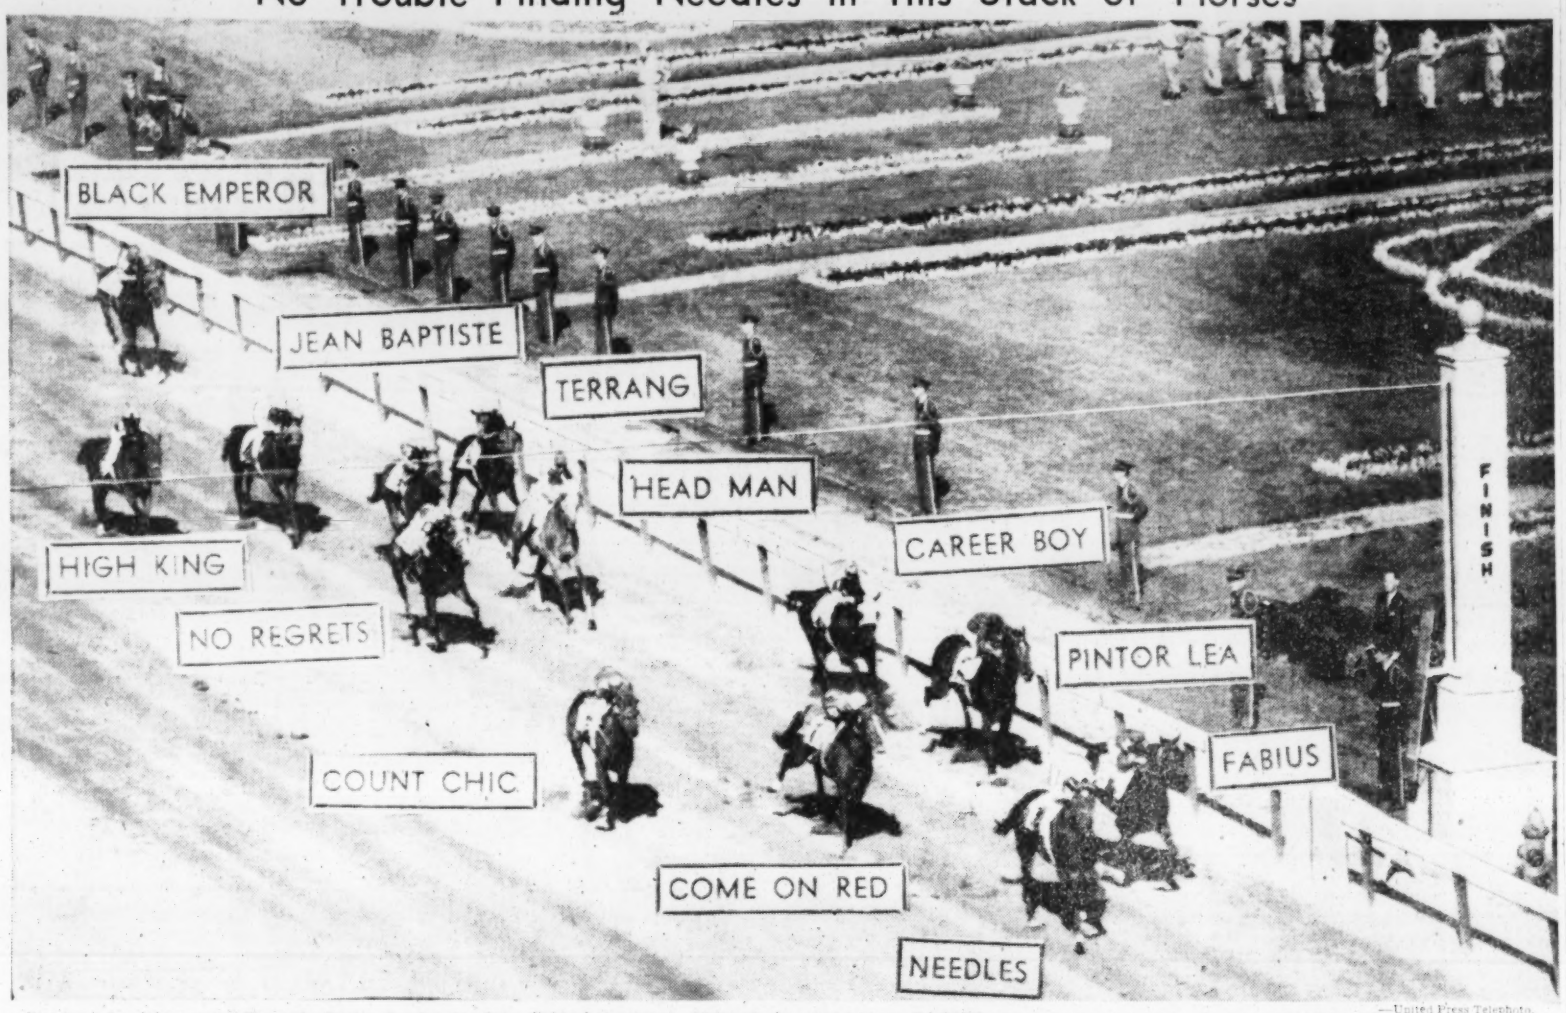
NEEDLES OVERTAKES 15 HORSES TO CAPTURE RICHEST KENTUCKY DERBY BY THREE-QUARTERS OF A LENGTH

No Trouble Finding Needles in This Stack of Horses



—United Press Telephoto.

Finish of the eighty-second Kentucky Derby showing 13 of the field of 17 starters. Although the second horse, FABIUS, appears close to victory, he was not gaining ground on the winner, NEEDLES. COME ON RED, which finished third, was badly beaten. The winner's time for the mile and one-quarter route was 2:03.2-5. Unidentified horse between TERRANG and JEAN BAPTISTE is KING O' SWORDS.

FABIUS FINISHES SECOND, COME ON RED IS THIRD; WINNER TAKES $123,450

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5—Needles, a temperamental son and grandson of previous Derby winners, played to the grandstand at Churchill Downs today and captured the 82nd and richest running of the Kentucky Derby.

The husky, well-built bay colt from the line of Ponder (1949 winner) and Pensive (1944 winner) put on a come-from-behind performance that reminded veterans of his fore-runners.

Needles, the first Derby colt of the Jack Dudley and Bonnie Heath Stable in Ocala, Fla., took charge finally inside the last sixteenth of a mile to get a three-quarter length victory over Calumet Farm's Fabius.

It was a race from nowhere by Needles in the good time of 2:03.2 for the mile and a quarter over a track that was unusually fast, and it was a brilliant power performance by the first Florida-produced winner of the Derby.

The royally-bred Needles hadn't raced since his Florida Derby victory March 24 and had spent his pre-Derby preparation largely in refusing to work out to any degree, but was just saving his stuff to play up to the usual Derby throng of 100,000 and untold numbers of television viewers.

Like Pappy . . .

Horsemen recalled that Needles ran his race just as Ponder and Pensive did. Ponder was running twelfth with a half mile to go; Pensive was tenth at that stage. Needles, the grandstander, was sixteenth.

That was a little late to be in that position, even for such a slow beginner as Needles, who drew the No. 1 post position in a field of 17 starters and took his time about going anywhere.

The 8-to-5 choice in the mutuels, which handled $1,666,944 on the Derby, Needles became the first favorite to win since Hill Gail in 1952.

For a while even Needles' jockey, Dave Erb, was scared about the way Needles chose to run his race.

So far behind with a little less than a half mile to go, Erb said he still didn't try to make Needles move until the turn coming for home and then he hit him once. Not temperamental now, Needles responded and passed many horses in the last quarter of a mile, which he ran in 25 1/5 seconds.

Erb sent Needles to the middle of the track for the stretch run and commented after the race that he had hit him lightly six or seven times to make him move. Again Needles didn't refuse to work.

That wasn't the most worrisome stage of the race, though, Erb said. That had come earlier with a half mile left, but at the end Needles won going away, as Fabius tried to hold on gamely.

Come On Red Surprise.

As a surprise finisher in third place, just two and a quarter lengths off Needles, was Come On Red, an Indiana-bred and mutuel field colt from the Helen W. Kellogg Stable.

Come On Red wasn't even supposed to start if the track was fast and it was so fast that in an earlier six furlong race on Derby day, a new track record was set. Undoubtedly, Come On Red's trainer decided that in such a large field, anything might happen.

Nothing really happened, however, except that Needles showed his Derby blood and demonstrated how a route-goer can run a mile and a quarter and overtake 15 horses in the last four furlongs.

Hugh Fontaine, the 60-year-old trainer who once handled Ladysman years back and was the man who persuaded oil men Heath and Dudley to purchase the colt for $20,000, was vindicated.

Fontaine had let the strong-willed Needles refuse to work hard and was criticized for his training procedure. But this was Needles's third major stakes victory in four starts this season and by the same method.

No 'N' Jinx Now.

In this richest of all Louisville classics, the net first prize of $123,450 brought Needles earnings as a three-year-old to $332,250. His previous victories this year were in the Florida Derby and the Flamingo Stakes. And now altogether Needles has a handsome earnings total of $462,055 for two seasons.

In recent years front runners had been Derby winners, but Needles tossed aside that precedent just as he overcame the fate of many favorites and of colts whose name begins with "N."

The more superstitious followers of the turf had begun to think that there was a whammy on colts with "N" names because of the failures of Nashua, who lost to Swaps last year, and Native Dancer, second to Dark Star in 1953.

But Needles did it and paid $5.20, $3.60 and $3.40 to win. Fabius, who turned out to be the stronger of the Calumet Farm entry which included a sore-kneed Pintor Lea, paid $3.80 and $3.60, while Come On Red returned $6.60 for show.

While Calumet was in the money, C. V. Whitney got another Derby disappointment when Career Boy ran sixth and Head Man, ridden by the 17-Derby Jockey Eddie Arcaro, finished eighth. The Whitney entry was third choice in the betting.

They Also Ran.

Count Chic, a one-time claiming-race colt, was fourth, just three lengths back of Needles and the rest of the large field followed in this order: Pintor Lea, Career Boy, No Regrets, Head Man, King of Swords, High King, Jean Baptiste, Terrang, Black Emperor, Besomer, Invalidate, Ben A. Jones and Countermand.

Biggest disappointment of all was the sixth-choice in the betting, Countermaid, who pulled out on both turns.

Terrang, the Santa Anita Derby winner who was trying to give Jockey Willie Shoemaker, Owner Rex C. Elsworth and Trainer Mish Tenney a second consecutive Derby victory, was one of the pace setters in the first six furlongs. Ben A. Jones, named after the Calumet Farm manager, had a head lead on Terrang after a half mile. But neither could keep up, and Fabius, which had been close to the pace under Willie Hartack, was leading then until Needles caught him.

By loyal Kentuckians, the 82nd Kentucky Derby winner is considered a Florida-bred only technically. The point involved is that the dam was a Kentucky mare which almost gave birth to Needles on an air trip to the Florida stable.

After the colt was foaled, it had a severe illness when it was very young and had to be given many injections. That's how it got its name of Needles.

Then Heath, a one-time Oklahoma A.&M. student, now a resident of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Dudley, a resident of Stillwater, Okla., purchased the colt on Fontaine's recommendation.

Trainer From Mizzou.

Fontaine, an old schoolmate of Bill Corum at the University of Missouri, developed the colt which shared two-year-old honors with Nail, a sprinter who didn't work up to the derby. In winter racing as a three-year-old Needles made his mark, but then he didn't go to the races again until this bright and sparkling day at old Churchill Downs.

He may be temperamental but obviously he knows what he's doing. He ought to. Besides the blood of Ponder and Pensive, he also is a descendant of the famed English Derby winners, Hyperion and Gainsborough.

In this, then, Needles has more classic Derby heritage than even the Reigh Count—Count Fleet—Count Turf rundown, the only one-two three-family success in previous Kentucky Derby annals.

Now Needles will go for all the other big three-year-old stakes, his owners said. He will seek the Triple Crown in the Preakness and Belmont and also other honors in big races at Chicago. He probably won't overwork before those, either.

Why He Is 'Needles'.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—The story that Needles got his name from being stuck so often with needles during illnesses early in his life was corrected after today's Kentucky Derby victory.

The name was doubly inspired, according to Mrs. W. E. Leach, wife of the horse's breeder.

"He got plenty of needles, all right," she said, "but he was always a perky little thing. He needled all the other horses in the paddock all the time."

CARDS WIN, 4-1, ON BOYER'S GRAND SLAM HOMER

Poholsky Gives Only Three Hits

By Bob Broeg

Tom Poholsky, long-suffering with most teammates at Brooklyn's hands, and Ken Boyer, to whom the Dodgers have seemed just 25 guys named Jim Hughes since he came into the National League a year ago, teamed their talents yesterday to give the Cardinals a delightful victory.

With Poholsky pitching a three-hitter and Boyer walloping a first-inning grand-slam homer, the Redbirds took a series-deciding 4-to-1 triumph from the World Champions at Busch Stadium. And as a happy Ladies' Day crowd of 21,288 roared appreciatively at the finish, a veteran Brooklyn writer grunted: "This really must be a new order when the Cardinals can take two out of three from the Dodgers—without Stan Musial even driving in a run."

Not that Stan The Man wasn't active in the two St. Louis victories. For that matter, the Redbirds' defense was a feature of yesterday's brilliant performance. But, as the Brooklyn man said, it was characteristic of the Cardinals' new look that the Redbirds prevailed without Musial having to shoulder the load.

Boyer, the major leagues' hottest hitter with a whopping .463 average, swung the biggest bat with his first big league grand-slam homer—and fourth 1956 circuit smash — before starter Roger Craig could retire a batter in the first inning. And Poholsky, extending his string of scoreless frames to 14 before Duke Snider homered in the seventh, hobbled the Dodger offense for his second victory against no defeats this young season.

As mentioned, Boyer, the big handsome sophomore third baseman, has treated the Brooklyns as though they all were as neighborly as Jim Hughes, the pot-bellied relief pitcher off whom he has drilled three homers and two singles in five assorted times at bat. In his rookie season the Alba (Mo.) athlete hit well over .300 against the Dodgers, tagged them for one-third of his 18 homers and knocked in 14 of his 62 runs at their expense. Happily, Boyer has picked up right where he left off last year.

So, too, has Poholsky and that's comforting because Tom had experienced enough misery for a complete career against Brooklyn. Until last September he hadn't defeated the Dodgers since 1951 and owned a painful 2-10 record against them. Then in his last 1955 appearance against the Bums, Tom blanked 'em on three hits and followed this time with another three-hitter.

As a result of yesterday's game, Poholsky has yielded only 17 hits and five runs in his first 24 frames this season and has issued just three passes, only one of them to the Dodgers. Sandy Amoros's two-out single in the second and Junior Gilliam's two-out triple in the third were the visitors' only hits before Snider slugged a full-count delivery onto Grand boulevard to lead off the seventh.

The Cardinals, meanwhile,

SPORTS EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH

Cards Doing All Right, But It's a Long Journey.

FRED HUTCHINSON has reason to be pleased with the unusually fine start his Cardinals have made in the pennant race, but despite the longer than usual spring training period, he still has to learn what his athletes can do under championship fire. This is especially true of the pitching. Fred is still trying to learn who can pitch big league ball and who can't.

There definitely appears to be improvement in some departments. Bill Sarni, jolted out of what Frank Lane suspected during the winter was lethargy or complacence, seems to have made the catching better than was expected. Wally Moon is off to a great start at first base, much improved in the field. The bench is stronger than it was last year, giving Hutchinson manpower for maneuvering.

On the other side, the outfield doesn't rate with the great outfields the Cardinals have had in winning years. Perhaps it's not fair to compare any combination with the great trio of Enos Slaughter, Terry Moore and Stan Musial. But you have to remember that combination. Musial, still a great asset, isn't as fast as he used to be; Bill Virdon, potentially the best of the present fly-catchers on the roster, is not hitting as was expected, and Rip Repulski must hit to remain a regular. Thus far the Ripper, at the plate, has been a pleasing surprise.

It will take weeks to get an accurate line on the pitching. Lindy McDaniel does a brilliant job one day, but can't get anybody out the next time he pitches. The one brilliant performance doesn't make him a new Dean, any more than the one failure can stamp him as a failure.

Pitching is always an uncertain thing. Last year, for instance, Luis Arroyo was a spectacularly successful pitcher through two and a half months. After the All Star game he was clobbered regularly. What happens to make such a difference? It's simple, usually. In the case of Arroyo the opposition learned to wait for his fast ball. No pitcher can throw curves all day, and Yoyo's fast ball wasn't good enough.

Patience and Coaching Can Make the Difference.

UNDOUBTEDLY many young pitchers who might have made it are dismissed from major league staffs. Back in 1934 the Cardinals' experience with Paul Dean showed what patience and coaching could do. In several early starts that year Paul was clobbered, knocked out early. But Mike Gonzalez sat with Paul after the knockouts and during game after game, telling about mistakes, pointing out how to pitch to the hitters. Paul profited by the instruction and helped Dizzy to pitch the Cards to the pennant that year. But if his name hadn't been Dean he probably would have summered at Columbus or Rochester.

We daringly picked the Cardinals to finish as high as second this season, largely because of Don Blasingame, Jackie Brandt, Wally Moon's improvement and because we believed Fred Hutchinson and Bill Posedel surely could build an adequate pitching staff out of a squad that included so much natural talent.

This year's spring training camp was one of the best instructional set-ups we had ever seen, but we'd like to make a suggestion for Hutchinson and Frank Lane to consider next year. That is about a week's concentrated drilling of base runners AND third base coaches.

There was a lot of work on cut-off plays, moving from first to third on simulated base hits, pick-off plays, how to get back to first, etc. But the coaches who were to signal players during the season as to whether they were to stop at third or try for home, were hitting fungoes. Even now it might not be a bad idea to introduce the base runners to the coaches and vice versa, explaining why that man is stationed at third to direct the traffic. The season is still young, but already slow runners have tried to score when they should have stopped at third and fast runners have broken their stride at third, when they should have taken the coach's orders to run like everything. Runners have dashed for the plate when the coach has done everything but tackle them.

Let's get the coaches and runners together some time and explain the facts of baseball life. Those coaches aren't on the roster, boys, just to say "Yes, Mr. Lane" or "You're right, Hutch."

Pari-Mutuel Record For Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—A record $4,360,232 was bet on the nine races at Churchill Downs today with $1,666,944 wagered on the Kentucky Derby itself.

The pari-mutuel handle established a Churchill Downs record, bettering the old mark by $55,167 set in 1953. Today's figures also exceeded the 1955 handle by $79,945.

Sime Sets New World Record In Low Hurdles

DURHAM, N.C., May 5 (AP)—Duke's Dave Sime set a new world record of 22.2 in the 220-yard low hurdles today, and made it a full day by running the 100-yard dash in 9.4, the 220 in 20.3 and placing second in the broad jump and third in the discus.

His performance, one of the greatest in recent track history, came as the Blue Devils defeated North Carolina, 71½-59½, in an Atlantic Coast Conference dual meet. He accounted for 19 points.

Sime broke the 220-yard low hurdles mark of 22.3 set at Salt Lake City in 1947 by Harrison Dillard.

The 190-pound Fair Lawn, N.J., sophomore won the 100-yard dash in 9.4, his sixth such performance this year, only a tenth of a second off the world mark of 9.3 set in 1948 by Mel Patton.

His 20.3 in the 220-yard dash also was only a tenth of a second off the world mark of 20.2 feet set by Patton in 1949.

Landy Loses to Bailey; Both Under 4 Minutes

LOS ANGELES, May 5 (UP)—Jim Bailey, 26, an Australian attending the University of Oregon, upset fellow Aussie and world champion miler John Landy today as the four-minute mile was cracked for the first time in the United States.

Bailey, spoiling the U.S. debut of Landy at Memorial Coliseum, became the sixth man in track history to better the four-minute barrier with a sensational clocking of 3:58.6, six-tenths over the world record of 3:58 held by Landy.

Bailey's spectacular win also set a new U.S. record, smashing the old American mark of 4:00.5 set by Wes Santee in the Texas Relays in 1955.

Landy, edged out by Bailey's tremendous finishing kick on the last lap, finished a yard behind the winner in 3:58.7. He previously had raced and beat Bailey on four occasions in Australia. Landy is here for a series of races.

40,000 Thrilled.

Some 40,000 fans saw the spectacular kick in which Bailey surged on the final lap to come from about 30 yards back with 220 yards to go. He caught Landy about 80 yards from the tape, edged into a one-yard lead and held Landy off into the finish.

Bailey was clocked unofficially on his last lap in 56 seconds flat, one of the greatest last laps ever recorded for a mile race.

Landy was officially clocked, since he had been leading, in 57.2 on the final lap.

It was the fifth time that Landy had broken four minutes. Bailey's previous best mark was 4:05.6.

The 3:58 world record was set by Landy at Turku, Finland, on June 21, 1954.

Other runners who have bettered the four-minute barrier besides Landy and Baily are Roger Bannister, Great Britain, with a mark of 3:58.8; Lazlo Tabori, Hungary, 3:59 flat; Chris Chataway, Great Britain, 3:59.8, and Brian Hewson, Great Britain, also 3:59.8.

To date, Santee has made the best assault by a native American on the mile. He did 4:00.5 last year.

Bailey Surprised.

Modest and quiet, Bailey said he could "Hardly Believe" his victory.

"I won't believe it until I see it in the papers tomorrow, he said. "It was the greatest race

O'Brien Puts Shot 61 Feet, 1 Inch for An Unofficial Record

SALT LAKE CITY, May 5 (AP).

PARRY O'BRIEN, formerly of the University of Southern California, put the 16-pound shot 61 feet 1 inch today for an unofficial outdoor world record.

He set the official outdoor record of 60 feet 10 inches in Los Angeles July 11, 1954.

O'Brien also holds the indoor record of 61 feet 5¼ inches, set last February in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The unofficial toss today was at the Intermountain A.A.U. track and field meet at the University of Utah.

Regional A.A.U. Chairman Nate Long said O'Brien's record toss was certified by all meet officials and referees, but will remain unofficial until recognized by the national A.A.U.

He said he is submitting the record to Daniel J. Ferris, executive secretary of the A.A.U. in New York.

Why He Is 'Needles'.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—The story that Needles got his name from being stuck so often with needles during illnesses early in his life was corrected after today's Kentucky Derby victory.

The name was doubly inspired, according to Mrs. W. E. Leach, wife of the horse's breeder.

"He got plenty of needles, all right," she said, "but he was always a perky little thing. He needled all the other horses in the paddock all the time."

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

How Much Is Marciano Worth?

HARDLY had he been able to put to work his announced retirement, until the question has been asked of and about Rocky Marciano—"Does he mean it? Won't he try a comeback?"

Naturally there's only one person in the world who can answer that question, and that's Rocky himself. And the chances are, of this moment, he doesn't know.

Newspaper men at the celebration in Brockton, Mass., over Rocky's return interpreted his remarks as leaving the door open for a possible comeback.

"My plans don't call for a comeback," Rocky is quoted as saying. "I am going to give it a good try, although I know the urge will be there to try again."

He also was asked about his financial condition: if he had enough money—and Rocky answered:

"How much is enough?"

During his career, beginning in 1947, when he had but one bout, and closing just a few days ago, Marciano boxed before 431,759 persons and receipts totaled $4,138,289. That doesn't mean that Rocky got that much, but he received his share of that amount.

As to how much he earned himself and how much he kept is a guarded secret.

This much is known. The published figures of the seven championship bouts in which he participated, once as a challenger for the heavyweight title and six times as defender, Marciano's purses, including television and radio fees, amounted to $1,462,961.

How this amount of money was split, before taxes, again is a secret. But assuming that his manager's share and other expenses took 50 per cent, it would mean that Rocky had left for himself, before taxes, an estimated $721,462.

Marciano's deductions are known only to himself and the tax collector but, assuming that the standard deductions were in effect, that is $1000 without itemizing them and three exemptions, himself, wife and child, he would have left in the four years $238,670.

Going a little further with Marciano's money, spending it for him at the rate of $20,000 per year for living expenses, and you find that he would have done well to save $158,670.

At the current rate of return on investments, 5 per cent would be about the best he could hope for, which would give him approximately $8000 per year.

Marciano has never said that he possessed sufficient money so that his income would leave him free to sit in a rocking chair for the rest of his life. He has said that he is comfortably fixed financially and has talked of business opportunities which have come his way.

In other words, he has given the impression that he has a nice cushion to fall back upon in times of stress but he apparently hasn't sufficient money so that he will not have to work.

An accountant has broken down his earnings before and after taxes in the last four years as follows (these were the years in which the championship bouts occurred):

| | Earnings. | After Taxes. |
|---|---|---|
| 1952 | $ 47,000 | $ 33,412 |
| 1953 | 170,000 | 58,107 |
| 1954 | 211,323 | 69,097 |
| 1955 | 292,746 | 78,054 |
| | 721,462 | 238,670 |

Before Title.

THOSE FIGURES do not take into account the years preceding. And Marciano, of course, shared in some pretty good "gates" prior to 1952.

There was his fight with Joe Louis, whom he knocked out in the eighth round, Oct. 26, 1951, which drew $152,845, exclusive of radio and television. Louis undoubtedly got the large share but Rocky probably received 20 per cent of the net of all receipts.

Then he and Roland LaStarza drew $53,723, the first time they met, March 24, 1950. Rocky eked out a decision in that one which set up the return after Rocky became champion which drew $435,817, Sept. 24, 1953. Marciano stopped LaStarza that time in the eleventh round.

But all of his non-title bouts, probably, didn't add more than $50,000 to Rocky's savings so that his net worth now probably is about $200,000 and the income from this would hardly be large enough to keep him in the style to which he has become accustomed, to say nothing of the responsibilities which he, seemingly, has cheerfully accepted with regard to the rest of the family.

Young Chestnut.

IKE CHESTNUT, New York featherweight, made his television debut at Washington Friday night and lost a 10-round decision to Cherif Hamia, of Algeria.

It was a very close and interesting fight and it seemed that the referee, who called it a draw, had the right idea.

And yet the referee ruled "no knockdown" after Hamia went to the seat of his pants from a stiff one-two by Chestnut. Hamia even hesitated getting up and at first started to pull himself up on Chestnut's leg. But it was called no knockdown.

That incident could well have meant the difference in the decision of Chestnut winning or losing. One of the judges had Hamia ahead by one point, the other by two. So, had Chestnut been credited with a knockdown, he would have received more points in that round, the sixth, and probably would have been declared the winner.

There were no beefs from Ike's seconds, however, and none about the decision, so perhaps the referee was right.

It was really a boxing contest with the boys, young and fresh, quick with their hands and on their feet. Both gave evidence of having been well schooled and knowing what it was all about. There was none of the usual haphazard slugging which is seen so often in rings today.

Tigers Get 16 Tallies; Oriole Fans 13 Indians

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Mickey Mantle's big bat carried the New York Yankees to their eleventh victory today, a 5-2 decision over the Kansas City Athletics. Mantle smashed his eighth and ninth homers, beat out a bunt and drove in three runs to boost his season's total to 23, tops in either major league.

Mantle's three for four boosted his batting average to .433, high in the American League, but 30 points behind the .463 mark held by the Cardinals' Ken Boyer, the majors' pace-setter.

The Yankees stretched their lead to one and a half games as Cleveland moved past Chicago into second place. The Indians nipped Baltimore, 2-1, on Jim Hegan's double scoring Al Rosen in the ninth inning while Washington shipped Chicago, 4-2. Detroit broke loose for 20 hits to drub Boston, 16-4.

13 Strikeouts in First Game.

Little Don Ferrarese of Baltimore lost a heart-breaker to Cleveland and veteran Bob Lemon. The 27-year-old Californian fanned 13, two short of the major league record for a first-time starting pitcher, and yielded six hits. Bob Feller of Cleveland and Karl Spooner of Brooklyn each whipped 15 in their first starting assignments.

Lemon pitched a four-hitter, including Chuck Diering's fourth-inning homer. Rosen homered for Cleveland in the fifth to tie it at 1-1.

Another Lemon, Jim Lemon of the Washington Senators, clubbed a homer and two doubles in Washington's win over Chicago but it was Roy Sievers's single scoring Ernie Oravetz from second in the seventh which proved to be the winning run. Chuck Stobbs held the White Sox to six hits, including Minnie Minoso's homer and two singles.

Seven-Run Inning.

The Tigers broke loose with seven runs in the fourth inning to break a tie and then kept the massacre going. Harvey Kuenn drove in four runs while Bill Tuttle and Charley Maxwell contributed four hits apiece for Detroit in the rout. Southpaw Billy Hoeft, whose 10-hitter gave him his second win, scored four times and had two RBIs on three hits and three walks.

Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer also hit Yankee home runs to help Mickey McDermott gain his first triumph of the season. Lou Kretlow, former Brownie, was the loser.

In the National League the Cincinnati Reds rallied in the ninth to tie the Pirates, on a home run by Ted Kluszewski, and then won in the tenth, 7-6, on Gus Bell's single which scored Rocky Bridges from second. Cincinnati (9-6) is even in the win-lost column with league-leading Milwaukee but a half game behind the Cardinals, who are second in percentage.

Two other N.L. contests—New York at Milwaukee and Philadelphia at Chicago—were postponed.

Concordia Is 10-5 Loser at Westminster

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., May 5—The Westminster College Bluejays exploded for four runs in the seventh inning and two more in the eighth to rout Concordia Seminary, 10 to 5, here this afternoon behind the five-hit pitching of Vernon Duke.

Paul Hein, starting Concordia hurler who began this season as a catcher, was kayoed in the eighth inning. It was just the second victory of the season for Westminster, and Concordia's fifth setback against six victories.

In Westminster's big seventh, the Bluejays bunched four singles with an error and a squeeze play to overcome an early Seminary advantage. Hank Kuhn made two of Concordia's five hits, one a homer, and Schwieder hit for the circuit for the Bluejays.

16-Year-Old Is Winner of Foils Title in Meet

Sixteen-year-old Judy Goodrich of Lapeer, Mich., a fencer for four years, experienced little trouble to retain her women's foil title on yesterday's opening program in the Midwest Fencing Championships at the St. Louis University gymnasium.

Miss Goodrich, a junior in high school, literally swept her way through the lone women's event on the two-day fencing schedule. She scored 4-0 triumphs in both the preliminary and the semifinal action. The Michigan fencer then completed the finals with an 8-0 record. There were only six touches scored against her by the opposition. Susan Thompson of the Illinois squad finished second fith a won and lost record of 7-1.

The lone St. Louis entrant in the foils, Mrs. Muriel Witte, also a bowler, tied Joan Steigerwald of Northern Ohio team for fifth place with 3-5. The foil has a tapering rectangular blade 35 inches long.

Albert Wolff of Louisville, member of the 1952 United States Olympic team and a Pan-American contenstant, again won the men's epee event with a 7-1 record. Raul Martinez and Paul Mortenson each wound up with a 5-3 mark but Martinez took the second place honors on points.

The men's saber title went to John Cameron of Chicago who had a 7-0 record in the final round. Art Schankin was next in line with 6-1.

Today's final session starts at 9 a.m. with the action confined entirely on the men's foil event. There are 35 entries. There's no admission charge.

Big Night for Favorites at Fairmount Park

By Herman Wecke

The combination of the Mikel Farm ownership, Trainer C. C. Lemons and Jockey Mitchell Husser won two races in succession last night at Fairmount Park when Ziggity scored in the fifth and Signal Code romped home first in the five-and-a-half furlong sixth event.

Ziggity was an even-money favorite in a field of seven and was among several choices of the 9000 fans to capture early races. Favorites won four of the first six. Signal Code paid $7.00, $3.40 and $2.60 across the board as Mr. Blue Sky, the 4-5 favorite, was soundly beaten.

Shortest daily double payoff of the week-old meeting was recorded when Miss Lista and Lady Pad, both favorites, paid only $21 for $2.

Jake Colclasure, the leading rider of the meeting, also scored a double when he piloted Host Gogi to its second victory in five nights in the featured seventh race. Colclasure had won aboard Be Man in the third. Be Man paid $18.80, Host Gogi $6.40.

Junior Bills' Reluctant Hurler Beats Webster In State Meet

Homer by Fassler in 8-7 Win

By John J. Archibald

Tom Fassler, the No. 2 pitcher but probably the No. 1 hitter on St. Louis University's High School's team, let his bat make up for earlier pitching troubles and enabled the Junior Billikens to overcome Webster Groves, 8 to 7, in an extra inning state tournament game yesterday at Forest Park.

In the last half of the seventh inning, with one man on base and his team trailing, 7 to 5, Fassler swung into one of Jerry Wolff's fast balls and sent it sailing into a distant street for a game-tying home run. Coach Jim Robinson's Junior Bills won in the eighth, when with two on and none out, Gary Mockler singled off relief pitcher Jim Hanlon.

The game was a District One semifinal. St. Louis U. High will play Cleveland this week at a time and place to be decided later, with the winner to advance to a sectional elimination game at Columbia. Four other district finals will be played this week in St. Louis.

Fassler was not expected to be the starting pitcher for St. Louis U. High. Strong-armed George Werley was ill during the past week because of a strep throat infection, however, and Coach Robinson decided not to risk Werley's health, although the boy attended school Friday and was in uniform for the game.

Webster Leads, 7-2.

Even Fassler, who plays first base when not pitching, had his doubts.

"I think George is ready, Coach," Fassler mentioned, as Webster hitters and his own control bothered him in the early innings.

But Robinson, who has coached both boys for several seasons in American Legion ball, didn't think it was time to let George do it.

"You just stay in and pitch," Robinson told him.

Webster piled up an impressive 7-2 lead in the first two innings, although shaky fielding by the Junior Bills made things tougher for Fassler.

A walk, an error and a two-run single by Dave Fox brought Webster three runs in the second. St. Louis got two of them back in its half of the inning on a triple by Jim Wilson with two on.

In the third, however, Webster appeared to have sewn up the game with four more runs. The bases were loaded on two walks and a single, then Pitcher Jerry Wolff drove in two runs with a sharp hit to right. An error and a hit by Bob Viehmann accounted for two more markers.

Warms Up to Task.

Webster didn't know it, but it had given Fassler all the trouble he was going to have. Coach Froebel Gaines's Statesmen made only one more hit in the remaining five innings, a single by Viehmann in the eighth.

St. Louis U. High, cheered on by a good-sized crowd of faculty priests, students and parents, continued to chip away at the Webster lead. Finally, in the seventh, clean-up batter Fassler tied it up with his dramatic line drive into left field.

Fassler, a brother of Wally Fassler—a former St. Louis U. High star and now a shortstop in the Cardinal organization—struck out three men in the first of the eighth. When Wilson led off the St. Louis half of the inning with his third hit and Wolff ran up a 2 and 1 count on Jim Wetzel, Webster Coach Gaines had Wolff and First Baseman Jim Hanlon change places.

Hanlon had only the brief warm-up allowed incoming pitchers, then pitched the third and fourth ball to Wetzel. Mockler, who had struck out three times previously against Wolff, lined the second pitch down the third base line for the game-winning hit.

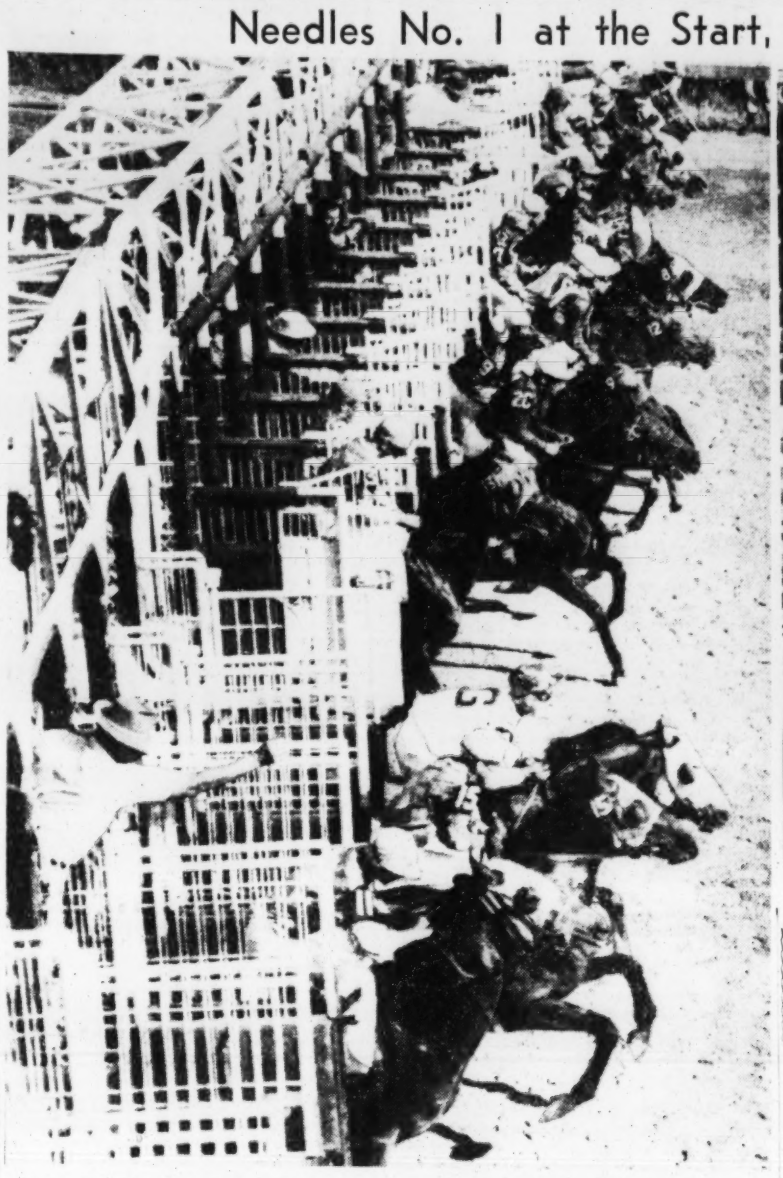
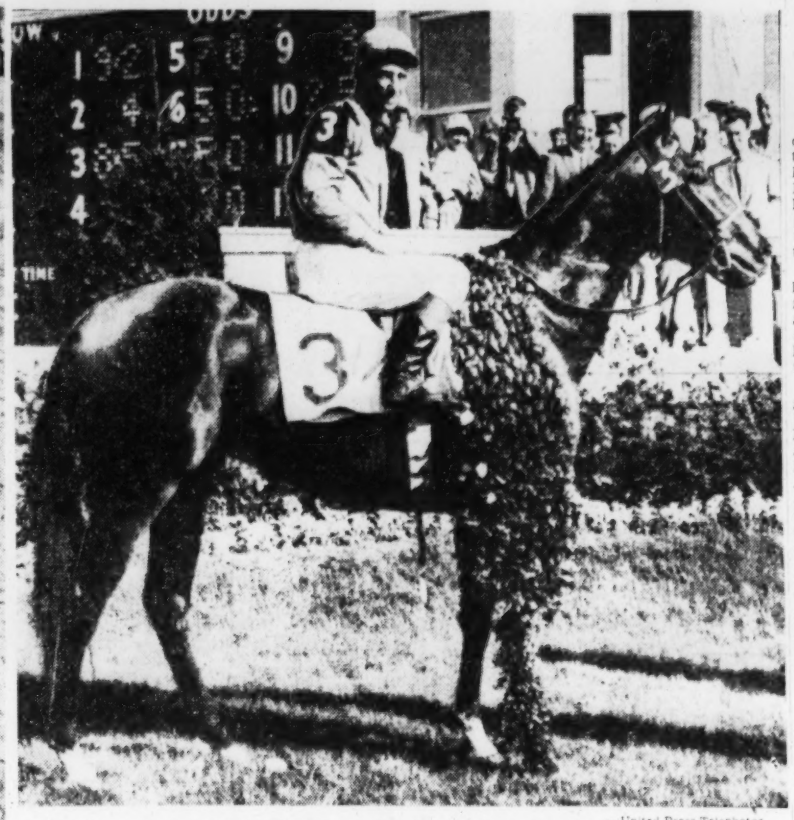
Needles No. 1 at the Start, and Top Horse at the Finish



All but Nos. 10 and 13 appear to be getting off to a fast break as the barrier is sprung to start the Kentucky Derby. An assistant starter is seen close to the camera, with right hand extended on the gate.



— United Press Telephoto.

Victorious pair, Jockey DAVE ERB and the Derby winner Needles, photographed in the winner's circle immediately after the finish of the Kentucky Derby.

Needles's Rider, Dave Erb, Left Sickbed to Win Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—A joyous Dave Erb, dripping wet after his Kentucky Derby victory, was "plenty worried" when Needles was pinched close to the rail making the first turn.

"Career Boy pinched up," the 33-year-old Californian said in the jockey room after the race. "Not on purpose, mind you, but we were in trouble.

"All at once the horses spread out," he went on," and we cut for the outside. We had clear sailing then but we just had two horses beat and we were at least 15 lengths behind the front horse."

Erb said Needles gave him some anxious moments again going down the back stretch.

"He spit out his bit," he said, "and I thought 'Oh my gosh.' He grabbed it again, though, and started running. He was all horse after that. All champion."

Erb came out of his sick bed to ride his first Derby winner. A bad cold had nagged him for five days.

"I don't feel right with this cold," he said, "but I feel pretty good over this win. You can bet I'm gonna take some time off to get well."

Responded to Whip.

Erb said he started his move about three and one-half furlongs from the finish.

"I hit him there for the first time," he said. "He responded real good. I hit him five or six times, I guess, coming up the stretch.

"Then we got head and head with Fabius and I knew we were in."

Erb said today's race was the swift Needles' best.

"Before this the Florida Derby was best," he said, "but today he had more horses to beat."

Willie Hartack, who nearly made it with Fabius, said he had no excuses. Fabius ran a good race, he thought.

"He didn't get any slower," Hartack said of Fabius. "Needles just got faster."

Hugh Fontaine, Needles' trainer, said no particular strategy was planned for the horse. He credited the victory to "good owners, a good horse and a doggone good rider."

The owners, Jackson Dudley and Bonnie Heath of Ocala, Fla., were overjoyed.

Heath said, "I'm both proud and happy. That's about all you can say."

Dudley was reminded that Needles became the first horse with an "N" name to win the Derby.

"Needles has changed a lot of things," he said.

Erb's wife, Beverly, and their 12-year-old son, David Darrell Erb, were first to greet the 33-year-old rider in the winner's circle.

Mrs. Erb, a pretty blonde, said she wasn't sure of victory till the race was over.

Caught in a Squeeze.

Young David said he never had a doubt about the outcome, even when Needles got in trouble on the first turn.

"I knew he'd win," the boy said.

Al Popara, who rode third with Come On Red, said he had to pull out of a squeeze about three-eighths of a mile from home.

116 Players in Ten Years.

A total of 116 players have been on the roster of the Cleveland Browns during 10 years in football.

Billikens Lose Valley Game To Bradley

Bradley came back from its double defeat Saturday to beat the St. Louis University Billikens, 7 to 1, yesterday in Forest Park. The game closed regularly-scheduled Eastern Division play in the Missouri Valley Conference with each of the teams having two defeats.

Bradley has seven victories, however, compared to St. Louis's five; and, unless the Bills are allowed to make up two rained-out games with Detroit, the Peoria team will advance into the conference playoffs.

Bradley opened yesterday's game with two runs in the first inning. Three walks by St. Louis starter Lou Ortmann and a single by the Braves' Mike Kesseler produced the scores. A hit batsman, a Billiken error and two singles led to three more Bradley tallies in the second; and two hits produced two insurance runs in the third.

St. Louis scored its lone run in the second on John Vitale's double and Harold Alcorn's single.

Bradley's starter, Fred Davis, and St. Louis reliefer Bill Schail both pitched scoreless ball after the third inning.

Ex-Flyer, Oil Man, Polo Player, Farmer and Yachtman--That's Trainer of the Derby Winner

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—"I waited 60 years for this glorious moment," said the ever-cheerful Hugh Fontaine today watching Needles win the Kentucky Derby today.

And the 60-year-oid trainer wasn't far from being right as to the time. Most of his life has been spent with horses, with time out to win the Distinguished Service Cross three times as a World War I flying ace, a short excursion into the oil business, polo playing and farming before switching to the selling of yachts.

It was his yacht business that led to his Kentucky Derby triumph.

When Jack Dudley and Bonnie Heath formed the D. and H. Stable, they persuaded Fontaine to leave yachts and do their training.

Happy Land-Lubber.

Needles soon became a member of the stable and the red-faced trainer, who always carries his shillalah, has never regretted leaving the water for dry land.

"Two fine bosses, a good horse and a great jockey made me look good," he said after the race.

Fontaine was born in New Orleans but has plied his varied trades in just about every section of the country. As a youth he wanted to be a doctor but found later medicine didn't appeal to him. He quit the University of Missouri to enter the Aviation School of the Signal Corps, then training reserve officers. When war was declared, Hugh immediately was commissioned a first lieutenant.

He went overseas with the 91st Observer Squadron and later was transferred to the 49th Pursuit Group.

On his discharge from the Army he worked in Oklahoma oil fields and was among the first to drill for oil in Texas in the 1920 boom.

His Horse History.

Every restless, Fontaine left the oil fields for the cotton fields of Mississippi but soon was found in the business of buying, breaking and selling polo ponies in Memphis, Tenn.

Racing then beckoned. He spent a long period as manager and trainer of the late W. R. Coe's Shoshone stud. Probably his greatest horse was Ladysman, winner of the Suburban Handicap.

On the death of Coe he took over Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable before going out on his own, first as a trainer than an official. Somehow he drifted into the yacht brokerage business but it wasn't for long.

Needles was waiting.

Fontaine has taken a lot of kidding this week on whether the horse didn't actually train himself. Today he had the comeback.

"I don't care who trains him, just as long as he wins races like the Derby."

U. S. Taps Needles' Trainer for $2000 Taxes; He Laughs

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (UP)—Uncle Sam had a special interest in today's 82nd Kentucky Derby—Hugh Fontaine, trainer of Needles, the winner.

While still on the reception stand he was served an attachment on his winnings for about $2000 in back federal income taxes.

Fontaine commented: "That don't botner me, boy. Not today."

He laughed and said, "It's just an old tax matter. We're not that cheap."

The attachment is on Fontaine's 10 per cent share of the winner's $123,450 purse—about $12,345.

The government claims Fontaine owes taxes for 1943. The judgment against Fontaine was issued in 1950 in New York City. Photographers took his picture holding the gold Derby cup. He scarcely had put it down when the marshals substituted the attachment. Fontaine smiled and replied, "Thank you."

Winner 3-year-old black colt by Ponder-Noodle Soup by Jack High. Trained by H. L. Fontaine.

In gate 4:33, off 4:33½ C.D.T. Start good, won driving. Needles, well handled, saved ground when outrun to the last three-eighths mile, was sent to the middle of the track for the stretch run and, responding readily to urging, wore down Fabius and won going away. Fabius, well placed from the start, took command approaching the stretch, held on gamely when set down in the drive but was unable to withstand Needles. Come On Red, far back early, moved up boldly entering the stretch, finished willingly under punishment but was not good enough for the top pair. Count Chic, unable to keep up early, made a good bid in the early stretch, then failed to rally when hard urged in the drive. Pintor Lea gradually worked way forward to the stretch, remained next to the inner rail for the drive but could not threaten the leaders, pulling up sore. Career Boy lacked early foot but finished fairly well. No Regrets tired after showing early speed. Head Man raced forwardly placed to the mile but had nothing left for the stretch run. King O' Swords bumped with Invalidate at the start and failed to recover. High King was never dangerous. Jean Baptiste raced far back throughout. Terrang had early speed but failed to stay. Black Emperor was far back the entire trip. Besomer was through early. Invalidate had brief speed after bumping with King O' Swords at the break. Ben A. Jones was through early. Countermand could not keep up.

Vanatta Quits Bradley for Memphis State

PEORIA, May 5 (UP)—Chuck Orsborn, Bradley freshman basketball coach, was named to succeed Bob Vanatta as head basketball coach tonight.

Vanatta resigned at noon to accept a similar post at Memphis State college.

John I. (Dutch) Meinen, 58, was named as Bradley's new director of athletics. Vanatta held both positions before he quit.

Meinen, chairman of the physical education department since February, has been a coach at Bradley for 25 years.

Vanatta, who also was made athletic director at Bradley early this year, will report to Memphis State in June. He will succeed Gene Lambert, who moves to Alabama as basketball coach.

Bradley had a record of 13 wins and 13 defeats last season.

Nashua Wins, Nears Citation's Record as Greatest Money Winner

Total Is $1,077,615 For Career

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Millionaire Nashua stumbled to his knees coming out of the starting gate, but still had enough to fight off a half dozen eager rivals and win the $50,000-added Grey Lag Handicap at bulging Jamacia today.

A capacity crowd of 38,787 saw the courageous son of Nasrullah, under a fine ride by Ted Atkinson, recover quickly, take over the lead at three-quarters of a mile, then squash tremendous closing bid by Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Find to haul down top money of $37,100.

The victory ran Nashua's earnings to $1,077,615, just $8,145 short of the all-time money winner Citation. It also was his eighteenth victory in 23 starts and came two years to the day after winning his first race at neighboring Belmont Park.

The big 4-year-old toured the mile and one-eighth route in 1:50 3-5 and paid $3.90, $3.10 and $2.50 as the overwhelming favorite. Find paid $5.80 and $4.30 and C. V. Whitney's Fisherman, who took the show spot a head back of Find, paid $4.80.

Atkinson was a pleased rider when he took his charge to the paddock.

"Other than the fact that he stumbled pretty badly at the gate, there was nothing you could blame him for had he been beaten," said Atkinson, who rode Nashua only once before in a race—his winning effort in the Wood Memorial last year.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Joe Jones was fourth a length and three-quarters behind Fisherman, while the Cockfield Stable's Le Beau Prince, who was backed down to second choice, got home fifth a neck back of Joe Jones.

Jim Beats John, Both Beat 4 Minutes

—United Press Telephoto.

There was not much of a gap at the finish as the two Australians, JIM BAILEY (right) and JOHN LANDY, finished their special mile race at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, yesterday. Bailey won in 3 minutes 58:6 seconds; Landy was timed at 3:58.7. It was the first time in history the four minute mile had been bettered in the United States.

Landy Loses U. S. 4-Minute Mile

I ever ran and I picked a good day for doing it. I let Landy pace me, then I put on my spurt near the end. I feel fine . . . the track was real good."

Landy said that at the 1500-meter mark he felt hot breath on his back and discovered it was Bailey.

"It was as if he was saying to me, 'Okay, let's go.'"

Landy said Bailey is a runner with strong determination and predicted "he is the sort of a runner who could win the Olympic title."

As for his own performance today, Landy said:

"I haven't got an excuse in the book."

LOS ANGELES, May 5 (AP)—Here is the chart, in horse racing style of the special mile race in Memorial Coliseum today:

| PP | ¼ | ½ | ¾ | Fin. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2. J. Bailey — | 3 | 4 | 3 | 1 |

| 6. D. Schwelkart | 5 | 6 | 7 | 6 |
| 4. L. Spurrier — | 6 | 3 | 4 | 7 |

In gate 2:52, off 2:53. Pdt. Winning time 61.0, 2:5:0, 3:03.5, 3:58.6. Start good. Won driving. Bailey, held off pace, responded when asked, took command in stretch and held on at finish. Landy took lead midway, hung in stretch but held on gamely. Delany took quick lead, failed to hold, tiring at finish. Dellinger ran evenly, closed strong but too far out. Walters lacked sharpness, failed to improve position. Schweiart green, never figured. Spurrier had good middle speed but faded badly to finish far out.

Net to winner: gold medal.

Illini's Jefferson Gains 171 Yards In Spring Game

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 5 (UP)—Veteran halfback Harry Jefferson totaled 171 yards and scored both touchdowns as the Blues defeated the Whites, 14-7 today in the annual Illinois spring football squad game.

Jefferson was the individual star of the afternoon, scoring on short plunges for both his touchdowns.

The Blues scored early in the first quarter to cap a 70-yard march and then pushed across another touchdown in the final period for the winning margin. The second touchdown came after a recovered fumble immediately following the start of the final period.

Quarterback Hiles Stout kicked both extra points.

The Whites' score came just after the start of the second half as they drove 67 yards after taking the kickoff.

Dale Smith, a freshman halfback from Georgetown, Ill., was the key figure in the White march. He rambled 22 yards for the touchdown. Quarterback Tom Haller added the extra point.

The longest run came on the final play of the game as a little White freshman scatback, Fred Keys, raced 80 yards to put the ball on the 15-yard line as time ran out.

Kirkwood Wins U. City Meet; Silver Stars

By Harold Tuthill

Bob Silver, the stylish weight man who led the Kirkwood tract team to triumph in the Clayton meet with three firsts, yesterday repeated his tactics to pace the Pioneers of Emil Wiggins to victory in the nineteenth annual carnival at University City.

Silver, with a distance of 143 feet, 7½ inches in the discus, a leap of 21 feet, 1½ inches in the broad jump and an effort of 5-8 in the high jump, was responsible for 15 of the 72 1-5 points scored by Kirkwood in competition for seniors and juniors.

University City was second with 54 7-10 points, only the second time the Tribe of Henry Schemmer failed to finish on top. Kirkwood also won out in 1953.

Only three records were broken, two of them in relay races. University City lowered the half-mile mark of 1:33 set by the 1953 combination of Greenberg, Bengel, Wolff and Rosenberg with a time of 1:32.8. Sam Marks led off, was followed by Harvey Blumenthal, and John Ciccarelli, while Bill Comfort ran a speedy anchor leg to beat out Kirkwood, which also ran faster than the old time.

Ladue's crack junior relay team of John Camie, Jim Brown, Mike Bottom and Jim Portmann bettered their 1:34.9 time in the preliminaries. They ran the final in 1:33.5. The old record of 1:35.7 was set by Maplewood in 1948 when Binkey Broeder ran for the Leafs. Others on that quartet were Art Buzzanga, Don Hoel and Jim Sullivan.

Jim Malloy of Webster Groves, accounted for the third new mark and he had to beat a good competitor, Bob Barnes of Clayton, to do it. Malloy ran the 440 in 51.3 seconds which broke the mark of 51.8 set by Tom Pott of Kirkwood in 1952 and equalled by Phil Crow of University City last year.

Third place in the meet for Suburban schools went to Ladue, which had a total of 47 points, the majority of them gained in the junior division, where the Rams piled up the most points, 38. Kirkwood made 53 of its points in the senior group.

Bears to Play Wash. & Lee on Thanksgiving

The traditional Thanksgiving Day college football game will return to St. Louis this year as part of the tenth anniversary celebration of Washington University's amateur athletic program.

Washington and Lee will be the opponent of the Bears on the Nov. 22 Turkey Day game, first such holiday contest at Francis Field since 1941, when Washington played the Missouri Miners from Rolla.

A six-game home W.U. schedule announced last night by Athletic Director Blair Gullion includes dates with five "old" rivals and the University of South Dakota as a newcomer.

All Hilltop athletes who have played with Bear teams over the last nine years will be honored at the Western Michigan game Oct. 20. The amateur program, formulated by former Chancellor Arthur H. Compton, was initiated with the 1947 football season.

South Dakota, coached by Ralph E. (Boot) Stewart, a Missouri U. and McKinley High alumnus, will be the homecoming opponent of Washington Oct. 27, replacing Western Reserve on the Bear schedule.

Sept. 29—Missouri Miners at Washington.
Oct. 6—Wabash College at Crawfordsville, Ind.
Oct. 13—Drake at Des Moines, Ia. (night).
Oct. 20—Western Michigan at Washington.
Oct. 27—South Dakota at Washington (homecoming).
Nov. 3—Southern Illinois at Washington.
Nov. 10—Bradley at Washington.
Nov. 17—Butler at Indianapolis.
Nov. 22—Washington & Lee at Washington (Thanksgiving day).

St. Louis Team Rolls 2700 in ABC Tourney

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROCHESTER, May 5—Ruhl's No. 1 team of St. Louis probably will pick up a few dollars in prize money in the regular team event of the annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

The St. Louis team rolled 2700 on games of 865, 886 and 949 to finish about five pins higher than the estimated low to win cash in the tournament, ABC officials predict it will take about 2695 to make the prize list.

The Ruhl's team was led by Nathan Meyer, who rolled 578 on games of 180, 188 and 210.

However, Ruhl's No. 2, also of St. Louis, finished near the bottom of its 39-team squad tonight as it rolled only 2254 on games of 710, 742 and 802.

Sweep of Both Hurdles Helps Missouri Down Army Track Team, 81-59

Pete Orr First in 220, 440

WEST POINT, N.Y., May 5 (AP)—The University of Missouri track team made a highly successful invasion on Eastern track and field territory as it downed Army today, 81-59.

Bobby Lang, Big Seven indoor high jump champion, cleared six feet, six inches to establish a new Military Academy track record. The former mark, six feet, five and one-eighth inches was set in 1947 by Bill Vessie of Columbia.

Both squads registered two sweeps each, the Cadets in the hammer and discus and the Tigers in the low and high hurdles. The Tigers won 10 of 16 events.

Missouri sprinter Pete Orr emerged as lone double winner of the day by taking first in the 220- and 440-yard dashes. The Tiger speedster also managed to pull the mile relay out of the hole as he overcame a 12-yard deficit in the anchor lap to win going away.

Missouri's strong hurdles combination of Bill Constantine and Charley Batch, made the event seem easy to spectators as they played turn-about. Constantine first, Batch second in the highs and vice versa in the low hurdles.

Army broad jumper, team Captain Al Thelin, remained undefeated in competition this year as he took honors in the fourth outdoor meet of the season for the Cadets.

Bolstered by Fred Weisel's first place in the shot put, Missouri established an early 21 to 16 edge. With succeeding triumphs by Karl Englund, pole vault, and Harold Beard, half mile, Missouri remained in front throughout the meet.

Belleville Pitchers Allow Only One Hit

Everett Kassing pitched one-hit ball for six innings and Kent Weisenstein hurled the last frame as Belleville defeated Alton, 6 to 0, in a Southwestern Illinois Conference game yesterday at Belleville. The victory put Belleville in a tie for first place with East St. Louis, both with 4-1 records.

The only hit Kassing allowed was a single in the fourth inning by Paul Osborne. Coach Boots Budde had Weisenstein hurl the seventh in order to loosen up for a conference game Monday at Edwardsville.

Yale Crew Victor In Carnegie Regatta

DERBY, Conn., May 5 (AP)—A powerful Yale varsity crew improved its Olympic hopes today by scoring a length and a quarter victory over favored Cornell in the Carnegie Cup Regatta on the Housatonic river two-mile course. Princeton was third, five lengths off the winning pace.

Yale, stroked by Sophomore Bob Morey of Short Hills, N.J., led from the start in the choppy water, and once under way, left no doubt of its superiority in sending Cornell and Princeton down to their first defeats of the season.

Occidente of Mexico to Test Simpkins at P.S.S. Tonight

By Dent McSkimming

If this team from Guadalajara does as well as the last visitor from Mexico, St. Louis's soccer reputation could suffer a setback at Public Schools Stadium this evening. But, Club Occidente, the visitor, has not established itself this season as so strong a team as Atlante was in 1940, and there is room, therefore, to hope for a solid victory by the St. Louis representative, Simpkins.

Game time is 8:30 p.m., with a preliminary, featuring the western Junior champion St. Engelbert team, at 7 p.m.

Fans here will recall that a team of St. Louis "stars" had a similar date with Mexican tourists at the same field on June 5, just 16 years ago. The outcome was a sad 6-1 reverse for the home team. However, the Atlante club then contained many of Mexico's greatest professional players, including some stars imported from Spain. The St. Louis team that collapsed in the second half was made up of: Glenn Schaefer; Bill Conners and Tom Duffy; Red Davis, Ed Sanders and Joe Randazzo; Art Gardia, Henry Vasquez, Bill Schuler, Bill Fogarty and Joe Stratmann, plus substitutions.

Strong Replacements.

The outlook today is better. Manager Joe Numi, reaching out for reinforcements to take the place of some o f his injured players, has chosen well. He has five in his starting lineup who have played for the United States: Frank Borghi, Charley Colombo, Bill Looby, Ruben Mendoza and Gino Pariani, and another on the roster who may not start, Frank Wallace.

Occidente's outside right, Nino Flores, is in that international category, too. He played center forward for Mexico in the World Cup games of 1949-50, opposing the United States team in the preliminary round and meeting the American players later in Brazil when these two teams were quartered at the same Rio hotel.

Other Standouts.

Other acknowledged standouts on the Occidente team include Goalie Lupe Alvarez and Center Halfback Jorge Rodriguez. Manager Max Prieto expects his team to win the game and the applause of St. Louis fans by its clever ball control.

"A game in St. Louis was a must when we made up our itinerary," said Manager Prieto. "We have been hearing for years that this city supplies many of the players chosen on the United States teams. We were eager, too, to oppose a real American-born team. At Chicago our opponents will be Mexican-born members of the Necaxa club. At Toronto we will face Canadians and players imported from the British Isles; at Detroit it will probably be transplanted European players, and so on. We have looked forward to this game in St. Louis and we are ready for a hard game."

Next Soccer Show May 18.

This will be the last soccer show here until Friday night, May 18, when the Kutis team opposes Augsburg of Germany. . . . The national Amateur title series between Kutis and the eastern champion (not yet established) will not start until May 27 or later. . . . Occidente stands second in the First Division of Mexico's amateur soccer. It comes from a locale that produces many of Mexico's greatest players and from a state (Jalisco) that has won more national amateur championships than any other in Mexico.

St. Engelbert, western Junior champion, will oppose the Tabacchi team in the preliminary. . . . St. Engelbert last Sunday defeated Schwaben at Chicago for the western division title and is waiting for a date with the eastern Junior champion. . . . Everton, the English League team that plays here June 2, has added another Irish League star to its roster, bringing its total of Irish players to five. He is Don Donovan, so versatile he has played four different positions. . . . Everton will face a team of C.Y.C. League stars.

Tommy Bolt, Under Control, Leads Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 5 (UP) — Tempestuous Tommy Bolt, who has had his temper under control for three straight days, forged to the fore at the three-quarters pole of the $25,000 Colonial national invitation golf tournament today with a two-under-par 68 and a 210 total.

Bolt, Chattanooga, Tenn., playing at a remarkably even keel, got into trouble late in today's third round over the rugged Colonial Country Club par 35-35—70 layout, but stuck it out for a 35-33—68 that shunted him from a tie for second into the lead by one stroke.

It was a big accomplishment for the normally high-tempered Bolt, because he bogeyed three of the first five holes—a fate that normally would have been climaxed by a club-smashing spree. Instead, the 38-year-old Oklahoman settled down and birdied five of the next seven holes to turn into the final 18 holes with an edge in the run for the $5000 top money.

Pushing him at this point were two of the contrasting figures of professional golf—massive Mike Souchak, the former Duke fullback from Grossinger's N.Y., and angular, 125-pound, Gardner Wickinson Jr., of Panama City, Fla.

The powerfully-built Souchak equalled the competitive course record wiht a sparkling 32-33—56 that saw him putting for birdies on 17 of the 18 holes, while Dickinson rode a hot putter into a 34-33—67 with birdie putts of 12, 8, 18, and 15 feet. Souchak's birdie putts traveled 16, 25, 12, 3, 15 and 15 feet.

Their runner-up position wasn't real secure, however, for for little Bo Wininger of Oklahoma City turned in a 34-36—70 that left him at 212, and young Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, O., turned in his second straight 72 to stop at 213 after sharing the lead at the start of the round with British Open champ Peter Thomson.

Florida U. Golfer Wins Southern Title

ATHENS, GA., May 5 (AP)—Dave Ragan, 20-year-old University of Florida junior, put together rounds of 71 and 73 today to finish five strokes ahead of Dick Whetzle of North Texas State and win the 19th Southern Intercollegiate golf tournament.

Ragan's card for the 72-hole tournament was 70-70-71-73—284. Par for the 6750-yard Athens Country Club course is 72.

FRED UHLE, who rolled a perfect game of 300 in the Sunday Handicap League at Holmes Bowl last Sunday. It was the first perfect game for Uhle, who has been bowling three years, and the 22nd in the St. Louis district this season. Uhle had a 708 total for his three games.

Doris Hart Teaches and Is Taught Here

A group of about 150 tennis fans, mostly juniors, watched St. Louis-born Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., now a professional after ranking No. 1 in the United States for the past two years, perform at a special clinic program yesterday afternoon at the Triple A Club in Forest Park.

Miss Hart, who turned pro last November to accept a teaching position at the Flamingo Hotel in Miami Beach, was given a lesson, too, on the program. Earl (Butch) Buchholz, second ranking boys player in the country, was quite used to the Triple A "hill" wind and beat Miss Hart in a 6-1 singles match. Later she paired with Butch to beat Chuck McKinley and Neil Drury in doubles, 6-2.

The 1954-55 National singles winner is on an eight-week tour during which time she will have played in cities from California to New York. Miss Hart came here from Memphis and will play today in Indianapolis.

Team Needs Players.

The Harris-Henson Atoms of the Khoury League are well-supplied with pitchers, but need players at all other positions. Catchers, infielders and outfielders interested are asked to contact Ben Sobelman at VO 3-4602 between 9 a.m. and noon today.

Finding Muny Favorite No Problem, Finding Games May Be

C.S.M.C. Appears Stronger

By Neal Russo

You may not need a scorecard to tell the players on the Carondelet Sunday Morning Club No. 1, defending champion, but you'll need a schedule to find out where Carondelet and most of the other Muny senior baseball teams are opening today.

Carondelet, managed by Monte Gummels and coached by Mark Christman, is virtually standing pat, roster-wise, although the team has made an addition where it's hardly needed, slugger Marv Hacay, who was with Kutis North last season. So the South Siders, with strong pitching, a devastating attack, speed and a tight defense, have to be regarded as favorites to repeat as champions.

Both the South Side League, topped by Carondelet, and the North Side circuit, headed by defending champion Kutis North, have been forced to shift their openers, and perhaps the games for the next few Sundays, because of delays in erecting lights at Carondelet Park No. 1 and Fairground Park No. 1 diamonds. Poles and other equipment are in the way at both fields.

So, at Carondelet Diamond No. 2 today, it will be champion Carondelet against Kimacks, long a pesky rival which has only three regulars from 1955, at 1 o'clock, and Kutis South against Gravois at 3:30.

Borbeins Ready.

Borbein-Young, which has most of the men from last season's state non-pro championship team, along with Shortstop Ken Kortum and Pitcher Ed Gerken, will face Union Printers, its tormenter of 1955, in the 1 o'clock North Side opener at Sherman Park Diamond No. 1. Kutis North plays Polish Falcons at 3:30.

The other holdover senior circuit, Heine Meine, will play all its games at Heine Meine Field instead of dividing them between that diamond and Porky's. Homes are being built on what used to be Porky's.

Only the Hoffmeisters, favored because they have added talented players like Pitcher-Shortstop Duke Wodraska and Outfielders Jim Walker and Jim Doerr, remain from the 1955 Meine circuit. Even the Champion McNearys have disbanded.

However, strong teams have been lined up by the newcomers, including the Red Villas, whose manager is Johnny Tobin, the former Browns' great, and whose pitching staff includes Jess Dobernic, a former Chicago Cub relief ace, and Eddie Albrecht, who was up with the Browns.

The Villas face the Simpkins at 12:45, then the Hoffmeisters meet Carondelet Sunday Morning Club No. 2 at 3:15.

Delay in County.

One of the two new senior affiliated leagues, Berkeley, will have only one game each Sunday for the first month of play because the Wilson Aces have to wait until the high school season ends. They will make up their games at night at Ballwin. Today at 2:30 at Jackson Park in Berkeley, Carter will play Schmersahls. Overland Braves are idle.

The fifth Muny senior league, the Lemay, will get under way later ths month.

Kurt Krieger, ex-Cardinal, will start for Carondelet No. 1 against Kimacks' Mel Anderson, who was with Kutis South last season. Kimack Pilot Herb Mueller has added Bill Fries, Tom Brady and Ed Lind, all of Washington U. Shortstop Bob Ledd, another Bear player, will miss the first two league games because he was suspended following a joust with an umpire in the 1955 playoffs.

Printers Lose Many.

Veteran Frank Moore will open for Borbein against Bob Kalorski or Dutch Ries of the Printers, who have only six holdover players. Their ace hurler, Frank Munsch, is in service, but newcomers include Bob Kaiser, catcher-first baseman, and Vic Caradonna, slugging outfielder.

Chuck Currinder will start for Kutis North against Pat Drury of the Falcons. The Kutis infield is intact, but Lefty Emich, who sat out last season, and Elmer Roberts will join holdover Vern Stout in the outfield and Ace Isringhaus will catch.

Manager Bill Nikolaisen, who piloted the strong Luigis team in the Meine League last season, has several men from that team on this new Simpkins squad. His pitchers include Lefty Joe Rieken, Charley Lavender, Bob Albert, Dan Schuchardt and John Sabourin. Lavender was on the Central High pitching staff with Frankie Baumann.

SLIM RECALLS WHEN HANDBOOKS AND BEER FRAMES WERE PART OF HANDBALL

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

BEN FORTHAUS, who is "Slim" to Francis Park habitues, chats about his favorite game, handball, as a tennis player bangs away at the park court whose walls have a sway-back look.

By Jack Rice

Spring, which gets around, has come to Francis Park and right there waiting for it was Slim, senior handball player and Park Department critic. Handball and the city's disinterest in whether the game stands or falls keep him active at 75.

Slim has a proper name — Ben Forthaus—but it isn't used much. A watchman at the park said, "He's been coming here 14 years I know of. He cleans the snow off the courts sometimes to play. I know him pretty well. Don't know his name, though."

Francis Park is in southwest St. Louis, in a neighborhood of late-model ranch houses and automobiles and barbecue pits, suburbia within the city limits. The park has a baseball diamond, and tennis courts, and well - tended grounds, and two handball courts with walls left over from Jericho. In a strong spring wind the battered walls leaned and groaned and Slim said it wasn't like this under Dwight Davis.

Davis, when he was park commissioner here, helped Slim put up the handball courts in Forest Park. Davis supplied lumber and Slim supplied labor, Slim looked at the Francis Park handball court walls, but looked softly less they tumble, and yearned for the lumber of his youth.

No Cup, Lots of Books.

Early Twentieth Century handball in Forest Park didn't turn out to be much for developing character and what it did develop probably made Davis turn to tennis for true-amateur consolation. Luckily, he isn't here to see how his Cup runneth over. Anyway, there was no Davis Cup for the early handball players in Forest Park, but there were the bookmakers.

"The bookies didn't have the tracks running in the winter for 'em then, like they do now," said Slim. "So they'd make a stable of us handball players. They'd hang around the courts and make book on us. If they'd win, the good bookies would give the player a couple of bucks. It was a real good arrangement for a while but it got ornery. The players started fixing it up among themselves. Why, even a lot of the respectable fellas with a little black sheep still left in 'em used to come out and help take the bookies. It kind of killed the golden goose, you might say."

Slim moved on to Chicago, where there also was handball. It was a substantial sport, with a solid background, played against brick saloon walls. That was outdoor handball at its best, and there was the broadening of travel, too, as the saloon champions of the North Side challenged the saloon champions of the South Side, and each challenged round of handball had its challenge round of beer.

"Toward the end of the day, the handball wasn't as good as it was at the start," Slim said.

Wearing Out the Boards.

And as Slim talked a youth with a tennis racket served a ball to the back wall of the handball court, practicing to win all his matches on service aces. Waiting out tennis players is a recreational hazard of handball players, young and old.

"I've no complaints about that," said Slim, "first come, first served, in a public park. But you take some of these strong-armed kids, 17 or 18, they bang that tennis ball against these walls and that wall's dead, about net-high. Can't hit a handball against it and be sure it'll come back, or drop dead. Can't gamble on a shot on these walls, hardly."

The tennis player went away and a young man, Sal Cilufo, appeared. Slim walked onto the court, and they began a game. The wind blew, the walls swayed, the sun powdered the scant paint left on the trim boards, and Slim's bones gradually warmed. A return shot got by Cilufo, who grinned and said, "You robber!" a handball player's compliment on any court, regardless of condition.

More C.Y.C. Teams in Action

Up to today only the parochial division had seen action.

Two senior leagues start today. At Cherokee Park, St. Anthony plays St. Raphael, then St. John's faces St. Michael. At Sherman No. 2, Holy Cross opposes Mount Carmel before St. Rita meets Sacred Heart.

Ed Furgol Sees Good Week at Sunset for Carling Open Players

72-Hole Test Ends On Sunday

Ed Furgol, a native of sorts, revisited Sunset Country Club's golf course for the first time in 10 years and saw on it the makings of a good week's sport in the $25,000 Carling Open Golf Tournament. The tournament, 72 holes of medal play, begins Thursday and is scheduled to proceed through Sunday, 18 holes per day.

Furgol has been professional at Westwood since 1952 but hadn't played at Sunset since 1946, when the Western Open was held there. "I just kind of fooled around, trying to get the feel of things"; he said. What he contacted was a 71, one under par, plus the impression it "will be a very good driving course, the way they've laid out the fairway."

The fairways have been laid out rather narrow in places, by letting the rough creep forward. If there are other ways of doing it no tournament committee ever thought of it, and Furgol and his brethren tournament veterans are convinced that tournament committees have thought of everything. Sunset's has been outstandingly fair, Furgol believes. Bill Nary, a touring pro who arrived early, agreed with him.

"They haven't let the rough get wild, they've let it grow just enough to help the course," said Nary. "It gives the course what it needs for a championship field," said Furgol. "Sunset is a testy membership course, but without the rough it wouldn't be a good test for the touring pros. Right now, a lot of these fellows are playing at Fort Worth, on a real tough course, and it will gear them up for this tournament. They'll be coming from an exceptional championship course (Colonial) to one of medium cut, as far as toughness is concerned."

Nothing Off the Hills.

Furgol noticed that some tees have been lengthened, but that none of the ground was gained by taking it off the tops of the hills. "I believe, after playing 17 and 18, I'll go get a cardiogram every day," he said. It reminded him to be thankful the tournament doesn't have a 36-hole final day.

Sunset Pro Jim Fogerty said measurements on the growing rough and longer tees noted by Furgol are these: Since the Western Open was held on the course, No. 2 tee is back 10 yards, No. 3 tee is back 40 yards, No. 11 tee 75 yards, No. 13 tee 25 yards and No. 18 50 yards. The back tees add a total of 200 yards.

"The fairways at 9 and 8 are only 30 yards wide," said Fogerty, "but because the course is on the short side, about 6300 yards, it's fair. Actually, it makes it easier for the fine player to hit the mark when he knows exactly where he has to shoot." This may be a comment for a contender to cherish if he lands in the rough late next Sunday afternoon, but Fogertey has reason on his side. "We'll cut the rough to two and a half inches Monday and let it grow the rest of the week," said the club pro, "so it won't be six or seven inches, just a test of brute strength."

The list of golfers thus assured that Sunset intends to give them only reasonable difficulties, not special horrors never inflicted upon the members, includes an excellent gathering of tournament regulars. The Open here is on the P.G.A. tournament schedule. This week at Greenbriar, where Sam Snead is the host-pro to other millionaires, a pro-amateur golf event also is being held. It's competition. The local tournament, though, can consider itself doing well.

Nine Titleholders to Be Here.

Sixteen men have among them the 21 titles won in P.G.A.-schedule tournaments so far. Nine of them, accounting for 12 titles, will be here. Among them is Gene Littler. He won the Las Vegas tournament of champions. It's a nice title, and the cash is nicer ($10,000 first money) but officially he still is only Number Two man in the leading money winners this year. The Las Vegas event is not co-sponsored by the P.G.A., so Cary Middlecoff still leads the official money-winning list.

Littler is among the golfers Furgol expects to arrive geared-up from Fort Worth. Others are Tom Bolt, P.G.A. Champion Doug Ford, United States Open Champion Jack Fleck, and Ted Kroll. Masters Champion Jack Burke, Bob Toski, Julius Boros are entered,. So is that champion of the Last Word Open, clothes and comments, Jimmy Demaret.

Local amateurs will be required to weed themselves out, in qualifying play Tuesday. Some exceptions-on-merit have been made. State Champion Jim Tom Blair, Walker Cup Player Jim Jackson, District Champion Bob Goalby of Belleville and former Illinois Champion Jim Frisina are amateurs who have been exempted from the qualifying round.

The sponsoring brewery firm has added to the prize list a $1500 purse for local pros. More will have changed at Sunset than the tees since Furgol last competed there. "I believe I was eighth," he said when asked how he did in the 1946 Western.

Bus Service and Parking Facilities

SPECIAL parking facilities will be available to spectators at the $25,000 Open golf tournament to be held at Sunset this week, Thursday through Sunday. Club officials have obtained the facilities at Ronnie's Drive-In, a theater south of the club grounds. Macadam-surfaced space for 1100 cars will be available.

Shuttle-bus service will be provided from the theater grounds to the club grounds, and tournament officials say the maximum waiting period will not exceed five minutes. There will not be a charge for parking, but there will be a 50-cent roundtrip charge for the bus ride.

Preliminary events will include a practice round Tuesday, and Wednesday, for the pros, and a trick-shot exhibition and a clinic Wednesday. Wednesday has been designated "Camera day," too, meaning please leave them at home thereafter. Pros are notoriously susceptible to shell-shock from camera shutters. A season, or six-day ticket costs $8. Day-by-day prices are $1.50 for Tuesday and Wednesday, $2.50 Thursday and Friday, $3 Saturday, and $3.50 Sunday.

Polkinghorne Runs for Only Washington TD

With regular Wingback Bob Ladd, Tailback Ken Miles and End Don Schlapprizzi unavailable, the Reds defeated the Greens yesterday, 6 to 0, in an intra-squad Washington U. football game at Francis Field.

Successful was the word, any way you looked at it, regarding Washington University's "High School Athletes Day" yesterday. A pleasing turnout of about 230 prep coaches and sport stars attended the various forums and athletic contests held and Washington University teams won everything in sight—including, perhaps, the hearts of some of the talented athletes.

The Bears won in baseball over Arkansas, in track over Harris Teachers College and Illinois College, in tennis over Eastern Illinois, and then wound up the day in an event which Washington couldn't lose, an intra-squad football game.

With the temperature in the very unfootball-like mid-80's, the Red team defeated the Green, 6 to 0. The lack of scoring could be attributed to several reasons, such as exceptional defensive work, but more likely because many of the prospective point-getting regulars of next fall were engaged in the nearby baseball game. These included Bob Ladd, wingback, Ken Miles, a tailback, and Don Schlapprizzi, a regular end.

Hilltoppers' Nine Again Beats Arkansas.

Washington Bears let Arkansas U. parlay four hits into eight runs, but whipped the visitors, 10 to 8, at Liggett Field yesterday.

The Bears had 14 hits, with starting Pitcher Dick Hatz and Second Baseman Bob Ladd getting three apiece. The triumph gave the Bears a sweep of the two-game series and Coach Irv Utz's team now has a 12 and 5 season record.

Washington scored eight runs in the first three innings. A walk with the bases loaded forced in the initial run and Don Schlapprizzi knocked in two more as the Bears got three in the first. A single by Hatz, a double by Ladd and a triple by Don Kettlekamp brought in two more in the second.

In the third, a walk, a triple by Hatz, Tom Brady's double, and singles by Ladd and Margulos accounted for three runs.

Going into the eighth, the Bears led, 9 to 3, but then things began to happen. After an error and a walk, Hatz was removed. Ed Schall replaced him, and of the four batters he faced, two walked, one reached base on an error, and another singled. Frank Williams then came in, and although one more run (the fifth of the inning) came in on a fielder's choice, he retired Arkansas without further damage.

Successive Eagles On Triple A Course

Bill McCrea shot two successive eagles on the Triple A Golf Club course yesterday. He had a two on the 404-yard No. 7 hole and a three on No. 8, which is 560 yards long. McCrea's score for the round was a three-under-par 32. With him were Ben Feld, Norton Feld and Joe Strubinger.

Tea, Mo., Project Paying Off in Bass

FISHERMEN had a great time pulling whopping big bass from the South Side Conservation Federation's lake at Tea, Mo., last month.

Although Tea Lake is only about 80 miles from St. Louis and includes no more than 40 acres of water, it has started to produce bass that would do credit to Lake Norfork, Bull Shoals Lake and other major impoundments.

Last month, four bass weighing more than seven pounds, one six-pounder and three of more than five pounds each were taken at Tea Lake.

Each year the South Side group gives a prize for the biggest fish in each classification caught at the lake. To prevent fish from growing after being removed from the water, each contest entry must be measured and weighed on the spot by the area caretaker, Earl Fritsch.

Albert A. Heitz, 3525A Nebraska avenue, boated a 7-pound, 5-ounce bass at Tea Lake April 19. A week later he went out with Joseph Petric, who pulled in a bass that topped Heitz's by three ounces.

Heitz, as lake chairman, spends considerable time at Tea. His catch last month included two 5½-pound fish. He casts from a boat, using a silver spoon and pork chunk as bait.

The big bass caught in the lake last month apparently had been there since the impoundment was formed eight or nine years ago.

The South Side Conservation Federation formerly bought fish to keep its lake well stocked, but now has its own rearing project.

Heitz, who is in charge, said: "The Missouri Conservation Commission figures that a 10 per cent return is good on fry placed in a rearing pond.

"From the fry (recently-hatched brood of fishes) we put into our rearing pond last June 1 we had a 26 per cent return when the fish were removed Oct. 28. The bass were then 6 to 11¾ inches long."

Before the fry were placed in the rearing pond, which takes up about one-third of an acre, a chemical solution was added to the water to kill everything in it, Heitz explained. Then a commercial fertilizer and a load of manure were dumped in.

This resulted in good plankton growth, providing food for the young fish. Heitz supplemented their diet with ground meat scraps and soybean meal. The bass-rearing project meant 771 additional bass for Tea lake. An extra 700, the size of fingerlings or somewhat larger, were bought in Iowa.

Although there are also crappie and bluegill in the lake, fishing for these species has not been good so far this year.

'Market Hunter' Arrests.

Fifty-three "market hunters" took an estimated 100,000 ducks and geese from the Beaumont-Houston-Galveston area in Texas in the last two years, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service announces.

Warrants were issued against all 53, of whom 44 have been arrested and arraigned. The clean-up was the biggest in the history of Fish and Wildlife Service, surpassing the arrests of 18 game violators at Reelfoot, Tenn., a few months ago and another 18 at Sacramento Valley, Calif., in 1954.

Illinois is planning to establish a list of record-sized fish caught on hook and line in that state.

The conservation department's magazine, Outdoors in Illinois, is accepting evidence of outstanding catches of bass, crappie, walleye, bluegill, catfish and other species.

It doesn't matter if the catch was made a number of years ago, just so some sort of evidence is submitted—an affidavit, newspaper clippings, photographs.

Henry M. Cook and Roland M. Hoerr of St. Louis have been re-elected trustees of Ducks Unlimited.

Stream fishing for black bass and jack salmon will open May 30 in Missouri.

The August A. Busch Wildlife Area at Weldon Spring also will be opened to fishing May 30.

A public gun show under auspices of the Kahokian Gun Collectors opened yesterday at Shiloh, Ill., and will continue through today. Shiloh is 15 miles east of St. Louis.

The non-profit organization holds such shows four times a year. Rich Lauchli, president, said: "At these shows we have every kind of weapon displayed. Naturally, there are large quantities of sporting guns and it is not unusual to find guns that even local dealers have not received from the factory."

District High School Track Meet Friday

Talent galore will be on display when the annual St. Louis District Class A track trials are held on successive afternoons, Tuesday and Wednesday, at the Public Schools Stadium. Finals will be held at the same time Friday night.

From past performances in senior competition it looks as if Don Herd and Jehoda Gaines of Washington Tech will battle Rufus Davis of McBride in the sprints. Bill Comfort of University City, together with Dan Young of St. Mary's, may dominate the hurdles.

Clayton's Bob Barnes is the district's best quartermiler and Sumner's Ron Gregory should capture mile honors with ease.

Jerry Wilkes of St. Louis U. High could be the meet's big attraction. The husky weight man hit 57 feet for the first time this season when he won the shot put at the East St. Louis relays with a toss of 57 feet, seven inches.

Bob Silver, who is being groomed for a shot at the decathlon title in the Junior Olympic meet early in June, seems a certain point-winner in the discus and high jump.

Vashon's William Sanders looks like the best broad jumper in the area.

Preliminary trials will start at 3:45 on each day. Tuesday there will be eliminations in the senior high hurdles, 100-yard dash, mile, 880-yard relay, 440, broad jump, discus and shot put and junior low hurdles, 100-yard dash and 880-yard relay.

Wednesday's program will consist of the senior low hurdles, half-mile, 220-yard dash, junior 880, 220, shot put, broad jump and discus.

East St. Louis will be favored in the Illinois district meet Friday night at Parsons Field. The meet serves as a proving ground for the state finals at Champaign.

Tigers Release King.

BOSTON, May 5 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers have sent outfielder Chick King to Charleston of the American Association, on 24-hour recall.

The fleet 26-year-old outfielder's departure left the Tigers four more men to cut before the May 16 deadline.

Soccer Doubleheader At Meramec Grounds

Opening games of the Meramec Sport Club summer soccer league schedule will be played this afternoon at the club's grounds. The schedule: Kutis vs. Hennessey-Brickey, 2 p.m.; Jadran vs. Jack Diamonds, 3:30. The Jones club and Spanish Society are the other league teams. A double round-robin will be played.

W.-M. Gets Support Of Southern Loop in Its Row With A.A.U.

RICHMOND, Va., May 5 (UP)—The college of William and Mary had the unanimous support of its 10 fellow members of the Southern Confernce today in a squabble with the amateur Athletic Union.

The Southern Conference yesterday approved a resolution declaring that William and Mary had violated no N.C.A.A. or Southern Conference rules when its track team raced against the Quantico Marines and miler Wes Santee, who is under A.A.U. suspension. The resolution was offered by the presidents of the member schools at the conference's annual spring meeting here.

Virginia's Amateur Athletic Union (A.A.U.) disqualified William and Mary's track team from A.A.U. competition charging that it violated regulations by running against Santee, who was banned for life from A.A.U. competition for alegedly accepting too much expense money. The track meet was held April 14th, and school officials later said there was no mention of individuals participating in the event.

Past conference president Max Farrington of George Washington said he felt the conference should have taken an even stronger stand against the "high-handed" procedures of the A.A.U.

Cubs Release Tremel.

CHICAGO, May 5 (UP)—Pitcher Bill Tremel, who has seen action in only two-thirds of an inning this season, has been optioned out to Tulsa of the Texas league on 24-hour recall by the Chicago Cubs. By cutting Tremel the Cubs' roster is down to 32 players, seven over the limit.

Parochial No-Hitter.

Joe Hennessey of St. Kevin pitched a six-inning 10-0 no-hitter against All Souls in the Northwest County League of the C.Y.C. parochial baseball division. He faced only 20 batters, walking two. The game was called because of a time limit.

Red Sox Option Keough.

Fradean Wilson Becomes Bride Of J. R. French

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 5. Of interest to St. Louisans was the marriage here at 4 o'clock this afternoon of Miss Mary Fradean Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Wilson of Fort Worth, to John Randolph French, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Lunier French, 7235 Northmoor drive, University City, Mo.

The bridegroom's mother was among the out-of-town guests who attended the ceremony in Holy Name Catholic Church where Msgr. Erbrick performed the ceremony, and the reception afterward at Glen Garden Country Club.

Mr. Wilson escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore a chantilly lace and fluffy tulle gown trimmed with seed pearls. The front of the skirt was lace; the back was formed of alternating lace and tulle ruffles in bustle effect and ended in a train. A small petal crown held her fingertip veil. She carried white orchids and stephanotis. She wore her husband's gift, a carved carnelian brooch, presented to his great-grandmother, Mrs. Jules de Janin, by Bishop Martin of Natchitoches, La., as a gift from Pope Leo XIII for her outstanding work on behalf of the Catholic Church in that diocese. The brooch has been handed down to the bride of the eldest son for several generations.

Mrs. M. V. L. Cannon of Arlington, Tex., was matron of honor for her cousin, whose other attendants were Mrs. George R. Belt, Miss Dianne Foster and Melanie Wilson, the bride's sister, junior bridesmaid. The adult attendants wore white delustered satin, with chantilly lace bodices, and white velvet hairbands covered with pearls and veiled in mint green. The junior maid was dressed in a bouffant frock of white lace and tulle.

Lt. Thomas Barton French, brother of the bridegroom, stationed at Reese Air Force Base, was best man. Ushers were J. T. Matthews, cousin of the bride, and George Belt, Fort Worth, and Theodore Dubuque, Harry O'Connell and Joe Russo, St. Louis. Four-year-old Teresa Denise Wilson was her sister's flower girl.

Mr. French will take his bride to Mexico on their honeymoon. They will live in Midland, Tex. He is a St. Louis University graduate; his bride attended Texas Christian University.

Miss Angermueller Married at Church To Richard J. Hayes

LIGHTED tapers down the center aisle of St. Mary Magdalen Church in Brentwood led to an altar banked with woodwardia fern and placed with large bouquets of white chrysanthemums and gladiolas yesterday morning for the wedding of Miss Carol Regina Angermueller and Richard Jude Hayes. After the Rev. Donald J. Hoffman performed the ceremony the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lee Angermueller, 8754 White avenue, Brentwood, gave a reception at the Gatesworth Hotel.

For her wedding the bride chose a princess styled ivory silk taffeta gown with a bejeweled portrait neckline, bouffant skirt and chapel train inset with six vertical panels of chantilly lace embroidered with pearls and crystal beads. She wore a fingertip veil held to a tiara of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white stephanotis and orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Irene Newman of Alton while bridesmaids were Mrs. Eugene R. Bischoff, Mrs. Edward Ward Hayes, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Miss Patricia O'Halloran. Their gowns were pale rose iridescent tissue taffeta with wide necklines and short shirred sleeves. The bell-shaped skirts were gathered to fullness in back. In their hair they wore small fitted hats of shirred malines with face veils to match their dresses and they carried shower bouquets of cymbidium orchids shading from pale pink to deep rose, mixed with variegated ivy leaves.

REPLACE MOISTURIZING OILS IN YOUR SKIN WITH AMAZING Lanolin Plus LIQUID!

Unlike Other Beauty Lotions, This Exclusive Formula is Closest to Natural Skin Oils

Chemists have discovered that lubricants which give softness and pliability to the skin diminish with age. Therefore, Lanolin Plus Liquid (recommended for all women over 25) contains whole lanolin and other beneficial ingredients to counteract skin dryness. This exclusive formula refurbishes natural oils—gives skin a far more youthful look.

Do you know that your skin is robbed of its natural oils every day? Soap does it ...water, sun and wind do it. And when that moisture isn't replaced, your skin is on its way to tiny dry lines, crow's feet and wrinkles.

Replaces Natural Oils

That's why it is so necessary to give your skin regular care with this exclusive formula that replaces natural oils. Lanolin Plus Liquid is made with the heart of lanolin—whole, pure, absorbable lanolin—the scientist's first choice for complexion care because it's so close to Nature's own oils, esters and sterols. Liquefied for easy use, its penetrating action gets natural moisturizing oils down under the skin where they do the most good—softens dry, moisture-starved skin, makes it lovelier no matter how parched and dry-looking.

Works While You Sleep

The results you get overnight when you use golden Lanolin Plus Liquid are astounding. Tonight, for example, smooth on a few drops of this lanolin-specialized liquid. Then, in the morning, run your hand over your face.

Skin Dryness Gone

Not only will your skin look lovelier than ever but every trace of skin dryness will be gone. You'll be overjoyed with the clean, fresh look and feel of your skin. You'll love its soft, silky texture, its glowing color. And you'll see, too, how Lanolin Plus Liquid rewards by helping to smooth wrinkles and crow's feet which have formed because of dryness. Get exclusive-formula Lanolin Plus Liquid today, wherever cosmetics are sold. Only $1 plus tax.

MAKE THIS EASY PENETRATION TEST

❷ Now pour an equal quantity of Exclusive-formula Lanolin Plus Liquid on a similar handkerchief (or a piece of cotton) stretched over a second jar. See how quickly this liquid penetrates the fiber...goes down into the jar instantly.

Proof that Exclusive-formula LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID will soak through outer layers of skin to replace natural oils down underneath where they do the most good.

OVERNIGHT—
softer, younger-looking skin

IT'S THE PLUS IN Lanolin Plus, THAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

New Orleans and desegregation

Of 177 parochial elementary and secondary schools in New Orleans, 36 are exclusively for Negroes. Archbishop Rummel says flatly that segregation is morally wrong and sinful.

Will desegregation in the South be accomplished peacefully? Will it be accomplished at all? Noted reporter and writer, Jim Bishop, toured the South by car, stopping in big cities and crossroad towns. He talked to leaders and to average citizens, Negro and white. In a series of articles entitled "Thunder Over Dixie" beginning today in the Everyday Magazine, Bishop presents his story of the South's greatest crisis since the end of slavery. In Monday's installment, he visits New Orleans, the "City of Many Voices." He talks to an important politician there who accuses the Supreme Court of being swayed by Communist literature in interpreting the Constitution. In another part of town, he visits a Negro life insurance salesman who wants his son to enter a white high school. For a close look at how several New Orleans citizens feel about desegregation, read the second installment of "Thunder Over Dixie."

$11,600 TO REAR BOY THROUGH 18, $11,300 FOR GIRL

STILLWATER, Okla., May 5 (INS)—A sociologist came up with proof yesterday for a fact that parents have known all along—it costs a lot to raise children.

Dr. James D. Tarver of Oklahoma A. & M. College reported a survey showed it takes $11,600 to rear a boy and $11,300 for a girl through age 18.

These figures, he pointed out, were for farm families in 1954, and probably would be higher now. The cost would go up also in a city.

Food for a boy during the first 18 years costs $4993, higher than the $4606 a girl eats up. However, a girl's clothes cost more, $912 to $891.

Medical care is higher for a girl, too, Dr. Tarver said, $475 to $426.

It's all worth it, though, the sociologist added. By the time the children are 19 "they represent economic values far greater than the cost of their rearing."

CREVE COEUR G.O.P. MEETING

Several candidates will speak and a voting machine will be demonstrated at a luncheon meeting of the Creve Coeur Township Women's Republican Club at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Castlereagh Tea Room.

SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS BEING ACCEPTED BY U.D.C.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy is accepting applications for tuition and part tuition scholarships at 17 universities and colleges for the 1956-57 academic year, it was announced yesterday.

Any applicant, who must be a descendant of a Confederate veteran, may receive information and forms from Mrs. Thomas J. Kemp, 4 Tuscany park, Clayton.

The schools are, in Missouri, Christian College, Central Missouri State College, Kemper Military School, Lindenwood College, Missouri Valley College, Wentworth Military Academy, Culver-Stockton and Missouri Military Academy; in Virginia, Chatham Hall, Virginia Intermont College and Washington and Lee University; in Tennessee, the University of the South and Columbia Military Academy; in Florida, University of Miami and University of Tampa; in Texas, Mary Hardin Baylor and, in New York, Barnard College at Columbia University.

SOUTH SIDE FIRE STATION TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

Fire Station No. 19, Morganford road and Haven street, will be dedicated in ceremonies at the site at 3 o'clock this afternoon following a parade.

Speakers at the dedication will include Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric, Fire Chief Hugh F. Lyon and Alderman Fred Haag of the Twelfth Ward.

The parade, which will include city officials and some 80 patriotic, civic and military units, will form on Leona street north of Holly Hills boulevard. The route will be south on Leona to Loughborough avenue, west to Morganford and north to Haven. It will start at 2 o'clock.

HEADS U.S. RETAIL BAKERS

Walter R. Schuchardt, proprietor of the Lake Forest Pastry Shop, 7737 Clayton road, Clayton, has been elected president of the Associated Retail Bakers of America at its annual convention in Chicago, it was announced yesterday.

WINS MEDAL AT ILLINOIS U.

Harold D. Hicks, 10506 Hoya drive, Bellefontaine Neighbors, a Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps cadet at the University of Illinois, was one of two winners of Chicago Tribune gold medals for outstanding work during the year. The medals were presented at Honors Day ceremonies last Friday.

Hicks is majoring in civil engineering at the university. The awards are based on military achievement, scholastic attainment, character development and leadership qualities.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

SUNDAY, MAY 6, 1956

Travel section

TRIPS • VACATIONS • TOURS • CRUISES

By Dorothy Brainerd
Post-Dispatch Travel Editor

SKYWAYS and highways, sea lanes and trains soon will be crowded with Americans on the go.

They will discover anew the wonders of America as they tramp through her forests, fish her streams, sail her lakes and frolic on her beaches.

In a campaign year, with emphasis on the nation's future, they will be especially thoughtful as they visit the historical shrines which commemorate the past.

Many thousands will fan out into Canada and Alaska, Hawaii and Mexico, South America and the Caribbean.

More than 530,000 Americans visited Europe last year; predictions are the figure will be topped in 1956. They will view Europe's capitals and countrysides, and with typical Yankee curiosity they will ask questions—or seek their own answers to unspoken questions. They will return with a deeper understanding of the way of life in other lands.

Wherever their journeys take them they will go in high good humor, their bounding spirits stemming from the same exuberance that prompts the youngsters' classic chant, "School is out, and I am free!"

It's vacation time and time to play; Americans will want to make the most of it.

GOING TO EUROPE? POINTS TO CONSIDER

Editor's Note: A trip to Europe, and especially one's first trip abroad, is a major event. It should be as happy an experience as possible, in actuality and in retrospect. To avoid the disappointments which may mar this shining adventure during a season of exceptionally heavy travel abroad, the prospective traveler will do well to give serious thought to the points brought out in the following article.

LONDON — Two tourists planned a fifteen-day trip to Europe during the peak summer season.

The first consulted a travel agent to set up a pre-paid tour of England, Holland, Belgium and France at an average of eighteen dollars a day. This fee included his hotel, meals, sightseeing, guide and transportation in Europe. He knew well in advance that his trip was not going to cost more than $270 plus his round-trip air fare across the Atlantic. He went off free of worry and came back relaxed and happy from an effortless, smooth vacation.

How to Waste Time, Money.

The second tourist did not want to commit himself to follow a standard itinerary. He preferred to remain free to handle all the details of his European vacation for himself. When he arrived in London, he wasted an evening locating a hotel. He was forced to take a last-minute accommodation more expensive than he had planned. He spent half the next day changing dollars to pounds, and finding out how to get from Buckingham Palace to the National Gallery. He stayed in London an extra 48 hours because he failed to confirm a seat to Paris. When he arrived in the French capital, he had to cope with the same problems all over again — in French. He spent 30 per cent more money than the first tourist through his lack of know-how. He saw less of Europe, and wasted up to 60 per cent of his time abroad on the details of moving from place to place.

The moral of this story is obvious. Whether you want to travel in escorted groups or roam footloose and fancy free, the most efficient way to set off on a trip to Europe is through your travel agent.

He might be a part of a huge International concern such as American Express or Thomas Cook, or he might very well be a businessman in your hometown. Pan American World Airways alone has 1700 authorized travel agents strategically located to serve you in every major city in the United States.

All This for Nothing.

Unlike many experts these days, he charges nothing for a great many of his specialized services. He will, for example, book your seat across the Atlantic, recommend hotels and restaurants and help you outline your vacation to fit your budget—all free-of-charge. He makes his income from commissions paid by the companies he is authorized to represent. Since he buys travel facilities in volume, he receives cut rates lower than the individual could obtain by himself.

Your travel agent offers so many services that he is like your own private branch of the State Department. He will obtain visas or other documents and relieve you of all details regarding tickets, hotels, transportation and sightseeing. He will forward your mail, recommend restaurants and shops, locate baby sitters and perform dozens of other personal favors.

Tailor-Made Tours.

An important phase of the travel agent's operations is selling pre-paid tours tailor-made to suit the taste and pocketbook of the individual. Whether you choose to go in a group or travel on your own, your arrangements are made and paid for in advance. You receive, in return for your money, coupons good for payment of tours, meals and lodging. These coupons save you the trouble of carrying large amounts of legal tender and worrying about exchange rates in several countries. You can, for example, travel all the way across Europe from Paris to Istanbul with one small book of coupons to pay for everything in seven kinds of currency.

Incidentally, American travel agents will sell meal coupons for some European countries this year. The coupons for Italy, for example, are sold under the "23 Plan," a joint promotion endorsed by 23 of the most distinguished restaurants and night clubs on the peninsula. A $2.75 coupon pays for a gourmet dinner of hors d'oeuvres, entree, vegetables, salad and dessert. A $4.75 coupon buys a gourmet de luxe dinner which starts with a cocktail and includes anything on the menu—with second helpings.

Before you begin your trip, you would do well to consult your agent about some of the newest travel ideas. Take the Pay Later Plan which enables you to finance your trip for as little as 10 per cent down and the remainder spread out over a period of 20 months.

If you fly to Europe, your agent will tell you how the Extra-City Bonus Plan works. Say you pay for a tourist-class round-trip Clipper flight from New York to Rome. You'll discover that you can include at no extra charge such places as Shannon, Dublin, London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris, Zurich, Milan, Nice, Barcelona, Madrid, Lisbon and The Azores.

The travel agent is the tourist's best friend when it comes to saving money, time and disappointment. His advice will make you an expert before you set foot in Europe. He'll know where the shops close on Saturday, where you can buy a watch, where the trains run on Sunday. He'll know the dates of the Mardi Gras in Nice and how to obtain a seat at the Dublin Horse Show or the opera in Milan.

Typical Americans Abroad?

—Pan American World Airways.

You may not agree with artist Norman Rockwell that the average American couple abroad would ignore the Dome of St. Peter's in the background and a European horse-drawn carriage leisurely ambling along while they concentrate upon shoes of the most modern style and a statuette of an ancient Roman. However, it is true that visitors from the United States can indulge their weaknesses for souvenir collecting and bargain hunting, combining these pursuits with their sightseeing.

MAJOR EUROPEAN FESTIVALS AND FAIRS LISTED

The majority of Americans traveling in Europe today are getting to know the people in a way they never have before. They attend fairs, vintage and folklore festivals in small communities and religious celebrations held throughout Italy, Spain and Portugal.

They seek out such major international attractions as Ireland's "An Tostal," May 6-21; International Trade Fair in Paris, May 5-21; the Feast and Festival of St. Isidro in Madrid, May 13-20; the Bergen Festival of Music, Drama and Folklore, May 25-June 7; the Strasbourg Music Festival, June 8-23; the Vienna Festival, June 10-17, and the Opera in season; the Summer Opera at the Baths of Caracalla in Italy; the Salzburg Music Festival, July 21-Aug. 30; the Edinburgh Festival of Music and drama, Aug. 19-Sept. 8; and London's International Motor Show, Oct. 17-27.

Paris, Rome, London and Madrid, in that order, continue to draw the largest number of American tourists, according to the News Division of American Express. But the decentralization trend is rapidly affecting travel to Central Europe, Scandinavia, the Low Countries and the Near East.

IRELAND'S TRANSPORTATION

Ireland's splendid transportation system will be geared to top performance to cater to the influx of visitors expected this summer.

The recent Dieselization of the Irish railways has placed Irish transport second to none in Europe and travel throughout the country is inexpensive and speedy.

Broad View.

On a clear day, one can see parts of five states from the summit of Capulin mountain in northeastern New Mexico.

ANCIENT DRAMA, SPORTS, REVIVE PAST IN EUROPE

It's easy to leave the Jet Age far behind when vacationing in Europe, particularly if you attend some of the centuries-old sports events and dramatic offerings scheduled by the member countries of the European Travel Commission this year.

There will be colorful tilting matches, for example, in The Netherlands and Denmark this summer. Medieval-style horse races will take place in the streets of Siena, Italy, on July 2 and Aug. 16, with traditional costumes and flag-tossing exhibitions adding to the excitement and color.

A miracle play, "Petrus de Dacia," will be staged during July and August in the ruins of ancient St. Nicholas Church in Visby on the Swedish island of Gotland.

SOUTH AFRICA

"South Africa — An Impression" is the title of a new travel brochure prepared by the South African Tourist Corporation. Designed to present a vivid picture of South Africa's numerous tourist attractions, the 64-page booklet contains more than 50 color pictures and drawings and several maps, as well as concisely written editorial and general information sections.

The booklet is available without charge upon request to the South African Tourist Corporation, 475 Fifth avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

BLESSING THE FLEET

The Blessing of the Fleet in Biloxi, Miss., is an Old World custom brought to these shores from Normandy and Brittany and the fishing ports of the Mediterranean. Its origins are lost in time but its raison d'etre never changes—the invocation of the blessings of Almighty God on the ships and men, and prayers for the safe return of both with a rich harvest of the sea's bounty.

This year the festival will be held on July 28 and 29.

Historical Graveyard.

Trinity Church in New York City was founded by Royal Charter in 1697. In the churchyard are the graves of such illustrious Americans as Alexander Hamilton and Robert Fulton.

Splendor of Glacier National Park

This hotel in Glacier National Park, Montana, in a majestic natural setting, is take-off point for delightful foot and horseback trails into the wonders of untouched country high in the Rockies.

DRAMA IN SMOKIES

Woodland amphitheaters of The Great Smoky Mountains will ring with dramatic accounts this summer as never before.

Latest of regional heroes to tread the outdoor stage is John Sevier, "Chucky Jack" to his compatriots of pioneer days. The production starts June 22 at Gatlinburg on the national park border. Author is Kermit Hunter whose poignant true-life Indian story, "Unto These Hills" opens June 23 just across the mountain at Cherokee, N.C.

Unsullied by Smoke.

White and pastel buildings, unsullied by smoke and dust, contrast pleasingly with the greenery of tropical trees, shrubs and flowers around the calendar in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Wisconsin's Summer Vacation Areas Ready for Visitors

Attractions Include 8676 Lakes, 10,000 Miles of Streams, 200 Golf Courses, Choice of Accommodations.

Wisconsin's popular summer vacation area, featuring 8676 lakes, 10,000 miles of streams, 200 golf courses, and accommodations ranging from the most luxurious resorts to ideal campsites, is looking forward to a big vacation year. Pre-season inquiries are the highest on record, authorities report.

As in the past, there will be available a wide range of prices so that Wisconsin may be a haven for almost any vacationer, regardless of his pocketbook.

There has been no indication of hikes in rates, even by the luxury resorts. As usual, the cabin or hotel price will average between $45 and $65 a person a week, with a wide variety of facilities available on both sides of that range.

Wisconsin resorts have no standard pattern of charges, but in general, rates are based on one of three arrangements—lodging and meals in one price by the day or week (American plan); the housekeeping type of accommodations, including cooking and refrigeration equipment and sometimes linens; or a combination of the two systems, in which housekeeping cottages are available, but a central lodge also provides meals.

The term "modern" usually means complete bathrooms with tub or shower and hot and cold running water, gas or electrical refrigeration, and gas for cooking. "Semi-modern" usually signifies a cabin with running cold water.

Numerous Vacation Areas.

All types of accommodations, at all prices, are available in all sections of the state—the north central part, with perhaps the highest concentration of lakes in the world, the Indian Head country in northwestern Wisconsin, the Lake Michigan shore topped by Door county with its quiet colonies, the rolling southwestern section of the state with historic Prairie du Chien, and the lakeland region of southern Wisconsin.

The Indian Head country, so named because of the Indian profile the area makes on a map, comprises 15 counties north and west of Eau Claire.

This year several new attractions will add to the fun of a Wisconsin vacation.

Under the heading of "new" are a number of attractions at the famed Wisconsin Dells, 55 miles northwest of Madison on U.S. 12 and 16. A storybook land, designed with the kiddies in mind, colorfully re-creates many popular childhood characters; the youngsters also rejoice when they get a ride on the R. & G.N. Railway, a small but genuine passenger-carrying railroad.

Still another Dells area "must" is the deer park where some 100 live deer may be hand-fed and photographed at close range. The water thrill show will begin its third summer at the Dells late in June.

For those who haven't yet had a ride on one of the Dells' amphibious "ducks," there's a real thrill waiting. The army-type craft now supplement the services of the all-metal boat fleet.

The North Country.

In Wisconsin's north country, near Hayward, a new attraction is a combination Chippewa Indian village, logging camp, and museum. It provides authentic logging demonstrations, and permits guests to dine in true lumberjack style in the cook shanty.

Hayward may be reached from the south via U.S. 12 to Eau Claire, then U.S. 53 to Spooner, and State Highways 70 and 27, or by State Highway 70 from the east.

It is at Hayward, too, that the seventh annual National Musky Festival will be held June 22-24. The event pays tribute to the king of fresh water game fish, the fighting muskellunge.

Thousands of vacationers are attracted to the entertainment features of the Musky Festival, built around Hayward's historic background as an early lumber town and the fame of the mighty musky. A fish, fry, fishing contests, log sawing and chopping contests, torchlight rowboat races, log rolling, casting tournaments, and selection of a Musky Queen are among the many planned events. The festival is climaxed by a great parade highlighted by beautiful floats and colorfully garbed marching bands.

Still another development destined to bring fame to Wisconsin is the new sports car track, built last year near Elkhart Lake. Already it has received national and international recognition, and is considered one of the best designed sports car tracks in the world. Two races are planned for this year—one in June, the other in August.

Planned improvements in the new four-mile course include construction of bleachers on the hills as well as in the pit area; better parking facilities, and enclosure of the pit and paddock area for better crowd control.

A helpful vacation planning kit is available to those contemplating a trip to the Badger state. Included are a colorful brochure, an official highway map, a list of regional resort secretaries, and a copy of the 1956 fishing regulations. To obtain the kit without charge, send a card to: Recreational Section, Wisconsin Conservation Dept., State Office Building, Madison 1, Wis.

New Bridge at St. Petersburg

—City of St. Petersburg.

The new bridge spanning Tampa Bay was opened last month after five years of agitation for a second Gandy span which would provide two-way traffic between St. Petersburg and Tampa. The old Gandy span will carry two-lane traffic bound for Tampa; the new bridge has a 24-foot two-lane highway for St. Petersburg-bound vehicles. The new bridge is 13,770 feet long, has a concrete arch and steel span over the ship channel with 50-foot vertical clearance, has two-foot safety walks at each side and 10,000 feet of catwalks for fishermen.

TARPON ROUNDUP IN ST. PETERSBURG

Total jackpot for the 1956 St. Petersburg Tarpon Roundup is $10,000 in cash and two new automobiles.

This is a radical departure for the twenty-second Roundup of the Silver Kings at St. Petersburg, as in past years much of the prize has been in merchandise.

Again this year there will be two main divisions, one strictly for visitors from other states. Weekly jackpots will be larger (and in cash), and more and larger awards are set aside for the conservation division, in which prizes are awarded for released tarpon.

The Roundup starts at 6 p.m., May 12 and ends July 22. One week later, July 23, the Fishing Finale takes place, in which winners of weekly prizes compete.

Visitors who win weekly awards, but who find it inconvenient to stay throughout the Roundup may delegate a proxy to fish for them on the day of the Finale, July 22.

Juniors under 14 need not register; all others are required to register, either by mail to the St. Petersburg Tarpon Roundup Committee, Junior Chamber of Commerce, or in person at any local weighing station. The fee is two dollars.

FESTIVAL OF MUSIC IN MIAMI MAY 9-11

MIAMI, Fla. — Five Latin American nations, often visited on side trips by Miami vacationers, will be honored during the second annual Miami Festival of Music May 9-11.

In the festival spotlight will be singers, dancers and musicians from Cuba, Mexico, Panama, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

All told, more than 8000 persons will take part in the musical extravaganza at the Orange Bowl. Largest units will be a 5000-voice chorus and a 2000-member youth band.

Colorful props such as giant musical notes, 21 electrically lighted Maypoles, a waterfall cascading from the upper deck of the stadium, a five-tiered stage the length of the Orange Bowl, and a tropical garden with thousands of plants, shrubs and trees, will provide the setting for the event.

Around this salute to spring and America's Latin neighbors is a varied calendar of special May events.

Twelve Triple-A baseball games are scheduled between the Miami Marlins of the International League and the Richmond Colts, Columbia Jets and Havana Cubans.

Greyhound racing will continue nightly through May at the Biscayne Kennel Club, while the playhouse will present top Broadway stars and plays throughout the month.

Comedian Edward Everett Horton appears in "Nina" May 14 through 26, while "Anniversary Waltz," the long-run hit comedy, opens a 12-day engagement May 28.

NEW MAP AVAILABLE OF THE FLORIDA KEYS

Tourists wishing to visit the Florida Keys now have access to a new fishing and mileage map showing the fun-filled area that extends from Miami to Key West.

Emphasizing the Overseas Highway, a section of U. S. 1, which is now toll free, the map points out distances between all major points on the island-linked scenic route. An abundance of fishing information is also available.

Attractions of unusual beauty and interest to Keys-bound travelers also are featured on the map, including a permanent exhibit of sunken pirate treasure and a roadside aquarium with Florida fish in settings similar to their natural habitat.

The map is filled with facts about the Keys. More than 1,417,000 tourists visited the area last year. Copies of the map may be obtained without charge by writing to Key Colony Information Office, Marathon, Fla.

Why thousands now take summer vacations in
FLORIDA

More people now visit here in summer than used to come in winter. Here are a few things that attract them!

Two seas and brisk breezes endow Florida with wonderful weather year around. Summers, for example, average only about 8 degrees warmer than winters. Miami — the state's southernmost big city — averages only 6 days a year when the temperature reaches 90 degrees (U.S. Weather Bureau statistic average). So make this your year to escape hot, muggy spells in sea-cooled Florida.

Water, water, everywhere —Enjoy refreshing dips wherever your pleasure-hunting takes you in Florida. It's a state of 30,000 lakes—a peninsula with 3,751 miles of beguiling coastline. Furthermore, countless resorts offer delightful pool-side living in addition to nature's own aquatic contributions.

Bargain summer rates — Stay at the most luxurious of lodgings at a fraction of the winter-season cost. Oceanfront and lake-side cottages are available—family and package plans invite your consideration. See Florida resort ads in this paper for more specifics on low-budget rates—rates that mean you can now enjoy this premier vacation for no more than a usual one elsewhere.

Sports for everyone — Fish out in the seas for tackle-busting huskies such as sailfish and tarpon; from jetties, sea walls, and small boats also for tarpon and such gamesters as sea trout, pompano and snook. Inland lakes yield giant bass. Skin diving, shuffleboard, water skiing, golf, tennis, and scores of other sun-time diversions.

Spectator thrills — Cruise over crystal-clear lakes so transparent you can peer down 50 feet and see underwater castles and caverns and the colorful marine life that's inevitably in play. Rent an outboard for exploring exciting waterways and inlets. See regattas, swim meets, water skiing exhibitions, sports car races, ludicrous stilt-legged birds, lush botanical gardens.

Favorite tours — Play on the world's whitest beaches in Northwest Florida between Pensacola and Port St. Joe (route 98); see picturesque lower Gulf Coast resorts such as Tarpon Springs, St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Sarasota. Take your car over one of the longest open-water crossings in the world, the new 15-mile Sunshine Skyway drive over Tampa Bay. You can also whisk over the seas on a fascinating excursion to Florida's Keys. Don't miss the glamorous Trade Winds Coast (take route A1A along the Atlantic for an eye-opening trip between Miami and Palm Beach). And by all means visit ancient St. Augustine and fun-loving Daytona Beach in Northeast Florida.

Health —You'll relax on palm-lined shores, enjoy comfortable sun bathing thanks to spanking sea breezes. These same breezes contain 20% more oxygen than air in land-locked regions—and are relatively free of pollens that aggravate Hay Fever sufferers. Here, too, you delight to sea-fresh delicacies, so rich in vitamins and minerals.

Gay evenings — Dance under the stars on beautiful terraces, join holiday-minded groups in superb restaurants and friendly clubs. Many places to stay offer entertaining events such as splash parties and all are the centers of congenial social gatherings.

FRIDAY NIGHT SPECIAL

It is a condition peculiar to the St. Louis area, experts report, that vacationers like to leave town on Friday night. Just why fun seekers from this community insist upon being on their way right after work, while those in other cities apparently are quite willing to wait until Saturday to make their departure, no one seems to know.

But to accommodate eager vacationers who don't want to waste a single day of their Florida holiday, Eastern Air Lines will add a flight of an 88-passenger Constellation to Tampa and Miami leaving at 12:45 p.m. every Friday beginning June 1. Originating in St. Louis just for St. Louisans, this night air coach will serve the St. Petersburg-Tampa area with a stop before reaching Miami.

TO FISH OR NOT TO FISH; CHOICE AT TALLAHASSEE

Tallahassee is located in north-central Florida and is completely surrounded by excellent fishing spots, both fresh and salt water, river, lake or Gulf.

Enterprising husbands who have wives who don't want to fish and don't want to stay home have solved their dilemma by making Tallahassee their "headquarters" for a Florida vacation. Here the wives and children can go sightseeing, enjoy swimming or dozens of other activities with true "southern hospitality" while father is fishing less than 30 miles away.

Incidentally, Tallahassee has one lake well stocked with bass and bream that is exclusively for the "small fry." The youngsters can fish off the banks in safety with rods and reel or an old fashioned "cane pole."

Luxuries of Miami Beach Not Expensive in Summer

From May Until November Almost Anybody Can Vacation in Resort Without Worry About Budget.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Summer—and from now until November is summer in Miami Beach—puts the luxuries of this vacation capital within the reach of almost anyone planning a holiday.

Visitors at this time of year will find accommodations for two in a range of $25 a week up to $100, with more than 375 hotels from which to choose, plus thousands of furnished apartments at comparable prices. Typical of the summer vacation bargains are those offered by air lines and railroads in package tours.

One major air line that expects to bring 55,000 visitors here this summer has completed housing arrangements with 63 hotels. Costs, after arrival in Miami Beach, start at $38 for six nights and seven days for two, and run the scale to $95 for the top. On a modified American plan providing breakfast and dinner the individual should add $3 to $3.50 per day. Even the lowest-priced hotel in this group is on the oceanfront with private beach and swimming pool.

Vacationers arriving in their own automobiles will find these very convenient for sightseeing trips to such nearby places as the Everglades National park, the aquarium, serpentarium and bird and animal "jungles" so popular with visitors. However, automobiles may be rented here for as little as $20 a week, plus seven cents a mile for travel in excess of 100 miles. Municipal bus lines and taxis are handy for in-town errands. Sightseeing tours also may be made by bus or boat.

In Miami Beach the visitor has swimming and sunning almost literally at his fingertips. Half the hotels are right beside, or across the street from, the ocean. Most of the remainder are but a block or two away from the beach. Eight oceanfront parks provide some two miles of beach area for vacationers whose lodgings do not include private seaside facilities.

Restaurants, smart shops, night clubs and other such services are within paces of every hotel area, many right in the larger hostels. One of the two municipal golf courses is within a 10-minute drive of any spot within the city. Vacationers can play either of the 18-hole layouts for a summer greens fee of $1.50. Tennis courts, shuffleboard and other games may be played in the public parks at minimum or no cost.

Even big-game fishing calls for no pre-dawn arising for long drives. The angler may put in a call for 7 a.m., have breakfast and be at the dock by 8 o'clock, the usual time for a morning or all-day trip into the Gulf Stream just offshore. There the quarry is sailfish, white marlin, wahoo and dolphin, to name the major trophy fish. Closer inshore, party boats drift the reefs for snapper, grouper and other species, and you can go day or night. Night incidentally, is the best time for a tarpon trip, and May or June the best time for tarpon.

Miami Beach's great appeal to vacationers, aside from the modern, comfortable lodgings, is the variety of recreation available and the pleasantly mild climate in which to enjoy it. Summer temperatures, like those of winter, are tempered by surrounding waters. A cool breeze, washed in the thousands of miles covered by the southeast trades, rustles the palms almost constantly.

Temperatures rarely go above 89 degrees and never reach the extremes suffered by eastern and mid-western cities at times during summer.

'MRS. AMERICA' CORONATION IN DAYTONA BEACH MAY 12

A new "Mrs. America" will be crowned May 12 in Florida's famed family resort, Daytona Beach.

A more perfect setting for the contest would be hard to imagine, for May in the Daytona Beach area is unsurpassed for lovely sunny days and nights filled with refreshing tropical breezes. More and more visitors are discovering this and spending their holidays following their preferred sport—be it river or deep sea fishing, golfing, water skiing, swimming or relaxing on the area's beautiful beach.

Housewives from 48 states and the District of Columbia will compete in all types of everyday domestic chores while the judges go from villa to villa inspecting the finished product and scoring accordingly. An innovation this year will be the "Mrs. America" Fashion Show, May 11. For the first time contestants will parade the latest creations on the stage of Peabody Auditorium before a fashion-minded audience.

Lauritz Melchoir and Fran Allison will appear at the Coronation and Show, Peabody Auditorium, Saturday night, May 12.

CLOSE NEIGHBORS

Nassau, located but 185 miles east of Miami, is one of the fastest-growing resorts in the western hemisphere.

During the past five years its visitor arrivals have increased nearly 400 per cent.

MAY FINE VACATION MONTH IN MISSOURI

Calendar Filled With Unusual Events Typical of State's Way of Life.

By LESLIE G. KENNON
(Missouri Division of Resources and Development)

St. Louisans will find May an excellent month for traveling in Missouri. It's filled with special events, things to do and see.

Of course, May is also the month of the Dogwood and Redbud—a month of flowers throughout the state, but particularly the southwestern, southeastern and central portions.

Camdenton, which lies some five hours' drive from St. Louis and is the hub of the Lake of the Ozarks tourist region, is the site of two special events which are well worth one's time.

One is the Dogwood Festival May 12-13, with the usual queen, pageants, square dancing, sightseeing, water sports, fishing and such.

Another is the International Square and Round Dance Festival which will be held May 31-June 2. It was started last year, and is an Ozarkian event where one may expect to see approximately 1000 dancers in picturesque costume.

The lake itself, of course, offers one of the biggest varieties to be found anywhere in the state—from horseback riding to water sports, from boat excursions to top fishing which is open the year 'round.

The Cape Girardeau Garden Pilgrimage and Flower Festival May 19-20 is another top drawing card for folks from this area. It takes place on the famed Ten Mile Garden which lies between Jackson and Cape Girardeau.

One of Missouri's most unusual events will be held at Hermann when the Maifest is observed May 19-20. Old homes, costumes, wine cellars, violin makers' shops—all are in the tradition of keeping Hermann "Historic." The town was founded by German immigrants, and today the townspeople keep it in flavor of times past. It is definitely unique in Missouri, and offers something which can't be found anywhere else in the state.

May is a top vacation month in Missouri—or, if you prefer, it's a good month for those weekend trips. Additional information on these special events is obtainable upon request to the Missouri Division of Resources and Development, Jefferson City or the chamber of commerce in the city where the event is to be held.

SAN DIEGO AN IDEAL SPOT FOR VACATION

Variety is the keynote of vacationing in San Diego, a county that boasts of two huge landlocked bays, one of world's most beautiful city parks, a prime role in California's history and one of the finest year around climates found anywhere.

These are but part of the ingredients that have made this southern California metropolis one of the West's most favored tourist stops.

La Jolla, often called the West's Riviera is 15 miles north of San Diego, and overlooks the Pacific ocean. A quiet beach community, its fine shops, beautiful La Jolla, palm-lined streets and elegant California homes lure thousands of visitors each year.

Coronado, another beach-side community just a five-minute ferry trip across the bay from San Diego, gets much of its glamor from its palatial hotel.

A wonderful town for water sports, Mission Bay Park, a $26,000,000 aquatic playground is a "must" stop on any San Diego visit.

1956 Fiesta.

San Diego zoo, one of the world's finest, is smack in the middle of 1400-acre Balboa Park. The park, host to two world's fairs, is the focal point of many of the events of the county's first annual Fiesta del Pacifico, July 18—Aug. 19.

The Fiesta is designed to point up the area's role as the birthplace of California and to emphasize the slogan, "San Diego — America's Only International Playground."

"The California Story," a musical outdoor drama with a cast of 1300, is the major attraction of the Fiesta. Other events include an authentic Spanish Market Place in Old Town, two huge water shows, costume parades, street dances, 15 community celebrations, a Governor's Day, and championship horse show.

Economy is another attractive facet to San Diego's vacation picture. Hotel rates average $5 to $8 for a double; motels at $5.

Three of the city's major downtown hotels, anticipating one of the biggest tourist seasons in history, spent over $4,000,000 in improvements this year.

Two garden-type motels are presently nearing completion in the area's newest resort center, Mission Valley, just eight miles from downtown San Diego.

Sports, Too.

Deep-sea fishing is a San Diego specialty and the summer-long $25,000 Yellowtail Fishing Derby lures over 100,000 anglers a year.

The golfer is in for a pleasant surprise, too, with two new 18-hole courses just completed—Singing Hills and Flying Hills—a nine-holer at Mission Bay Park and a picturesque pitch and putt course, Colina del Sol, in East San Diego.

Add the resorts of Rancho Santa Fe, Borrego, Warners and Del Mar; the attractions of Cabrillo National Monument and the Missions to the allure of Old Mexico and you have a capsule picture of why San Diego is one of the West's most popular vacation sites.

Vacation in the OZARKS

OZARK PLAYGROUNDS

Strongly linked with the past, the Ozark Playgrounds offer the traveler an assortment of sights from history.

Within its boundaries are the famed Cayuga Indian Stomp Grounds, Wilson Creek Battlefield where the chief Civil War engagements west of the Mississippi were fought; and George Washington Carver's birthplace.

25 Years Ago . . . and Today

—Massie—Missouri Resources Div.

These "then" and "now" shots at the Lake of the Ozarks tell a story that has made a great difference in Missouri's status as a vacation area. During the 1955 season an estimated 1,850,000 persons vacationed at the lake. Many special events have been planned during this summer to celebrate the resort area's Silver Anniversary.

1956 Silver Anniversary Year for Lake of Ozarks

Area Has Come Long Way From Modest Beginning 25 Years Ago; Special Events Planned in Celebration.

There is a special celebration being held in Missouri this year—the observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Lake of the Ozarks. The area has come a long, long way in the quarter of a century since its modest (and controversial) beginning.

The lake itself was, of course, a result of the construction of Bagnell Dam. After the lake formed in 1931 it was found to be 129 miles long with a fantastic cove-indented shoreline 1375 miles long. Nestled among the wooded foothills of the Ozark Plateau, it is indeed a lake attractive enough to be an asset to Missouri.

Immediately after its formation, sportsmen found the new lake to be a fishermen's paradise, and a few fishing camps were constructed on its shores. Each year more persons, first Missourians and gradually those from neighboring states, realized that a wonderful vacation land had developed and demands grew for more and better accommodations.

The demands, and the region itself, are still growing. Today there are more than 320 individually owned and operated resorts in the lake cities, on the highways and along the shoreline of the lake, providing lodging for more than 14,000 persons at one time. Since 1952, over 1700 new rental units have been constructed. During the 1955 season an estimated 1,850,000 persons vacationed at the lake—and spent an estimated $42,400,000.

Many factors have contributed to the phenomenal growth of the lake area. Its geographical location makes it a convenient playground for millions of Midwesterners. Most resorts are owned by their operators, who are sincerely anxious that guests enjoy true Ozark hospitality. And rates are sensible.

Fishing was excellent immediately after the formation of the lake; then it tapered off after a few years. About six years ago, due to stocking and natural spawn, it took an upturn, and spring fishing this year is claimed to have produced the largest harvest taken from the lake.

The area provides diversified activities for vacationers of all ages and tastes. Swimming, golf, hiking, tennis, boating of many types on superb boating waters and scenic trips are among its attractions—plus, of course, the opportunity to rest and relax in natural surroundings.

Many special events have been planned in observance of the lake's silver anniversary. These include silver dollar hunts, fishing derbies, the dogwood festival, the fifth annual rodeo of champions and fireworks displays, with other entertainment in the formative stage.

This vacation land is only a few hours' drive from St. Louis over excellent highways. U.S. Highways 54 and 65, and Missouri Highways 5 and 52 serve the immediate lake area, with good all-weather lake roads leading to lake shore resorts.

A 48-page map and guide may be obtained without charge upon request to the Lake of the Ozarks Assn., Inc., Box 2, Lake Ozark, Mo.

OZARK FLOAT TRIP

The Ozark Float Trip originated more than 40 years ago when mountaineers found that the maximum of fishing pleasure can be had with the minimum of effort in long, comfortable john boats floating down swift, meandering Ozark streams.

GOLF, AQUATIC SPORTS PROGRAM AT HOT SPRINGS

The Spa and national park at Hot Springs, Ark., will provide plenty of activity this summer for the sportsman, active or spectator.

A series of amateur golf tournaments will be held during the summer.

Annually, on July 4, Lake Catherine is the scene of an Outboard Regatta.

A water ski tournament under the sanction of the American Water Ski Association is scheduled for mid-July on Lake Hamilton.

While this land of lakes and mountains emphasizes aquatic sports throughout the summer, a new type of night out-of-door entertainment will be introduced in June and July. A series of 16 performances by a summer stock company will be presented in a natural rock cliff theater situated in a picturesque spot at the north base of West mountain. Members of the all-star company also will teach music, dramatics, dancing and practical stagecraft.

VISIT TO HANNIBAL

A visit to Hannibal, Mo. is a journey into the past—the days when the Mississippi was filled with sternwheelers and youths like Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn roamed its shores in search of adventure.

The treasures about which Samuel Langhorne Clemens, or "Mark Twain," wrote in his immortal books are well preserved in his home town.

Highest Point.

Taum Sauk mountain is the highest point in Missouri. It lies in the southeastern St. Francis range.

NEW TYPE OF VACATION FUN IN THE OZARK PLAYGROUNDS

A new type of vacation fun is growing by leaps and bounds in the lake areas of the Ozark Playgrounds. For those experienced in handling outboard motors, there's no way to really see a lake except directly from the water. So owners bring their own boats and outboards (there's no special boat-trailer license required) and plan a four- or five-day tour by water. Boats and motors also may be rented. Days are spent on the water, fishing swimming, enjoying picnic lunches and "touring" the various arms of a great lake, with stops at a different port each night. Excellent accommodations are available at the many resorts which surround the lakes.

The great lakes of the Ozarks are of varying sizes, but all are sizable bodies of water. There's Bull Shoals lake created by the mammoth Bull Shoals dam, fifth largest in North America. It has a 1500-mile shore line. Sister lake to Bull Shoals is Lake Norfork, extending almost 40 miles on the North Fork of the White river. It, too, sprawls astride the Arkansas-Missouri state line.

Sixty miles south of Springfield, Mo., and only a few hours' drive from Bull Shoals dam, is Lake Taneycomo. There is considerably less water area, but much more resort activity, since the lake is surrounded by four resort towns—Branson, Rockaway Beach, Forsyth, and Hollister, each with a concentration of resort and recreation facilities.

Southwest of Joplin, Mo., in the northeast corner of Oklahoma, is Grand Lake o' the Cherokees. It is formed behind the longest multiple-arch dam in the world. Nearby are the two Spavinaws and Lake Fort Gibson and Tenkiller Ferry Lake. The latter two are farther south paralleling the Arkansas-Oklahoma line, west of Fort Smith, Ark.

Prefer Tour or Resort Life? Both Are Fine in Michigan

Chances are your summer vacation will follow one of two traditional patterns: an extended motor tour or a vacation-long stay at a particular resort.

Whichever method you choose, Michigan makes a strong bid for your attention. According to the State Tourist Council, Michigan's "mitt-shaped" lower peninsula and its rugged upper peninsula lend themselves naturally to motor tours along 3000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline. The Council cites Michigan's position among the nation's top four tourist states as assurance of variety and excellence in accommodations from more than 4000 resorts located throughout the two peninsulas.

So that you won't miss a number of interesting side trips and activities in your concentration on the highlights of a Michigan vacation, the Tourist Council offers the following suggestions, designed to add to your vacation enjoyment whether you decide to roam or "stay put."

For Motor Tourists:

(1) Don't stick to the main highway; get off onto the side roads and explore Michigan's byways. You'll find many interesting scenic and historic sites along the way.

(2) Park your car for a day and canoe down one of Michigan's 45 "canoe trails." Take your own canoe if you have one; otherwise rent one from conveniently located boat liveries that are found along most of the state's popular canoeing streams.

(3) In the Upper Peninsula, take a boat cruise along the Pictured Rocks of Lake Superior, or down the Tahquamenon river for a close-up of the Tahquamenon Falls.

(4) In the Grand Traverse Bay region take a "Chain o' Lakes" cruise along 40 miles of inland lake waters through some of Michigan's most scenic countryside.

(5) Go pier fishing for perch with cane pole or rod on the shores of Lake Michigan or Lake Huron; no license is necessary to take perch from the Great Lakes.

(6) Go "deep sea" trolling for Lake Superior trout off the shore of Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Seasoned veterans of this exciting sport will captain your boat and lead you to the big ones that lurk deep in the largest body of fresh water in the world.

For resorters:

(1) Take side trips to historic points of interest; you can get tips and directions from local people and from your resort manager.

—Michigan Tourist Council.

This lovely Michigan miss is enough to turn even a confirmed land lubber into an old salt. She is enjoying the uncrowded sailing fun that awaits boating enthusiasts in lake-rich Michigan.

(2) Go canoe float fishing for trout on nearby streams; a wide range of good fishing water is available along Michigan's 36,000 miles of rivers and streams.

(3) Visit local manufacturing plants that produce specialties of the area: For example, Pinconning—cheese; Detroit, Lansing, Flint and Pontiac—automobiles; Menominee and Kalamazoo—paper; and Battle Creek—cereal.

(4) Try out nearby golf courses; more than 50 public and semi-public courses are open to visitors in the southeastern resort region alone.

(5) Ride the sand dunes in specially constructed dunes scooters along the northwestern shore of Lake Michigan on the Leelanau Peninsula.

(6) Tour the iron and copper mines in the Upper Peninsula's iron country around Crystal Falls and Iron River, and the copper country at Houghton-Hancock.

Both tourists and resorters will do well to remember informality is the keynote of a Michigan vacation, so clothing can be casual and colorful. Sportswear is the order of the day and night, unless you plan to take in the night life of one of Michigan's larger cities. Then you might include one dress-up outfit.

And finally, you're urged to include two items in your vacation gear that are as natural to Michigan as its lakes and streams—swim suits and cameras. Both can be used to good advantage anywhere in the state.

FLOWER DISPLAYS OUT IN WASHINGTON

Washington State's highways and byways are bedecked in dazzling floral displays now, and the colorful panorama will continue late into the autumn months.

Fragrant lilacs will bloom in Spokane during the second and third weeks of May. Spokane is often called the Lilac City since the shrub grows profusely in the city parks and residential districts. The annual Lilac Festival takes place here between May 14 and 20.

Wild mountain flowers—Washington's most colorful and spectacular flower show—begin sometime in early June with the blooming of avalance lilies, mountain buttercups and western anemone. About a month later, the alpine meadows are ablaze again with lupines, paint brushes, speedwells and hundreds of other later blooming species.

Alpine flowers may be seen at Paradise Valley and Lake Tipsoo in Mt. Rainer National Park. Olympic National Park. Mt. St. Helens and Mt. Baker National Forest are other areas where the wild flowers may be seen easily from broad, paved highways.

June brings the blooming of Scotch Broom to western Washington. The golden blossoms adorn the highways and fields. They are often planted along the highway by state maintenance crews to beautify the landscape and help retain road banks.

Washington's scenic vacation attractions include Mount Rainier and Olympic National Parks, Grand Coulee Dam, Lake Chelan, Puget Sound, the San Juan Islands, the southwest ocean beaches, the Columbia Gorge and the unusual desert and pot hole country of Eastern Washington.

There are more than 50 State Parks and seven national forests in Washington. The state enjoys one of the coolest summer climates in the nation, and since the tourist industry is not yet fully developed, vacation dollars go a long way in this uncrowded playground.

—MINNESOTA—

Harbor of Forests.

Sydney Harbor is a confusion of meandering waterways and forested islands, running inland for more than 13 miles. Ferry boats take passengers from city to shore.

—CANADA—

BURBANK FESTIVAL

Santa Rosa, Calif., home of the late Luther Burbank, whose floricultural exploits are known throughout the world, will honor his memory with the Luther Burbank Rose Festival to be held May 19-20.

Another splendid floral display comes when the multi-colored rhododendrons reach their height of beauty in the San Francisco area, in Union Square and Golden Gate Park, during May and up until June 15.

A LIST OF SPECIAL EVENTS IN COLORADO

More than 300 celebrations and special events of interest to vacationers have been scheduled for Colorado this season. If you plan to visit the state, you can attend buffalo barbecues, rip-roaring rodeos, outdoor operas or pari-mutuel horseracing all on one short trip. If you are the outdoor type, you can climb up to a live glacier with several hundred other nature lovers, swim in natural hot water pools or join in square dancing in the streets.

Here are just a few of the colorful events that are planned to give the Colorado vacationist the time of his life this year:

Parks Open May 15.

Famous Mesa Verde National Park near Durango (U. S. 160 and 550) opens May 15 with conducted tours, for which there are no charge, leaving almost hourly into the heart of the strange cliff dwellings. Lectures around campfires close every day at Mesa Verde Park.

May 15 opens the pari-mutuel greyhound racing at Pueblo. Statewide trout fishing starts May 19 and extends through the summer until October 31. Dramatic Trail Ridge Road, the highest continuous automobile highway in America, is scheduled to open May 30 at Estes Park (U.S. 34).

Old authentic western melodrama opens June 16 at the Imperial Hotel in the former ghost town of Cripple Creek (state highway 69 from U.S. 24). June 17 starts the daily train trips of America's last regularly scheduled narrow gauge passenger train. The train leaves Durango (U. S. 160 and 550) and for several hours winds through the deep, narrow canyons of the River of Lost Souls. Silverton, scene of many recent movies, is visited for lunch, then the train heads back for Durango.

Exciting and dangerous river boat racing can be seen June 14 through 17 at Salida (U.S. 50 and 285) during the eighth annual Arkansas river boat race. The competition is keen in this race and contestants come from the river racing centers of the world.

Opera at Central City.

June 30 starts the opera season at Central City (state highway 119) with "Tosca." The world premiere of the new American opera "Ballad of Baby Doe" appears with "Tosca" from July 7 through July 28.

The Aspen Music Festival featuring internationally famous stars opens June 27 at Aspen (state highway 82 from U.S. 6-24) and lasts until Sept. 2. July 4 is the new date for the famous Pike's Peak auto hill climb in Colorado Springs (U.S. 85-87 and 24). This race formerly was held on Labor day.

Indian dances are featured for three days, July 13-15 at La Junta (U.S. 50 and 350) when the Koshare Indian Summer Festival is held. Plenty of color film is a "must" when you attend the Koshare Festival, since the costumes are a riot of brilliant colors.

These are just a few of the more than 300 events scheduled throughout colorful Colorado for 1956. For additional information and copies of the "Colorful Colorado Events of 1956" booklet, available without charge, which lists all of these events and their locations, write to the Department of Public Relations, 986-S, Capitol Building, Denver, Colo.

JASPER NATIONAL PARK A SUPERB VACATION SITE

Having difficulty deciding what to do, where to go, during your summer vacation? Consider a visit to Jasper National Park—North America's largest—in the Canadian Rockies.

The park's 4200 square miles of glaciers, lakes, forest and snow-crowned mountains provide the setting for an unforgettable vacation, according to Canadian National Railways, whose transcontinental trains run through the park.

For adventurers imbued with the pioneering instinct, there are still many unscaled, unnamed mountain peaks waiting to carry into posterity the names of their conquerors. Excellent highways and riding trails fan out to all parts of the park. Sure-footed horses can be obtained for jaunts of an hour or so, or for several days. Experienced and mountain-wise guides are also available.

Hundreds of miles of excellent motor roads make it possible for guests to ride in comfort to many of the park's breath-catching attractions. The famed Columbia icefield is the largest body of ice outside the Arctic Circle and is known as the "Mother of Rivers for out of its massive glaciers start rivers that end their coures in the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific oceans.

Other trips include Maligne lake, largest glacial lake in the Canadian Rockies; Maligne canyon, with its pot holes bored through the rocks by the turbulent Maligne river; Mount Edith Cavell and the Glacier of the Angel; Miette hot springs with their hot and health-giving waters; the Pocahontas drive along which all kinds of wild game may be seen; Pyramid and Medicine lakes and other fascinating spots.

There is excellent fishing, and anglers can get all the thrills they are seeking with the speckled trout battlers of Maligne river and the spectacular fighting rainbows of the Tonquin valley streams. A variety of trout fishing also can be found at Lake Edith and other nearby lakes and streams.

All this in the midst of indescribable, unforgettable mountains.

OREGON EVENTS LISTED FOR MAY, JUNE AND JULY

Spring travel in Oregon promises a full calendar of interesting sights and events, all designed to make vacation days memorable, according to the Travel Division, Oregon State Highway Department.

For the traveler who carries a camera, the 400-mile Oregon coast is full of interest. The visitor will see rhododendrons all along the coast, particularly in the vicinity of Florence and Honeyman State Park. Azaleas are at their best at Azalea State Park in Brookings. Season is from mid-May through June—the higher the elevation the later the blooms.

In late spring, the Portland Rose Festival, June 6-10, honors the rose, which grows in profusion about the city of Portland. The Grand Floral Parade, with floats which must be decorated entirely in flowers, will be held this year on Saturday morning, June 9.

Oregon's spring and early summer calendar also is filled with such events as the Pea Festival, Milton-Freewater, May 18-20; Fleet of Flowers, Depoe Bay, May 30; Miss Lincoln County Pageant, Toledo, June 21-23; Phil Sheridan Days and Rodeo, Sheridan, June 22-24; World's Championship Timber Carnival, Albany, July 2-4; Mirror Pond Water Pageant, Bend, June 30, July 4 and 7, and Mies Oregon Pageant, Seaside, July 20-22, with finals on Sunday afternoon.

Full information on Oregon events and vacation facilities is available upon request to Room F, Travel Information Division, Oregon State Highway Dept., Salem, Oregon.

CHATTANOOGA HAS MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR VISITORS

Chattanooga is now a mecca for over 2,000,000 sightseers annually, who come from all sections of the nation to see the beauties of the Lookout Mountain country.

Located at the halfway point of the major north-south routes to Florida, the Gulf Coast and New Orleans, Chattanooga always has enjoyed a great volume of overnight tourist travel.

The development of the Great Smokies as the nation's most popular Federal park, just a few hours' drive from Chattanooga, and the creation of a 59-mile-long lake at the city's doorstep by the Chickamauga Dam on the Tennessee river gave the city two assets of enormous potentiality.

Luxury yachts and sail boats dot the waters of Lake Chickamauga, and water skiing is a popular water sport. The state of Tennessee is among the leaders in the number of out-of-state fishing licenses issued.

APPLE BLOSSOM FETE DATES SET IN NOVA SCOTIA

The first four days of June have been set as this year's dates for Nova Scotia's famed Annapolis Valley Apple Blossom Festival.

Each year for 23 years Annapolis Valley folk have predicted the days when the orchards will be at the height of their beauty, so that visitors can plan their annual pilgrimage. These are always the festival dates.

This year's festival will begin with the Blossom Ball in Cornwallis Inn, Kentville, on Friday night, June 1. During the next three days communities in the 100-mile-long Annapolis Valley will stage gala civic celebrations.

Great Day Comin'.

According to the transportation experts, the "Golden Age" of resort travel will begin during the early years of the 1960s and will bring travel vistas to the average man which he has never dreamed would be possible for him.

FAR WEST, EAST COAST POPULAR VACATION AREAS

Colorado, the Far West, and the East Coast will be favorite vacation spots for St. Louisans this summer, according to the Kirkland De Luxe Travel Service.

A tour of the Colorado Rockies will offer an optional extension trip to Yellowstone Park. While in Colorado, visits will be made to Colorado Springs, the Royal Gorge, Pike's Peak, the Garden of the Gods, Denver, Estes Park, Big Thompson Canyon, Berthoud Pass and other points of interest.

The Canadian Rockies and California tours will visit Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, returning home via the Grand Canyon.

Those who prefer a trip through the East may choose a circle tour with stops in Washington, New York City, Houston and Niagara Falls.

The advantages of a late summer or autumn trip to Europe are becoming more widely recognized, and those planning such a journey will be wise to make arrangements immediately.

Unusual Sights Off Beaten Path In Minnesota

Do a Little Exploring to Get Most Out of Vacation.

Almost everyone likes to see something new and different. You may have your favorite vacation spots, but still get a hankering to poke around a little in that area and see if you can't find something unusual that you hadn't noticed before. Maybe an old deserted mine or Indian campground; perhaps, just a particular scenic thrill which had escaped you before.

To find these vacation thrills it often is necessary to get off the usual route of your vacation traveling, or to thoroughly explore the countryside surrounding your resort. This is called "shunpiking," a contraction of shunning the main pikes, or roads—and Minnesota is ideal country for this sport.

Southeastern Minnesota, not always considered a vacationland, provides many a pleasant surprise for the traveler who leaves Highway 61 as it winds along the Mississippi on its way to the Twin Cities. State Highway 74 winds through rolling farmland into Whitewater State Park, a valley of mature timber and red cedar through which tumbles the roaring Whitewater river. Unusual escarpments and formations of limestone rise high above the valley floor. There is plenty to do here for the tourist who loves nature. Foot trails are maintained for hikers, a natural swimming pool will cleanse away the dust of travel and overnight cabins are maintained by the State Parks system. There are campgrounds, too, for those who bring tents. Incidentally, if there is a trout fisherman in the family he'll want to try the river for brookies. The stream is well stocked and produces fine catches every season.

Niagra Cave.

At Harmony on U.S. 52, just a few miles from the Iowa border, Niagra Cave draws thousands of visitors every year. Said to be the largest cave in the Midwest, the caverns were discovered in 1924 when a farmer was tracking down some pigs that had mysteriously disappeared. Since then it has been developed as a tourist attraction complete with a wedding chapel hundreds of feet below the earth's surface, a 60-foot waterfall and a rainbow room where stalactites of every conceivable color can be found. The caves are electrically lighted and maintain a constant, year-round temperature of 48 degrees.

Farther up toward Rochester on State Highway 57 lies the town of Mantorville, a peaceful little community settled years ago by New Englanders. It has retained much of its Yankee charm through the years, and a little bit of Vermont can still be detected in the speech of some of the older settlers. An inn at Mantorville has been restored to use and as the present day visitor registers for his room he can turn back the pages to the 1850s when the inn was a favorite rendezvous for pre-Civil War travelers.

Anyone interested in Minnesota's earliest tourists can spend many an engrossing afternoon in the area between Alexandria and Detroit Lakes in the western part of Minnesota. The world famous Kensington Runestone is kept at Alexandria. This heavy granite boulder which is inscribed with runic characters of the old Norse alphabet, carries a date of 1362 and supports belief that American explorations began long before Columbus. To predate this, the Minnesota man was dug up near Prairie Lake between Pelican Rapids and Detroit Lakes. Old missions, trading posts, Indian graves and battlegrounds can be found by the tourist who is willing to get away from his comfortable resort in this area. Incidentally, Detroit Lakes brags of 412 lakes in a 25-mile radius—and all with good fishing, too.

Handicraft Highway.

If you should get up near Walker Lake, don't miss the Handicraft Highway — State Highway 34 from Walker to Grand Rapids—where handicraft shops invite you to stop in and browse over the interesting art work—predominantly Indian and Scandinavian.

The iron ore country has always held a great fascination for Minnesota visitors. The huge open pits and man-made mountains claim most of the tourists' attention. However, three miles northwest of Hibbing on U. S. 169 lies one of the very few three-way watersheds on the continent. Theoretically, if a drop of water fell directly on top of this point, one-third of it would eventually flow out through the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, one-third would go down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico and the other third would flow north into the Arctic ocean.

These are but a few of the many sights and experiences which await the tourist family in Minnesota. Whatever area you select will have plenty of vacation activity to satisfy the whole family.

But if you really want to make this a memorable vacation year, be certain to get acquainted with the territory surrounding your resort or cottage. This is country rich in the charm of history and nature. For instance, did you know there are close to a dozen species of wild orchids growing wild in the woods of Minnesota? When you get your bags unpacked, take a good look around that spot you have selected. You will be well-rewarded, and the discoveries you make will make your Minnesota vacation just that much better.

FOREIGN VACATION IN NEARBY MEXICO

A foreign vacation wrapping mountains, seashore, modern cities, ancient ruins and a wealth of spectacular scenery in a single colorful package, is readily available to United States tourists in neighboring Mexico.

The country's modern 7350-foot high capital, Mexico City, offers an excellent base of operation for visitors wishing to see as much of Mexico as possible within a short period of time.

In the capital and its environs alone are such outstanding sights as the National Palace, the largest cathedral in the New World, the National Museum, housing the famous Aztec calendar and many other priceless Aztec-Toltec relics; Chapultepec Castle, once the home of Maximilian and Carlotta; the Floating Gardens of Xochimilco; the Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon and the Temple of Quetzalcoatl; and the Shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Patroness of Mexico.

Forty miles away is beautiful Cuernavaca, famous Mexican resort since the days of Cortez, the Spanish conquistador. Taxco, silver mining center and the most picturesque colonial town in all Mexico, can be visited on the same tour as Cuernavaca. Puebla, the "City of Churches," nestling in the shadow of the twin volcano peaks of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, is 85 miles from Mexico City. In the same vicinity is Cholula, where the world's largest pyramid may be seen.

The magnificent Pacific Coast resort city of Acapulco is but an hour's flight from the capital. Scenery throughout the Mexico City area is spectacular and the climate is superb, according to Pan American World Airways.

One of the highlights of a Mexican vacation is an overland trip over the 285-mile "Cortes trail" between Mexico City and the Gulf Coast city of Veracruz which the Conquistador founded as his base of operation in Mexico.

In descending from 7350-foot elevation to sea level, the route traverses some of Mexico's most rugged mountains and beautiful valleys. Nearing Veracruz, it passes through Fortin de las Flores, a delightful torpical resort located in a valley described as the "flower paradise of Mexico." One of its leading hotels features a swimming pool garnished with gardenia blossoms. Gardenias, azaleas, camellias, orchids, tulips and many other flowers are grown commercially in this area.

Veracruz itself boasts two fine gulf beaches and some of the oldest Spanish buildings in Mexico, including the Castle of San Juan de Ulua. Other tourist meccas easly reached from Mexico City are the city of Guadalajara, Oaxaca and the Yucatan capital, Merida. Sights near Oaxaca include runs of the ancient Zapotec-Mixtec cities of Monte Alban and Mitla, while the fabulous Maya cities of Chichen Itza and Uxmal are easily visited from Merida.

'Kentucky Lake Admirals' Out for a Sail

—Kentucky Dept. of Publicity.

Sailing at its best on the wide expanses of this great man-made lake is an increasingly popular sport, with many of the craft kept year 'round at State boat docks at Kentucky Lake State Park and Kentucky Dam Village.

SHARP CONTRAST OF OLD AND NEW UP IN ALASKA

So many countries have been described as "lands of contrast" that the phrase has become somewhat trite. But it certainly is true in Alaska.

Here one sees miles of tumbled spectacular mountains and the endless vastness of Arctic tundra; meets Eskimos in their native villages; fishes for grayling, trout and salmon; chips ice from age-old glaciers; and talks with grizzled pioneer miners and alert young business men.

In the near hinterland of modern cities are quaint Eskimo and Indian villages. A 12-story concrete modernistic apartment house may be next door to an old timer's log cabin with team harness hung on its porch.

De luxe comfort can be found in the finer hotels, or the stimulation of rugged life in a mountain camp. The traveler may sail in a sternwheel river boat on an Alaska river, and watch a sleek plane glide by overhead. Within Alaska no point is too remote to be reached by small aircraft, and Alaskans fly as commonly as they take a taxi.

YELLOWSTONE, GRAND TETON PARKS PROVIDE CAR RENTALS

For the first time travelers to Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks can do their sightseeing in "drive-yourself" cars which can be rented at nearby cities in Montana, Wyoming and Idaho, and at several points within the parks.

The Yellowstone Park company, the Grand Teton Park transportation company and a car rental service are cooperating in the project which permits vacationers to ride common carriers to park areas and, on arrival, rent cars for go-as-you please vacation tours of the two national parks.

The new service was announced by the Northern Pacific railway in a statement of plans to arrange for rental of late model cars for summer vacationers traveling to the parks by rail. Passengers arriving in Livingston, Billings, Butte or Bozeman, Mont., can now extend their vacations by motoring through Yellowstone and the Tetons.

Sightseeing buses will continue to transport most of the common carrier travelers, but drive-yourself sedans also will be available in the spring, summer and autumn seasons for vacationists who prefer to drive themselves.

Under the drive-yourself arrangement, offices have been set up at hotels in Yellowstone Park and the lodge at Jackson Lake in the Tetons, as well as stations in Livingston, Billings, West Yellowstone, Bozeman and Butte, Montana; Cody, Wyoming; and Idaho Falls and Pocatello, Idaho. Cars may be driven from one city or park station and released at another.

GRAND TETONS DEFY ALL DESCRIPTION

Most folks who have seen the Grand Tetons of Wyoming, leave them with a single comment: "They look like mountains ought to look."

And they do—sheer pinnacles of jagged rock, glacier dotted, ever changing, ever beautiful.

Many travelers liken them to the Swiss Alps—but this is not an entirely correct comparison and entirely too pat for this range which defies every descriptive adjective in the English language.

Actually, no matter from which direction you approach the Tetons—whether on U.S. 187 or U.S. 287 from the south, on U.S. 26 from the southeast, from Yellowstone Park to the north—you are entirely unprepared for what confronts you, and this may be part of the grandeur.

Approaching from the south, you first skirt the rugged Wind river mountains, then drop into the twisting narrows of Hoback Canyon, finally emerging in the quaint mountain town of Jackson.

You sense that the Tetons are near, but you're in a pocket and a low ridge hides the view to the north. You drive on anxiously and suddenly you're right in the middle of Jackson Hole—an exquisite expanse of green cashmere fields, dotted with every imaginable color and size of wild alpine flower.

Suddenly, There They Are.

And there, jutting silver crowns into the sky, are the Tetons. You have been prepared for more tranquil scenery, nothing like this, and the immensity of this forty-mile range as it marches north and south along the western rim of the valley leaves you silent, knowing that this experience is too big for words.

Depending on the hour you emerge into the valley, the Tetons may be a deep shadowed blue, a glittering silver, a hazy mixture of green and white. They may be clearly outlined showing their massive bases and needle-like summits some 14,000 feet high, or they may be partially obscured by azure haze and intermingling white clouds.

But stop your car, wait a few moments, and the Tetons will change their mood for you.

From the east you first must cross Togwotee Pass, an experience in itself. From the north, you've just left the wonders of Yellowstone Park and you're sure that anything else you are going to see will be an anti-climax.

You're driving through heavy timber and occasionally, through a clearing, you see something big and massive far, far away. You look again at the next clearing and all you see is haze obscuring everything and you wonder to yourself about this strange country.

Then, just as suddenly, you burst out of the timber, into Jackson Hole. You're at the east edge of the valley if you're on U.S. 26, or midway down the long shoreline of Jackson lake if you're coming from Yellowstone.

And there they are—magnificent, spectacular, changing shape and mood before your very eyes. You've seen a lot of scenery already and you're pretty jaded concerning nature's handiwork by now—but you gasp incoherently and violently shake your wife who has been sleeping beside you.

You look at the unfolding, ever-changing vista before you together. And silently, together, you forget about nature, and you think of God and you're glad you're alive and here now.

After a while you'll recover, of course, and you'll take your eyes off the Tetons long enough to see that the immediate area offers dozens of fine lodge, resort, hotel, motel accommodations. You'll find outstanding eating places, including outdoor chuck-wagon spreads.

Fishing at Jackson Lake.

You'll note that fishing is excellent in Jackson lake and on the turbulent Snake river—and you'll make a mad scramble for film and camera to begin recording some of this beauty for the folks back home who just won't believe you until they've seen it themselves.

You'll find boating trips over the glassy surface of Jackson lake, right under the very ledges of the Tetons, an exhilarating experience, too.

Soon, you'll have to leave this Jackson Hole country—and as you drive away the Tetons will disappear as fast as they burst into view. You'll wonder if you've been dreaming — and you'll vow then and there to come back again.

MISSISSIPPI'S GULF COAST VACATION AREA

Time was when the expression "doing 90" meant exceeding the speed limit, but not so these days. To America's vacationists "doing 90" means exploring the Mississippi Gulf Coast where U. S. Highway 90 is Main Street—the link between the seven sister communities of Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian, Long Beach, Gulfport, Biloxi, Ocean Springs and Pascagoula.

"Doing 90" right now runs you smack into summery weather; the season may be behind elsewhere but Coast-wise the Gulf waters are warm, the sun is hot, and it's a choice between a swim suit or a light cotton. Swimming is delightful, fresh and salt water fish are biting, golf vies with tennis, and horseback riding and sailing are runners up for favorites among the active sports.

Charter boat and party boat captains have their trim and speedy craft nuzzling the docksides of every small harbor rarin' to take off after the fighting big fellows.

As sure as the sun rises, the sail boats pattern the breeze-riffled waters with their triangles of gleaming white . . . every day, all summer long. The yacht clubs of Biloxi, Gulfport, Pass Christian and Bay-Waveland schedule racing and regattas regularly, and visitors are welcome at these clubs. A sign stands beside the pavilion of the Bert Jones Memorial Yacht Basin in Gulfport, proclaiming in large letters "Visitors welcome."

Two days of festivities, July 28 and 29, lead up to the Gulf Coast's most outstanding summer event—the Blessing of the Fleet. Decorated floats parade through downtown Biloxi and the beach front, a Queen of the Fleet is crowned, the coast fishing fleet gathers in the Biloxi Channel to pass in review before the officiating priest of the Roman Catholic Church who blesses each boat, and its occupants, in turn.

But "doing 90" means much beside all this. It means treading in the footsteps of history, looking back more than two and a half centuries to the building of Old Spanish Fort at Pascagoula (thought to be the oldest building in the Mississippi Valley) to the landing of Pierre Le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville on the shores of the Bay of Biloxi.

It means enjoying the man-made sand beach, 28 miles of smooth, clean, uncluttered, silvery sands.

It means driving slowly past ante bellum homes set in old gardens, their lawns shaded by great-girthed live oaks. It means visiting the shrine of the Confederacy, "Beauvoir," the last home of that "man of sorrows" Jefferson Davis, the President of the Confederacy.

And when the magic mantle of the Southern night falls, it means entertainment and supping or dining in the famous-name restaurants on such specialties de la maison as stuffed flounder, crabmeat fresh as dawn, shrimps in any number of succulent ways.

And when, in the words of the old French song, it's time to "fais dodo" there is the ease and comfort of the hotel or motel of your choice.

Details on a Mississippi Gulf Coast vacation may be obtained from the Vacation Club, Box 80-B W. Beach, Biloxi, Miss.

SOUTH PACIFIC CRUISE SERVICE TO RE-OPEN

Passenger Liners to Go Into Service to Romantic Islands This Autumn.

SAN FRANCISCO—Out of the clang and clatter of a busy shipyard in Portland, Ore., the dreams of travel-hungry Americans for a South Seas voyage are coming closer to realization as two graceful sister ships, the S.S. Monterey and S. S. Mariposa, near completion. These twin 20-knot passenger liners soon will reopen the romantic South Seas cruise service of the Matson Lines.

The Mariposa is about 65 per cent completed and is scheduled to lead off on October 27. The Monterey will follow within 70 days.

The new "white ships" will carry on the traditional prewar passenger service made popular by two distinguished predecessors whose names they bear. The original Mariposa and Monterey did not return to the route after their wartime service as troopships.

Each of the new cruise ships will carry 370 passengers, all first class.

The ships will be operated by Matson's Oceanic Steamship Co. and the program for the two represents an outlay of nearly $40,000,000 for the company and the federal government, which shares in the reconversion cost because the ships will be serving an essential foreign trade route.

They are the first postwar passenger liners designed exclusively for Pacific service. They will be completely air-conditioned with wide deck spaces ideal for cruising in tropical waters.

Offering a more attractive itinerary than the prewar days, the Mariposa and Monterey will call at Honolulu, on the threshold of Polynesia, then to Samoa, Fiji and Tahiti and on to Australia and New Zealand.

Travelers who have longed for a South Seas cruise will be offered a 42-day round trip cruiser package, as well as vacation trips to any of the ports of call. A wide variety of stopovers and optional side trips will be available. The ships will cruise from California to Australia in 17½ days, with calls at Honolulu, Samoa, Fiji, Tahiti and Zealand during the round trip.

All southbound departures will be from San Francisco via Los Angeles and Honolulu. One route southbound will be to Pago Pago, Suva, Wellington and Sydney. After a five-day layover in Sydney, the ship will return via Auckland, Tahiti and Honolulu.

Every other sailing will reverse the order of ports of call. Daylight stops will be made at all South Pacific ports and passengers will get 48 hours in Papeete, Tahiti.

Persons desiring to spend more time in New Zealand may enjoy an 11-day tour while the ship goes to Australia and returns. Day trips also will be available to Rotorua and Waitoma in New Zealand and to interior Australia.

Inter-change with air carriers on a round-trip basis between the Pacific Coast and points in Fiji, New Zealand and Australia also will permit longer stays in those countries. For the "time-budget" traveler, combined sea and air travel will make possible visits to all principal points of interest in a minimum period.

Matson officials report that interest in the new South Pacific cruise ships has been enthusiastic and widespread. The dream-like islands of the southern hemisphere have an unparalleled allure for people all over the world.

"While each island is distinctively different unto itself, all are united by an underseas umbilical cord. That is, in Fiji, Samoa, Tahiti—as in Hawaii—are found majestic, volcano-born mountains; flowers spun from the fabric of rainbows; beaches of white and black glistening sand; sun-blessed days of a most perpetual springlike climate . . . memorable nights under a canopy of brilliant stars; native peoples whose basic charm and friendliness have survived the centuries."

Australia and New Zealand are "self-contained countries with wide range of climate and specific, salable tourist attractions found nowhere else in the world. Each is stamped, in delightfully diverse shades, with the "Made in Britain" trademark.

The United States tourist is still a relative rarity in these areas, "half a world away."

Lake Okeechobee, second largest body of fresh water completely within the boundaries of the United States, is only a 90-minute drive from Fort Lauderdale. Its Seminole name means "Big Water."

Real-Life Thrillers On Daily Broadcasts

By Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP).

ON a recent evening, thousands of men and women turned on their radios and heard a man's voice: "Calling SNB agent Novak in Vikmanov-Jachymov concentration camp . . . Novak is known as an exceptionally brutal person . . . take care. In the eyes of the prisoners you are already a doomed man. Remember the letter your wife received? It contained a piece of rope. You know what that meant . . ."

The beginning of one of those foreign intrigue thrillers? No, a real-life, deadly earnest broadcast by Radio Free Europe denouncing to the subjugated peoples of Czechoslovakia a Communist brute.

Or the voice might say: "The one whose cover name is 'There Are No Trees in Front of Our House' speaks to mother, brothers and sisters. I send you a message over the bridge of love. With all the warmth of a child's heart, I wish you happiness and hope for a reunion soon."

A broadcast in some childish code for the kiddie's hour? No, an emotional message to the folks back home in Hungary from a son and brother who made it safely to freedom—and broadcast over the Iron Curtain by Radio Free Europe. And that code name, picked before he made his break, is to protect the family behind from the wrath and possible vengeance of the oppressors.

Day in and day out, for a total of 3000 hours weekly, RFE broadcasts, in a babble of tongues, to the millions cut off by Communism from free communication. As a radio programming operation, it's a psychological campaign to make our commercial networks selling seem like child's play. RFE is reaching the ears of literally millions in Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania, Bulgaria in an effective war with words to help them regain their liberty.

● SOME OF THE MATERIAL is dynamite, like the denunciation of the Red agent in the concentration camp. Employes of Radio Free Europe, working in West Germany and in Austria are busy around the clock, interviewing refugees and collecting information for later use. Maybe RFE will never know what happened after it had lowered the boom on the Hungarian smuggler who promised to get men and women over the border—for a fee—but actually turned them over to the regime. But it does find out occasionally—from recent escapees—that its "Black Book Broadcasts," as the denunciations are called, have fantastic impact.

For example, after Josef Swiatlo, a high security officer in Red Poland, fled to the West, he provided enough black book material for more than 100 broadcasts. One result was a big upheaval in Communist brass—including the purge of the ministry of security, known as the "Polish Beria."

One broadcast, RFE learned later, jeered so effectively at a Communist sycophant that his coworkers laughed away his power. RFE, in a Black Book Broadcast, told how he had declared at a party meeting that "we are the state." It called him "the second Louis XIV." The nickname was picked up by his sarcastic fellow employes.

● "THE COMMUNISTS listen to RFE and are afraid of it," one young escapee reported. "If one of them is mentioned, they get scared, as they imagine (and we hope) that Americans keep records of those denounced. After the announcements, a kind of panic is noticeable among them."

Actually, in none of the countries is listening to RFE broadcasts expressly forbidden. The Reds, however, try to jam the wave-lengths, which is the reason the broadcasts are frequently sent out on so many channels, insuring that they will be heard in some unjammed quarters. But those who do listen, don't make a lot of noise about it—rather whisper news quietly to trusted friends.

The dramatic and sometimes life-saving Black Book Broadcasts are almost equaled in popularity by two others. One is a program on medicine, specifically designed for doctors but also listened to by laymen, short of medical supplies and many of them ailing. Another, beloved by those those oppressed men and women, is the message program. These are recorded voices of relatives speaking messages—almost always with code identifications to conceal their names.

Whole villages sometimes become wildly excited because they have recognized the voice telling of reaching the United States, of the birth of a child, of hope for a reunion. Grandparents hear the voices of children they have never seen; parents hear from sons from whom they have been separated a dozen or more years.

● MANY OF THESE are recorded in the area around New York by Tibor Florian, a Hungarian refugee who carries a recording machine as frequently as he does his wristwatch. Mostly, Florian works through Hungarian religious groups.

The message programs have no political tinge to them at all. They are quite simply personal messages, more intimate than letters and uncensorable by the Communist authorities.

A major problem to be overcome involves getting messages back to families from relatives who have been over here many years.

"Many of them are afraid they will get their relatives in trouble," Florian says, "then we try to pick a code name which the family in Hungary will be able to recognize. One man used Bagira, which was the name of an animal in a book by Kipling. He had been called that by his family as a nickname. His family heard the broadcast—and recognized him."

Big Business in Little Chicks

More Than 40 Years Ago a Boy in Clinton, Mo., Was Given Setting of Eggs, and From This Incident Has Grown Thriving Enterprise That Dominates the Countryside

By Dickson Terry

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CLINTON, Mo., May 5.

BACK in 1913 an agent for the old Kansas City, Clinton & Springfield Railroad, now a part of the Frisco system, conceived the idea of promoting the raising of chickens and berries along the company's line as a way to increase traffic.

The name of the agent has been long forgotten, but here in Clinton, the name of Royal Booth is engraved in the minds of every one of the town's 6000 inhabitants.

The agent gave berry bushes, young fruit trees and settings of pedigreed eggs to outstanding students, the idea being a sort of forerunner of 4-H clubs. The fruit trees and the berry bushes are also lost along with the agent's name, but not the setting of eggs.

They went to an outstanding student named Royal Booth, who took the 15 fertile, pedigreed White Rock eggs home with him and sat down to solve the problem of how to hatch them. He had no mother hens, no incubator. He bethought himself of a neighbor who had some broody hens. He rented a hen for 15 cents and established her on a nest atop the eggs. She entered into the spirit of the thing and 21 days later rewarded young Booth with 12 chickens.

It then occurred to Royal that he had failed to anticipate the fact that someone or something had to brood the chickens and scratch for food, so he paid the neighbor another dime and kept the hen until the chicks were big enough to fend for themselves.

ROYAL graduated with honors from high school that spring, and everyone assumed he would go on to great things. There was talk around town when it was learned that Royal had spent a $50 graduation gift for a second-hand incubator. It was a crude affair, heated by a kerosene burner and with a capacity of only 200 eggs. But Royal had a vision when he raised and sold that first dozen chickens, and his vision was crystallized when, at the end of a year he had cleared $600. He was in the chicken business to stay, something for which the town is now unceasingly grateful.

In a few years Royal had an operation going which resulted in thousands of chickens instead of hundreds, and was making him rich. Inspired by his success, others entered the field, and today Clinton is recognized as the baby chick center of the country.

In the town itself there are now 14 flourishing hatcheries, 30 more are scattered around Henry county in which Clinton is located, and a half dozen more in surrounding counties which ship their chicks through Clinton.

During the chick season, which starts in January and lasts until late June or July, an average of 60,000 to 70,000 chicks a day are shipped out to points all over the United States. During the peak of the season, which is late April and May, production has been known to reach a peak of 150,000 chicks a day, which comes close to a million a week.

IN fact, around this time of the year about everything in Clinton is geared to chicken production. Since the chickens are sent parcel post, the Post Office is busier than Christmas time at the main Post Office in St. Louis. Early in the morning boxes of chicks start arriving and pile up until they are stacked to the ceiling. Postal employes take turns weighing and stamping them. As fast as they are processed at the Post Office they are moved to the loading dock in the rear where truckers load them on trucks and haul them to the Frisco station.

There the chicks are loaded in special cars which the people around Clinton refer to as "chicken Pullmans." These cars are equipped by the Frisco with the same heating and ventilating system found in Pullman cars. The temperature and the humidity are tempered to the baby chicks and an attendant rides with them.

The attendant, Howard Freeman, like most chicken men, has developed a sort of sixth sense about baby chicks.

"I can tell by the noise they make," he says," whether they are too hot or too cold, and I adjust the temperature accordingly. If they are too hot or too cold they're like a bunch of convicts beating on the tables with tin cups. I mean, they all start chirping like crazy. When the temperature is right they all chirp sort of soft and contented, like a cat purring."

Some hatchery men go even further and claim they can tell by smell, when they enter a car, whether the chickens are too hot or too cold.

The train leaves at 1:15 every day for Kansas City, 70 miles to the north, which is the nearest distribution point. From there they go out to their various destinations over the country. There are always at least two and sometimes three carloads a day.

It was parcel post shipment, inaugurated in 1918, which made the baby chick business what it is today. When Royal Booth started the whole thing before World War I, he was really in the broiler business. He raised the chicks to broiler stage and sold them. Now and then he would sell baby chicks to people who came to the hatchery and took them away in a basket.

When the first World War came along, Booth decided to sell out and enlist. He put an ad in the paper to try to sell all his baby chicks so he could close the hatchery. People came carrying boxes, buckets, baskets and anything else they could carry chicks in.

STANDARD procedure those days, among people who wanted some chickens around the place, was to place a setting of 15 eggs under a hen and grow their own from scratch. It had never occurred to them they could buy the chicks already hatched.

Booth was surprised at the response and quick to grasp its significance. He decided not to enlist. Instead he would just go on hatching baby chicks and selling them until he got drafted, and then he could close up on short notice. But when he finally did go to war the business was so prosperous that his wife and his brothers, Rex and Eden Comfort, carried on.

By this time he had already started chicken shipping in a small way. He had placed an ad in the Kansas City papers and received a flock of orders. He was shipping them by express as far as Kansas City in old shoe boxes with holes punched in them. By the time he went off to war he was producing 100,000 chickens a year, which seemed like a lot in those days. The battery of automatic hatching incubators at the Booth hatcheries now have a capacity of 90,000 eggs at one hatching.

A BABY chicken is so equipped by nature that it takes no food for the first 72 hours. Its food is supplied by egg yolk absorbed into its body during the hatching period. Through parcel post chicks can be shipped nearly anywhere in the country in 72 hours, and by air they can be sent to Central and South America, as they sometimes are. A few years ago the Booth hatcheries got an order for 500 chicks from Brazil. They had to be sent by air express—you can't send chicks air mail—and at the buyer's risk. Transportation cost more than the chickens—$144 for shipment, and $105 for the chickens.

The factory-produced chick never knows a mother's love. The eggs are brought in from farmers around Clinton who are supplied with pedigreed chickens to produce pedigreed eggs. These chickens, raised on breeding farms which some of the hatcheries maintain, are trap-nested and checked daily for production, and any chicken which doesn't have a batting average close to 300 eggs a year gets sent to the minors.

The Booth hatchery, which is still the largest in Clinton, is now managed by Jean Booth, a nephew of the founder, who boasts of the fact that he more than grew up in the chicken business—he was born where the hatchery parking lot is now situated. His family home burned when the hatchery burned many years ago. After Royal Booth's death in 1947, his brother Rex (Jean's father) took over, and when he retired a couple of years ago, Jean assumed the managership.

WHEN the eggs come in, Booth explained as he showed us through the hatchery, they are placed on long metal trays, about 150 to a tray, to be placed in incubators, each of which will hold about 70,000 eggs. Heat and humidity in the incubator are automatically controlled. The temperature is kept in the upper nineties.

As a hen sits on a setting of eggs, she keeps turning them at regular intervals with her feet. The incubator does this by tilting the trays. The incubator tilts the trays at a 45 degree angle for a period of time, then tilts them at the same angle in the other direction.

At the end of 21 days the chickens come out to face life. The next step is sorting them according to breed. There is little of this to do, because all trays are marked with the name of the producer, and most producers stick to a single breed. The majority of the chickens hatched at Booth's are White Leghorns, the most popular breed for egg producing. Others are White Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, Barred Rocks, New Hampshires and a hybrid whose ancestry is a trade secret.

AFTER they are sorted, they are separated according to sex. In the old days determination of sex was mostly guesswork, and the buyer had to take his chances. Nowadays, however, experts are employed by the hatcheries who, on quick inspection, can separate the pullets from the cockerels as fast as a man can sort apples. As a result the hatchery can now guarantee a shipment to be more than 95 per cent of the desired gender. The sexer, as he is called, is highly expert and highly paid. He can make as much as $1000 a month during the peak of the season.

The chicks are usually on the train and on their way the same day they are hatched. Although they are self-sufficient for 72 hours, the law says they must be at their destination at the end of 64 hours. If they exceed this time the station master, wherever they happen to be when the time is up, is authorized to sell them. This, however, rarely happens.

Most of the chicks which leave Clinton go to farmers and egg producers over the country for a career of egg laying. A notable exception is the Lindstrom Hatchery, one of the largest in the county, which produces broilers for the table.

They are a special breed which make an excellent broiler when from nine to 12 weeks old. They are sold at the chick stage, but are shipped to commercial broiler growers. Some broiler farms raise from 10,000 to 50,000 chickens at a time. At the farms, the chickens are raised and fattened until they weigh about three pounds. Then they go to the chicken processing plants and finally wind up on the meat counter at your market.

CHICKS are shipped in light but strong cardboard boxes. There are two types of boxes, one for winter and another for summer. The chicks require more space in hot weather. A summer box is 24 by 18 by six inches. A winter box measures 18 by 22 by five and three-quarters inches. The boxes have plenty of holes on side and top to give adequate ventilation. The chickens are packed 100 to a box.

You may think of a baby chick as a frail little thing, but it's amazing, hatchery men will tell you, how much they can take and how tenacious of life they are. Hatchery men handle them expertly, but as casually as potatoes. They are packed in boxes by the double handful, the boxes are stacked up and moved around, hauled, trucked, loaded and unloaded and the chick will have traveled often hundreds of miles by the time it is a couple of days out of the shell. But it seldom shows signs of wear.

In fact, the hatchery men will tell you, the factory-bred chicken has a better chance of survival than the barnyard chicken hatched and raised by its own mother. A sort of triumph of technology over nature.

BABY CHICKS SUCH AS THESE, HATCHED BY THE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS, HAVE MADE THE TOWN OF CLINTON, MO., THE BABY CHICKEN CENTER OF THE COUNTRY.

Tinkle of Cow Bell, Chorus of Frogs

By Leonard Hall

WE have a saying that's heard often during such a spring as this, which has been interminably slow and long and cold. We climb out at daybreak here at Possum Trot Farm, peer from the window to see the ground covered with frosty white, read the thermometer which stands at 27 degrees and say, "Well—now that the early garden is nipped and the frost has finished the last of the fruit, surely it will start turning warm."

During the month just past, we've had to repeat this saying a dozen or more times, for we had hard frosts right up until last week. We look into the heart of cherry and apple blossoms and see the fruiting center turned black; and even now we aren't quite sure spring has arrived. Perhaps before it really gets here we'll have plunged into summer and be busy at the haying which is hardly more than three weeks away. For all the promising predictions of a wet April—and even of the beginning of the long 40-year wet cycle—we suffered severely from drouth. Fields worked last autumn have begun to crack; and day after day a half-gale sucks the last moisture from the parched land. On most afternoons the western horizon is dimmed by dust blowing from the high plains of Texas and from Oklahoma and Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico. The handsome rain gauge Ginnie gave me for Christmas hasn't had enough moisture in it to make a good sneeze. (Editor's Note: Len reports a two-inch rain last weekend and won't complain about drouth for a while.)

Despite all this, the signs of spring continue. Wildflowers bloom in endless succession and birds are nesting everywhere. The end of April brought a full moon, climbing the crest of old Buford to sail the southern sky. True enough, this April moon is not the great orb of Indian summer with its touch of flame as if seen through the smoke of distant prairie fires. Yet neither is it the cold, clear moon of December with its company of stars sparkling like blue flecks of ice. Rather, it is a shy and tentative moon; a misty maiden making her journey behind gossamer clouds, not quite obscured and with a promise of summer nights to come.

● TOWARD THE VERY END OF THE MONTH there finally arrived an evening when, the chores finished and supper eaten, it was warm enough to sit on the east terrace and wait for moonrise. On such evenings the lights of farmhouses over against the mountain twinkle through new foliage and a glow spreads gradually along the crest as the moment approaches for Diana to appear. The deepening dusk is filled with sounds such as are only heard on a spring evening. From a far pasture the tinkle of Peggy's bell floats up to us and all around, from ponds and creek, is the chorus of the frogs. There are many of these voices; the chirp of spring peepers, the beautiful trill of the garden toad, the guttural clack of meadow frogs and the mournful melody of the tree frog. A calf bawls for its mother and is answered. The mockingbird bursts into song as if it were sun-up and we can hear the sleepy murmuring of bluebirds in their houses along the back fence.

We sit quiet, enjoying the night, and suddenly are aware of two sure signs of the approaching summer. Far down the valley a whip-poor-will starts its ceaseless calling and I say to Ginnie, in accordance with old-time Ozark tradition, that the time has come for her to start carrying in wood for the stove, since from now on I'll be in the fields from daybreak until dark. And we think what a far cry that was from these days of tractors in the field and electric ranges in the farm kitchen, but agree that even in the old days we couldn't have been busier. As we talk, I suddenly see a wink of light just above the grass in the yard. Then there's another and we realize the fireflies are back. Surely there'll be no more cold weather now and it will be safe to set out tomato plants in the garden; a task I always put off until the nights are mild and warm.

● WE'RE NOT QUITE SURE about the nesting schedules of songbirds, though they seem to go ahead regardless of weather. One pair of bluebirds in a box on the back fence have brought off their first brood and are at the endless task of feeding the young. This nest is half-hidden behind a hazelnut bush where the birds generally stop before carrying food into the box; and on sunny afternoons old Mike likes to lie just at the foot of the bush. This puts both parents into a dither; but they soon decide the old red dog means no harm. And once they've made up their minds to this, the feeding process goes ahead steadily, just as though Mike were far away.

Another pair which have brought off a brood are the Carolina wrens in the machine shed. As often happens with this species, the choice of a nesting site needlessly complicates the feeding operation, since food must be carried by a circuitous route; in through an adjoining shed, up through a crack in the eaves and then down to the wall cabinet where the nest reposes precariously on its pile of nuts and bolts. Then there's a Bewick wren in the woodpile and another in a gourd; a phoebe over the stable door; more English sparrows than we like behind the shutters of the house; and doubtless many another.

This tremendous activity among the birds is one of the joys of spring in the country. Bobwhites whistle from the multiflora hedge at the edge of the garden. A pileated woodpecker comes each day to feed at an old maple stump in the front yard and has almost demolished it. Downy and hairy woodpeckers, titmice, chickadees, white-crowned and white-throated and field and chipping and song sparrows still visit the feeders. All we need is a few more hours in every day to give us time to watch them.

KATE SMITH---25 Years on Top

After a Quarter-Century, She's Still Almost More Legend Than Fact to Her Fans

TED COLLINS . . . HE'S BEEN AT MISS SMITH'S SIDE THROUGH PRACTICALLY ALL HER PROFESSIONAL LIFE.

Last Sunday night, Kate Smith walked out on a stage and into American homes via the TV screen in her first such appearance in many months. The reason she was there—and hadn't been for such a long time before—is part of the remarkable story of one of the great American entertainers of all time. Despite her popularity for more than a quarter of a century, Kate still is almost more legend than fact to most of her fans. The following article tells the Kate Smith story through the words and eyes of Kate herself and the man who has been by her side for 26 years, Ted Collins.

By Phyllis Battelle

NEW YORK, May 5.

SUCH a land of sudden fame is America that "success stories" become dull and commonplace and unenchanting. Then one day you walk into the sunlit parlor of a monumental institution named Kate Smith, and the tarnished Cinderella tale is shiny again.

Here is a woman devoid of the accepted assets of glamour who has received 25,000,000 fan letters and grossed $35,000,000 since she made her first radio broadcast 25 years ago last Tuesday.

Here, as regal as a Wagnerian diva and as yakkety as a back-fence conversation, is a woman who disapproves of worry and temperament, who is too simple and direct to make headlines, and who has the business acumen of a child of five.

She is wearing a black dress which diminishes her famous rounded figure, and sitting gracefully in a delicate antique chair which exaggerates it. Beside her, overseeing all and speaking occasionally when Kate's hearty voice asks for corroboration on some fact of her remarkable story, is her graying manager, Ted Collins.

If he is abrupt with a remark, it is only to protect his 46-year old protege from answering too many questions that might disturb her emotionally. For instance, Kate readily answers questions about her plentiful figure—a professional trademark, but nonetheless a sensitive subject to any woman. "The plain fact is that I am a large woman in a field supposedly restricted to the slim and glamorous of my sex," she says.

But when the conversation gets deeper, and Kate's face grows more serious, Collins calmly interrupts: "okay," "so much for weight."

At this, the fabulous Miss Smith looks quickly toward him and grins. She obviously is grateful.

KATE was a scarcely-known singer and dancer in Broadway revues and Collins was a young recording manager for a record company when they met 26 years ago. She was billed as "Tiny Little," and the fans came to the theater to laugh at her antics. For $450 a week, Kate could not complain. But she wasn't happy, either.

Collins came to the theater one night and heard her tremendous, clear-as-a-crystal voice, untutored but unmatched. When he went backstage and offered to make her a "serious" singer, "Tiny Little" Smith cried in appreciation. They entered into a verbal 50-50 partnership in which Collins was to be sole guide and manager of her professional affairs.

"He told me," Kate recalls now, glancing over at Collins with devoted good humor, "that all I had to do was never ask any questions, and we'd get there. Just let him handle the worries. I put myself in his hands and we did get there."

Collins, a good looking man who stands perhaps two inches shorter than Kate, looked at her seriously. "You did it, too. Everything. In 25 years, Kathryn canceled only six shows out of about 9000 she was asked to give."

In that quarter-century, through the endlessly strenuous weeks, this unique partnership accumulated a great deal of money and almost as much gossip. Though Collins is married and a grandfather, a great bulk of Kate's fans still believe that she and Ted are secretly husband and wife. Other people, including gossip columnists, have hinted for two decades that theirs is a "Svengali-Trilby" relationship. There is no hypnotism between Kate and Collins, but from the standpoint of the utter dependency of one upon the other, there is indeed a sound basis to the comparison.

KATE refuses to conduct an interview, or to perform, without Ted's being close by. When she is putting her feeling for her manager in the simplest possible terms, she says: "He is a good friend and a wise counselor. Whatever success I have had or may have is due entirely to Ted Collins, the man who took me and my work seriously and made it his chief concern."

In return, Ted has never talked much about his devotion to Kate, beyond saying "I am proud of everything she has done." He has, however, proved his sense of responsibility toward her in more positive ways.

He would virtually lay down his life, in fact, for her.

"He almost did," she recalls, looking over bleakly at Collins as if she feared he might, yet, collapse on the spot. Last December, she said, he suffered a heart attack the afternoon before she was scheduled to make a guest appearance on the Ed Sullivan television show, which she finally made last Sunday.

"He knew that I wouldn't go on if he was sick, so he didn't call a doctor. He just lay down and thought well maybe this heart attack will pass away. Then the next day he got worse and I thought—and the doctor thought — he wasn't going to survive. I canceled everything, of course, and vowed I wouldn't come out of retirement until Ted got well. . . ."

"Well, I'm okay now, so back she goes," Collins said. "I've done some silly things in my life," he laughed.

"Yes, laugh, we can laugh about it now," Kate smiled gently at her manager-friend. "So now we go back to work. But I don't think we ever want to go back to work steadily again."

What Kate meant was that she had started a series of guest appearances on television, including lengthy "spectaculars"—but that after 25 years of almost solid work on radio, TV and stage, she has no intention of having "a steady show" again.

"Truthfully, for the very first time in 26 years I have found I can go to the movies in the afternoon. I can get a toothache and go to the dentist. I can go shopping and see my friends. And being a woman I like all that." Collins added that Kate is "comfortably fixed, so she never has to work again. Every cent she's got is in United States Government savings bonds and banks."

Kate interrupted, "Yes, and people are always telling me to invest in other things."

"You tell those people," brooded Collins, who handles Kate's business affairs, "to drop dead. With my money, I'll gamble. With your money, I play safe."

KATE, who has made up to $38,000 a week in her long reign as a top singer, never has had time to think about money. She has two loves: singing and people. And neither of them have cost her a cent.

"My voice is the most economical instrument in the world," she says, "because I've never had one lesson. My mother says that I didn't utter a word until I was four years old—they thought I was going to be mute—and then suddenly I started to hum while she was playing the organ."

The assumption is that Kate was saving her voice for the subsequent years in which she has sung—true and clear and untutored — through a large chunk of every day. Early in the 1930s, when she was just catching on as a radio singer, she made an appearance as guest artist with the Philadelphia Symphony, conducted on that occasion by Leopold Stokowski.

"After I sang, Mr. Stokowski —who knows a lot about music, I guess—came up to me and said: 'Don't ever study. Don't let any teacher talk you into taking vocal lessons. It might change that God-given voice.'"

KATE always remembered that. She never risked lessons. Although she has perfect pitch, she can't read music. With a three-octave range and a voice that is kept limber apparently by God and clean living (she hates night clubs, never smokes or drinks), Kate learns songs by having a pianist play them for her twice.

From the time she entered her 'teens, "Little Katie," as she refers to herself, had a voice that cheered people.

If she hadn't had her vocal talent, she might have developed wallflower complexes about being stout. On the other hand, if she had been forced to worry more about her plumpness, she probably would have developed into a more slender person.

Kate looks back on it philosophically now. "Because I had a natural talent, I was never allowed to be a wallflower. And because I was never allowed to be a wallflower, I kept on eating the wrong things and accumulating weight."

Compared with her less durable competitors in show business, Kate literally is great. In height she tops most women: five feet, 10 inches. In weight she exceeds most men: 220 pounds. In stamina, enthusiasm and personal appeal, she outranks them all.

TO explain why she's been a top-ranking star for 25 years, you have only to ask her.

"I love people," Kate says, voice booming like a hearty thunderbolt. "I think somehow that shows on me."

She divides her time between Lake Placid, New York, where she has a motor boat and a storeroom full of antiques, and an apartment on lower Park Avenue in New York City. She lives with her mother, having "never had time" to get married.

But maybe, she thinks, she will find some time now for diversions.

Who knows? I guess all women in their life would like to get married. There have been opportunities in my younger life, but I was too young then and naturally I turned them down. Then I got so busy."

"I have never thought it fair," she says, "for a woman to try to conduct a career and a marriage too. I know there are dozens of examples of women who've done it, but as far as I'm concerned—it's one or the other."

Manager Collins grunted good-naturedly from a nearby chair.

Kate sat up straight, grinned, and pointed a finger at him. "Remember when you took me on, what you said? You said 'Now don't just walk out and get married if you decide to. I got to okay the guy.' Isn't that right?"

Collins shrugged. "Still goes," he said.

A sentimental woman, Kate is still mourning her dog, Freckles, her companion for 15 years until he died recently. She loves gardenias and motor boating and dancing and new dresses and, most of all, people.

"You see," she says, "I'm just very ordinary."

Perhaps that is the key to the whole wondrous tale.

Woman's Changed Attitude

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

DISCARDING one partner for the benefit of another prospect is always a risky enterprise. Many a woman has divorced her husband with the expectation of marrying a smooth-talking man, only to find after she had destroyed her own home that the other fellow hadn't the slightest intention of going ahead. Mr. W.'s situation is the opposite. Let him tell the story:

"For more than a year I have been very much in love with a young woman who was unhappy in her marriage. She had three children and said her husband was not a fit father for them. He was abusive to them and to her, sometimes unfaithful, and did not appear to appreciate his wife at all. He contested the divorce, but she got it, and was freed from him about 90 days ago. Prior to that, it had been understood between her and me, that we would marry, and she seemed to be completely wrapped up in me.

"But Dr. Popenoe, from the very day that she got her divorce, she became completely indifferent toward me. From being very close together, we are now apart as far as the north and south poles. I was the man around whom she was building all her plans for the future, and now I can't even see her. It is an actual fact that I've only seen her once since the divorce and that was six weeks ago when I gave her back her picture, in reply to a letter asking for it. I'm friends with her family and the social circle around her, and can't imagine what has happened. Does divorce sometimes produce a change like that?"

DIVORCE PRODUCES all kinds of changes, Mr. W. It is extremely common that a woman builds up a great deal of emotional drive to carry her through the divorce and has it collapse like a punctured balloon when she gets her papers. Things look a little different then. The world does not seem to be quite as promising as she had expected.

I know nothing about the circumstances, so can't guess whether you figured in the divorce case and whether she was disgusted with the publicity. If you did not, then it may be that her feeling is largely one of guilt over breaking up her home and depriving the children of their father. Maybe on second thought, she decides that you won't be any better than the first one. Whatever the explanation may be, it looks as if you had not made a good investment, if you put up some of the money for her divorce, as is often the case.

I think any of your friends who are neutral in the matter will give you the same advice that I do, Mr. W. Scratch this woman off the list and start over again. Next time pick out a woman to marry you who isn't already married to someone else.

Answers to Questions.

Q. DAUGHTER in high school; I have a second husband; he wants daughter to adopt his name and she herself would like to change her family name to his. I object—don't I have a right to?

A. It might protect her from questioning if she bore the name of her step-father; and if she admires him and he means a great deal to her, she might well make the change. In a few more years, she'll be changing her name again, when she marries.

Q. You claim most divorces are sought by women, Dr. Popenoe. That's because husband threatens, browbeats, and blackmails her until she does so.

A. I've known such cases, but they are the exception. Surveys show that two-thirds of women first suggested the divorce and were more anxious for it than their husbands were.

Q. If you see children of a friend doing something serious—say stealing—should you tell their parents? They might hate you for telling.

A. You'll be clever if you can avoid telling them, but deal successfully with the erring children or with some third party who can solve the problem satisfactorily for all concerned.

Q. HOW CAN WE discourage our 13-year-old daughter from dating and yet let her have a good time?

A. Encourage group dates, parties at home, church affairs, school dances, and the like, so she will be ready to go on dates within another year.

JULIE ANDREWS, who is merely wonderful in "My Fair Lady," with Rex Harrison, has been asked to play the Mary Martin role in "South Pacific" when it is made into a movie. It's now a toss-up between Rossano Brazzi and Cesar Sieppi for the Ezio Pinza role. I haven't enjoyed any musical as much as "My Fair Lady" since I swooned over "South Pacific." . . . The biggest surprise in New York — Connie Bennett in dungarees and sneakers singing "Dungaree Doll" at the Pierre Hotel. . . . (FIRST OF A SERIES)

LEXINGTON, Miss.

THE town is quiet. Very quiet. Standing under an awning, you can hear the hiss of rain and watch it char the big bare oaks. It makes little starry splashes on the white dome of Holmes County Courthouse. It spanks a horse which lowers his head and pulls a farm wagon around the perimeter of the square and down a short hill toward Route 17. It picks up the mud in front of the old one-story shops and boils down the gutter as brown as cocoa.

Negroes, lounging in doorways, watch you slam the door of your car and they know that you do not belong here and they know that anyone who does not belong here is not welcome in this little place of knotted hatred and their jaws slack and their eyes swing like sights on a moving target as you walk up the hill. They do not talk. They watch. You have a feeling that you are on a movie set called High Noon.

You walk up toward a building marked "Est. 1837" and you turn in a double door and, without looking back, you can feel the distorted faces behind the rainy windows across the street. A short, intelligent looking man stares at you and you turn right and go into a small office. This is the Lexington Advertiser and Durant News, circulation 2600 once a week. Behind the desk sits what is left of a fearless press.

THE editor has brown wavy hair, china blue eyes which can ream a pine board at 20 paces, a big, full-figured woman who has hit hard in the fight for racial justice, and who has been hit hard in turn. This is Hazel Brannen Smith, who at 41, is beginning to wonder if it isn't better to stop weeping in public every time a Negro is beaten or shot, and in that way protect her stake in the community: Two newspapers, a Cadillac at the curb, a picture-window home in the hills, two Irish setters that love everybody and are color blind.

"Oh, no," Mrs. Smith says, holding up both hands. "I'm not talking any more. I'm done finished talking." She points to the short man in the doorway. "My husband was superintendent of the hospital. They fired him. They boycotted my papers. The advertising fell down to nothing. We had to go west until things quieted down here." She speaks a sweet Mississippi drawl. "You know what, mister? I don't even know whether we can stay here."

You know what? She will not sell those two little papers. They are the only newspapers in Holmes county and they give Mrs. Smith a loud voice in civic affairs. This country is the deepest of the Deep South and the people grind their teeth when they read some of her editorials, but they read them or read nothing.

Holmes county statistics make you hold the long breath: whites, 9600; Negroes, 26,000. The white Citizens Council looks at these numbers in fright, and some think Mrs. Smith is partial to the Negroes. In this they are in error. Mrs. Smith will fight for anyone who has been wronged. The color doesn't matter. The church doesn't matter. The politics are of no consequence. Mrs. Smith has principles, and a congenital inability to keep her typewriter shut.

If her interests are centered on the uplifting of the Negro, she shows it in strange ways. She is opposed to school desegregation. Negro children, she says bluntly, should have their own schools.

"Put them together in one school," she says with a mark-my-words index finger, "and it is going to be bad for the Negro children and the white children. Can't you understand that the Negro children are not ready for this? Can't you understand it? They hate school. They have no culture at home, no encouragement.

"A Negro boy in the seventh grade is struggling with work that a white boy in the fourth grade has mastered. Forget color for a moment. Is it right for two-thirds of a class to hold back one-third? Well, that's what is going to happen. It's just so plain. In this country you'll have two-thirds Negroes in the class and one-third whites."

She caresses the typewriter with lacquered fingers. "I'm finished talking. Go talk to the Negro fathers and mothers. Ask them if they want their children to go to white schools. Just ask. And if you find any, come back and tell me."

You say thanks and you walk out. "Come back at five, hear?" she says. "We'll go up to my place. Got to find something in a dry state like Mississippi."

THE Welcome Inn is a little fly-specked beanery. It faces the courthouse and it is for whites only. You shake the rain from your hat and the faces in the Welcome Inn freeze in varying stages of mobility. Conversation dies as though someone had lifted the needle from the record. You sit at a little white table and you have a hamburger or a bowl of chili or some cold ham. You order a cup of tea and you look up. Back in the kitchen, a Negro girl in a too-tight sweater stares at you from a square window. The men customers—four of them—select toothpicks on their way out. The word is getting around that a couple of Northerners are in town.

The statistics in the notebook tell you nothing about tension. Except that Americans are tough on minority peoples. Not long ago, the plains teemed with Indians. Now there are 343,000 of them and 168,000,000 of us. The slums used to kill off the city Negroes with a silent pistol—tuberculosis. Now they are getting better housing and the antibiotics keep them alive as well as the white men. So the Negro numbers 16,250,000 in 1956. He's now 9 per cent of our population.

There are more Negroes in the South than in the North. About two to one. To take a look at the extremes, there are 1,000,000 Negroes in Alabama and fewer than 500 in Vermont. In South Carolina, there are 900,000 this year and, in North Dakota, 275. In Texas the count is about 1,000,000 and, in Montana, 1,000. Here in Mississippi there 1,100,000 Negroes and 1,300,000 whites.

The problem has many faces. Of the 10,500,000 in the South, 3,360,000 are boys and girls of school age. The Supreme Court of the United States says that these children—a little less than the total population of Chicago—must be integrated with white children in white schools within a reasonable time.

What is a reasonable time? The problem required 200 years of slavery and abuse to flower. How long to cure it? Five years? More than that, because the white South is dragging its feet. Ten? Maybe. But the guess down here is 15 for full integration.

The first example of desegregation that this reporter knows of occured in 1859 or thereabouts. It was practiced by the master of the Custis Mansion at Arlington, Virginia. There, General Robert E. Lee set a ground floor room aside for "tutoring." In that room, his children learned their reading, writing and arithmetic, and so too did the children of the slaves.

NOW the great-grandsons of the white masters are caught in a dark riptide, and the great-grandsons of the slaves have learned to add and they find that they number 25 per cent of the population of the South. Twenty-five per cent of anything represents a strong balance of power. The white man gets on his knees and says: "Whatever you do, keep them from voting." In many states, the Negro does not vote because of intimidation. It's becoming harder to intimidate him. When he gets the vote (which is bound to follow desegregation in the 100-year climb toward full freedom) the white politician will truckle to the voting strength of the Negro. And, when that happens, it may be the white man who will begin to leave the South.

AT 5 p.m. the rain had stopped and I sat before the snap and sparkle and hickory smell of the Smith fireplace. The Irish setters, both wet, were careful to set only on the scatter rugs, not on the cold stone floor. Hazel Smith sat with crossed legs, swinging one, telling of how much trouble she got into for reporting that a sheriff had shot a Negro boy in the back.

She talked a little about Yazoo City, over a dozen hills to the southwest, where 53 Negro families signed a petition to have their children admitted to white schools. When last heard from, only two of those families still resided in Yazoo City. There are some people here who insist that pressure of one kind or another has forced 400,000 Negroes to leave Mississippi in the last 15 years.

In Holmes county, no one takes a stand for desegregation. One is left with the feeling that God made all people equal, but some a little more equal than others.

Silence is also a weapon in this state. When Negroes feel that they have been treated unjustly, they quit talking. If they work for white men, they do what the white man tells them, but they say nothing.

Whole villages and towns of Negroes became mute. This ticks on, day after day after day, until white men can no longer stand it and they scream: "For God's sake, man! What's eating you!"

It was time to leave the home of Hazel Smith. The fireplace was getting cold. We were talking about the figures given to me by Jackson M. Tubb, State Superintendent of Public Education. Some were surprising. Mississippi controls 2630 school buildings. Of these, 872 are for white students, 1858 are for Negroes. In all, 442,691 students enrolled in these schools; 182,210 attend white elementary schools; 179,937 go to Negro schools. Approximately one of each three white children goes on to high school; one of each six Negroes attends high school.

THE night was clear, I went back to the Welcome Inn to jot down some notes. The tea was lukewarm. An elderly woman asked if I would like some cookies. I shook my head. The front door slammed, I looked up. A fat sheriff came in. He walked to the counter and he was looking at me all the way. He wore a shirt and he carried a loose gun.

He sat down at the counter and turned his back to it and faced me. His hands gripped his knees. I tried not to watch. The door slammed again. I looked up. A thinner officer came in. He carried a blackjack in his back pocket. He sat next to the first man, turned his back to the counter, and leaned his elbows on it. He said nothing to the first man. They sat and looked at me.

I took my time finishing the tea. I dropper a quarter on the white marble table and folded my notes. I walked out and closed the door quietly. The car was angle-parked a block away. The square was deserted. Between the bare branches of the trees, the stars winked wisely.

At the curb, I looked back. The thin one was 100 feet behind me with a flashlight. He was looking in store windows. When I backed out, he turned to watch. It was a 60-mile run back to Jackson, the state capital.

Boring Talk of 'Market'

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP).

I MET an interesting fellow the other day. He wasn't in the stock market.

You hardly run into that kind of person any more. At least not in my circle.

Practically everyone I seem to meet now is "in the market." So is his brother. So is his grandmother.

Baseball used to be the national pastime. Today the stock market is. You play baseball. But nobody admits he plays the market. It's not cricket to use that term. You don't play the market. You are just "in it."

Who really is in the market? Well, I know a mechanic who is. I know several waiters who are. I know several stenographers who are. A woman who used to come and help my wife do sewing is. So is the masseuse my wife visits occasionally when she gets a twinge in her neckbone.

In fact, it is probably easier to name those of your acquaintance who aren't in the market than to list those who are. Wall Street has become the real main street of America to millions.

Now, don't get me wrong." I have nothing against the stock market as an avenue to either security or wealth. I don't regard it a devil's trap for the unwary, nor do I feel that anyone who invests in it is a gambler riding a hand wagon to his own ruin. All I ask is that those who are getting rich in it would just do so quietly.

BUT THEY DON'T. It isn't enough that they own stocks. They insist that you have to get into the market, too. Presumably, they feel that if everyone buys stocks all the stocks will go on up and up—and we'll all be rich together.

What a man did with his money used to be his own secret. Not any more.

"Just what do you do with your money?" strangers murmer to me at cocktail parties.

"Well, some of it I use to light my cigars when I run out of matches," I tell them. "And if I have any left over I put it into United States bonds."

You'd think I was a Communist conspirator trying to undermine the American way of life.

"United States bonds!" they yelp. "Don't you know that at the end of 10 years you'll probably get less out of them, in terms of real money value, than you put into them?"

"Maybe," I admit. "But somebody has to keep poor Old Uncle Sam from going over the hill to the poorhouse. If you won't do it, I'll have to."

This only seems to infuriate them.

The biggest objection I have to the stock market is not that I don't know how to get rich in it (if I did, I would) but that it has done more to ruin the art of conversation than anything since television. The shop talk of the stock market, once limited to stock brokers and a limited class of customers, now is the shop talk of everyone from bricklayer to banker.

I DON'T UNDERSTAND the terms. The care and feeding of the bulls and bears is of limited interest to me. I'm not sure of the difference between a long-term capital gain, and an offtackle smash with the fullback carrying the ball. To me a "blue chip" is still something I toss into the poker pot only when I'm holding four queens.

You can't get away from the stock market. If you're reading the sports page in the bus, the guy reading over your shoulder asks, "Would you mind turning to the business section? I want to see how Amalgamated Tiddlywinks is doing."

You go to a party and say, "It looks like rain tomorrow," and a bystander breaks in and inquires anxiously, "How do you think that will affect Coagulated Copper, Ltd.?"

Coming home recently after an evening of such conversation, I told my wife, "Wasn't it boring? I'm glad I don't own a share of stock."

"What makes you think you don't, Rover?" replied Frances, who handles the family budget. Then she retreated into silence.

What I want to know is, can it be possible to be in the stock market—and not even know it?

Deluxe Performances

By Thomas B. Sherman

WHAT may be called a "de luxe" performance of a symphony, a concerto or a sonata is not a matter of everyday occurrence but though extraordinary it is by no means the ideal communication between the artist and the listener. The performance I have in mind is not merely a demonstration of technical mastery. To be truly "de luxe" it must have richness of sound, elegance of style and show, at the least, a considerable artistic cultivation. If its is also a serious and moving disclosure of the thought, feeling and design of the music then it is not what I would call "de luxe." This term is applied when the apparatus—the instrument and the personality of the performer—are not only impressive but more impressive than the composition.

The recorded performance by David Oistrakh and the Philadelphia Orchestra of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto and the Mozart Violin Concerto No. 4 should be so described, in my opinion. (Columbia One 12-inch LP.) Oistrakh and associates present the music without distortion and with a high finish. The sound is wonderful but the effect is something like that of displaying a spring flower on a velvet cushion. To speak less figuratively the opulent texture and the general slickness of delivery are not favorable to the delicate and decidely un-monumental graces of the concerto.

Similarly Jascha Heifetz uses the Mozart Sonatas for Violin and Piano, Numbers 10 and 15, both in B Flat, to give a typical Heifetz performance. (RCA-Victor, One 12-inch LP.) Though the compositions are written for violin and piano, the pianist—Brooks Smith—is relegated to a secondary role. His playing, as it happens, is more sensitive than that of the top man.

VOCAL: The Danish tenor, Aksel Schiott, who is now a resident of the United States, has recorded a program of oratorio and operatic arias which are thoroughly well suited to his type of voice. He is a lyric tenor and with plenty of fleility; and though his timbre is more that of a high baritone than a true lyric tenor he sings with an appropriate warmth and tenderness in such lyric arias as "Della sua pace" and "Il Mio Tesoro," from Mozart's "Don Giovanni." The preservation of fluent line and the easy execution of bravura passages are prime considerations in these arias but they also must express the character of Don Ottavio—a faithful and high-minded swain but not exactly a man of action. For this purpose subtleties of stress must be handled with great care. Mr. Schiott does it.

The program also includes arias from Handel's "Messiah" Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" and "Ich will bei meinem Jesu wachen" from Bach's St. Matthew Passion.

ORCHESTRAL: Sir Thomas Beecham's relaxed performances of Schubert's smaller symphonies are always conducive to a persuaive disclosure of innocent charm. The performance of the Symphony No. 6 in C Major is no exception; but the work itself seems rather uneventful compared to the Symphonies No. 5, No. 4 and No. 2 which are also small-scaled, unpretentions but delightfully exuberant. Sir Thomas is conducting the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. The reverse side of the record offers Grieg's "In Autumn" overture and the same composer's "Old Norwegian Romance With Variations." (Angel, one 12-inch LP.)

The Liszt "Faust Symphony," an unrestrained piece of romanticism and—like all of Liszt's music—a little windy at times, is played with a high degree of convincing eloquence by the Paris Conservatory Orchestra under the direction of Ataulfo Argenta. Included in the package is an equally good performances of Liszt's Les Preludes" with Argenta conducting L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande. (London, two 12-inch LPs.)

CHAMBER ORCHESTRA: The spice of novelty as well as the authoritative address of a masterly composer is found in the Vivaldi Concerto for Orchestra Opus 64, No. 6, as played by the Scarlatti Orchestra of Naples. The work is scored for strings, two flutes, two theorbos, two mandolins and salmo. The theorbos—now obsolete—were big lutes and they are replaced in this performance by harps. The salmo, a rather coarse baritone oboe, is represented by the hecklephone, a modern instrument but also in the double-reed family. The unusual colors of these instruments—unusual for now as well as the eighteenth century—are used with complete assurance in a work that rivals the Brandenburg concerti of Bach in strong formulation, rhythmic vigor and melodic inventiveness. Thomas Schippers, the young American conductor, directs this fine, lustrous chamber orchestra in this and other performances. For the record also contains interesting works by Francesco Durante and a rousing overture by Antonio Salieri. (Angel, One 12-inch LP.)

Muny Opera Names Nine Male Stars

NINE male stars were announced yesterday for this summer's Municipal Opera productions which will open June 7 with a revival of Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun."

They are:

WALTER CASSEL, baritone of the New York City Opera, who will be a soloist in "An Evening of Great Music," excerpts from grand operas, for the week starting Aug. 6. Cassel has been a principal on the Forest Park stage in 1940, 1949, 1951, 1952 and 1953.

GEORGE GAYNES, baritone, who will play Bumerli in "The Chocolate Soldier," the week of July 23, and Johann Strauss Sr. in "The Great Waltz" the week of July 9. An opera and Broadway singer, he made his Muny Opera debut last season in "The Merry Widow," and "Wonderful Town."

JIM HAWTHORNE, tenor, who will play Prince Karl Franz in "The Student Prince," the week of June 25. He has twice played De Jolidan in "The Merry Widow" at Muny Opera.

THOMAS HAYWARD, Metropolitan Opera tenor, who will be a soloist in "An Evening of Great Music." He first appeared at Muny Opera in 1931 in "The Bohemian Girl," and has twice been soloist in the Rodgers and Hammerstein Music Festival.

NORWOOD SMITH, baritone, who will play Hajj in "Kismet" the two weeks beginning Aug. 20. He played Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls" in Forest Park last year, and did 690 performances of the show on Broadway.

EDWIN STEFFE, baritone, who will play Ben Rumson in "Paint Your Wagon" the week of June 18. Steffe is the opera's best known personality. He has sung there every season since 1946, with the exception of 1954, appearing in 73 productions, and being one of the stock stalwarts of the company. He also will play Dr. Engle in "The Student Prince."

MARK DAWSON, who will play Frank Butler in "Annie Get Your Gun" and Bilge Smith in "Hit the Deck" the week of July 2. He has appeared in "High Button Shoes" and "Sweethearts" on Broadway.

THEODOR UPPMAN, who will play Johann Strauss Jr. in "The Great Waltz." A baritone, Uppman made his debut with the Met in 1953, and has sung frequently with the New York City Opera and symphonies.

ROBERT WRIGHT, who will play Fred Graham in "Kiss Me, Kate."

Junior 'Y' Players

The Junior "Y" Players will present "Nine Girls," a murder comedy-melodrama by Wilfred H. Pettit, at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Brown Hall in the Downtown Y.M.C.A., 1528 Locust street. The cast includes Frances Novotny, Winona Barwig, Vickie Bauer, Jacqueline Turnage, Rita Brady, Susan Brady, Kathy Mulherin Patricia Gorodon.

VALERIE FRENCH, BRITISH BEAUTY, AND GLENN FORD IN "JUBAL," WESTERN DRAMA, NEXT AT LOEW'S STATE.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

GOODBYE, MY LADY—A disarmingly simple, touching and utterly charming film about a boy in the Mississippi backwoods who has to give up a beloved hunting dog and thereby becomes a man. Told warmly, with a delicate restraint by Director William A. Wellman from James Street's novel, it is a perfect miniature, with fine performances by Brandon De Wilde, Walter Brennan and Phil Harris. PAGEANT.

THE HARDER THEY FALL—A tough, coldly angry, disgusted and graphic account of how some vultures who make prize-fighting a racket exploit a dumb Argentine giant by ballyhoo and fixed fights. Philip Yordan's screenplay from Budd Schulberg's novel, and Mark Robson's direction have resulted in a strikingly realistic picture. Rod Steiger plays the greedy, ruthless racketeer with fanatical force. Humphrey Bogart is overshadowed as the press agent who finally sickens of the fraud. LOEW'S STATE.

UMBERTO D.—I don't think this study of a lonely old man at the end of his rope by Director Vittorio De Sica is the masterpiece it has been touted as, but it is an affecting, compassionate, honest and subtly evocative piece. The old man is wonderfully played by Carlo Battisti, a university professor who had never acted before. SHADY OAK.

THE MAVERICK QUEEN—A Western as dull and trite as they come about the saloon queen who is head of a bandit gang and who falls in love with the Pinkerton undercover man. Barbara Stanwyck should be ashamed for her wooden performance. FOX.

THE MAN IN THE GRAY FLANNEL SUIT—Another examination of honesty vs. hypocrisy in business, this time the broadcasting business. Gregory Peck gets a lesson from wife Jennifer Jones, but she finds a similar candid approach in their personal life too bitter to swallow. Strong, often intensely dramatic, but too prolix. With Fredric March, Lee J. Cobb. ST. LOUIS.

GUYS AND DOLLS—Return of the exuberant, richly comic Goldwyn production of the hit stage musical, which captures the Damon Runyon spirit of the Broadway fable. Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Vivian Blaine are all swell. Strangely, Frank Sinatra is disappointing. Frank Loesser's delightful songs. MISSOURI.

SINS OF THE BORGIAS—A French-Italian production with some beautiful use of Technicolor and arresting composition, but spoiled by obvious box office sensationalism in blatant sex, gore and cruelty, and by inept dubbing in of English dialogue. RICHMOND.

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD—The three-eyed Cinerama camera is used unimaginatively in a desultory travelogue that follows well-beaten path. AMBASSADOR.

Art and Artists

Freud and Modern Artists

By William K. Wyant Jr.

THE 100th birthday anniversary of Sigmund Freud, great Viennese explorer of the subcosiencious mind, falls today. The occasion was noted in the current Saturday Review, where James Thrall Soby writes of the tremendous influence Freud's penetration of the darker recesses has had on twentieth century artists.

It is fairly safe to say that no thinker has had a more decisive effect on trends of modern art than Freud, and none has done more to explain why certain pictures are painted. It is also safe to add that the Freudian influence is responsible, in large measure, for manifestations in modern art that irk and alienate large segments of the general public.

Despite all the brilliant stuff that has been written by Andre Malraux and others on the psychology of art, relating the Classics and the Old Masters to what is being put on canvas today, there are still a lot of people who do not understand what the shouting is about. They think a painting should look like something recognizable, and art as an outpouring of the subconscious leaves them cold.

ON THE OTHER HAND, people who are hep to modern art and like it, and understand what the artists are trying to do, have trouble concealing their disgust when a citizen contends that Norman Rockwell, the Saturday Evening Post cover artist, is better than Picasso because he depicts pleasing, highly moral subject-matter in an intelligible way.

Although no amount of persuasion will bring a real, dyed-in-the-wool Philistine and the connoisseur together, there is no reason the same person cannot like both Rockwell and Picasso. Many do. Those seriously interested in art's development recognize that Picasso and his like are grappling with creative impulses that transcend such considerations as making a living, and amusing or edifying the public. They are not, generally speaking, trying to please anybody but themselves.

What moves an artist to crystallize a fantasy on canvas or in stone, and, once moved, why does he paint or sculp the way he does? Freud and his disciples have thrown light on these immensely complex questions while at the same time inspiring, with their explanations and theories, some of the extremes in artistic output to which some laymen most violently object.

Discussing such matters in a relaxed mood last week, a Washington University School of Medicine psychiatrist said that while nobody pretends to know precisely what goes on in the human mind, some artistic motivations fall readily into patterns familiar to students of psychiatry and psychology.

THE PSYCHIATRIST pulled from a shelf Jolan Jacobi's book on Carl G. Jung, Swiss psychologist who studied under Freud. Just as Freud sired psychoanalysis, Jung worked out the now familiar classification of man into introvert and extrovert types. He holds that rational processes tend to be dominant in some people, irrational in others, and that the overemphasis of one side of a person's nature—say, the intellectual — tends to set up tensions.

Thus, Jung says, some artists may produce work that expresses the subverted side of their outward natures. The extrovert may produce a painting that looks inward, while the introvert may express his opposite. In other cases, the artist may express what is dominant in his own outward personality, as a sort of "sublimation" or idealized self-portrait.

"Jung believes that the production of extroverted character originates from the artistic recreation of experiences in the outer world," Jacobi writes, "while the introverted production 'comes to pass' through the artist being overpowered by the inner; which flow laden with meaning into his pen or brush."

LEAVING JUNG, the Washington University psychiatrist ticked off a few of the hidden factors that may enter into artistic creation. As everyone knows, guilt can be borne more easily if the perpetrator knows somebody else has done, or would do, the same thing.

"The relieving function of sharing the guilt is one of the basic factors in the psychology of art," a basic text says. "The artist relieves his guilt feeling by inducing the audience to participate in his deed in fantasy, and the spectator relieves his guilt feeling by becoming aware that the artist dares to express forbidden impulses."

Equally familiar is what psychiatrists call a counterphobic reaction, in which the artist seeks to shake off anxiety by painting or drawing what he fears. If an artist were afraid of fire, for example, he might be given to painting volcanoes.

Since Freud, the literature on the psychology of art has filled volumes. It is unnecessary to say that observation about human behavior apply not merely to modern art and artists. If valid, they apply to all artists—including Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Churchill—and to people generally.

Harry Belafonte Musical Tonight At Opera House

HARRY BELAFONTE, Negro folk singer, will bring his new musical revue, "Sing, Man, Sing," to Kiel Auditorium Opera House at 8:30 o'clock tonight for one performance. The show will be under the local auspices of Entertainment Enterprises.

The revue, on a pre-Broadway tryout run, has a company of 45, including singers Margaret Tynes and Michael Evans, dancers Mary Hinkson and Alvin Ailey, a chorus called "The Voice of Will Lorin," and guitarist Millard Thomas. Its story line is that of man's search for happiness through the ages.

MARGARET TYNES

Belafonte will be heard in 15 of the 18 musical numbers. Most of them were written by Belafonte and Jay Richard Kennedy, movie writer, who wrote and produced the show. The others are familiar calypsos, work songs, spirituals and love ballads. Belafonte last appeared at the American as a star of "Three for Tonight" in 1954.

'Twelfth Night' at Washington University

Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night," will be presented by Thyrsus, Washington University student dramatic organization, as the final production of the season in Brown Hall auditorium on the campus at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. next Sunday.

Nelson Magill is directing. The cast will include Patricia Whitley as Viola, Nancy Groves as Olivia, Frank Menendez as Orsino, David Allan Sallade as Sir Toby Belch, Dale Wooley as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Julius Schweich as Malvolio, and Ray Lieber as Feste.

Christian Brothers College Concert

The annual spring concert of the Christian Brothers College high school band and chorus will be presented at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Miss Betty Ann Neuf, senior at Fontbonne College, will be featured soloist.

Miss Neuf, a soprano, will sing "Granada" and "Vienna, City of My Dreams." The 60-piece band, directed by O. H. Riessen, will play "Mannin Veen," "March of the Steelmen" and "Kiddie Ballet." Jules Ter Veen will direct the 50-member chorus in presenting "The Happy Wanderer" and "Sixteen Tons."

Bill Haley's 'Rock 'N Roll' Show Here Saturday

"THE BIGGEST ROCK 'N ROLL SHOW OF '56," is the rather cumbersome title of a revue based on the current jazz craze, with its foremost exponent, Bill Haley and His Comets, which will come come to the Kiel Auditorium Opera House Saturday for two performances, at 8 and 11 p.m.

Others in the show will be the Platters, Clyde McPhatter, LaVern Baker, Big Joe Turner, the Teenagers, the Teen Queens, Bo Diddley, the Drifters, the Flamingos, the Colts, and Red Prysock and his Rock 'n Roll Orchestra.

BILL HALEY

Haley is currently starred in "Rock Around the Clock," a movie at the Orpheum. The number of the same name, played by his combo, was the theme music of the movie, "The Blackboard Jungle." Other numbers Haley and other entertainers in the show made famous on records are "See You Later, Alligator," "The Great Pretender," "Why Do Fools Fall in Love?," "Seven Days," "Eddie My Love," and "Only You," the last a million-record release by the Platters.

Broadway Notes

NEW YORK, May 5—Broadway date book: The muse of comedy suffered one of her most disconsolate moments of the Broadway season when "Goodbye Again," from 1932, was revived at the Helen Hayes Theater. Suave Donald Cook won praise from the critics, along with such other able performers as Polly Rowles and Hiram Sherman, but the stale farce itself went back to the warehouse after just seven performances. . . .

Arriving on Thursday is a drama by Leslie Stevens called "The Lovers." It will put up at the Martin Beck Theater, from which "Mister Johnson" departs tonight after 44 performances. . .

Also next week is the "biggest" off-Broadway premiere of the season, the production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh," in uncut four-hour revival at the Circle in the Square Theater in Greenwich Village on Tuesday. . . . A "new interpretation" of Ibsen's "A Doll's House" arrives at the Greenwich Mews Monday. . . .

Looking ahead, Vivian Blaine, singing-dancing star of "Guys and Dolls," has been signed to her first straight dramatic part as the replacement for Shelley Winters in "A Hatful of Rain" starting July 2. . . . Shelley has been signed for a new Broadway play next season. . . . Also putting pen to contract for the next semester is Judy Holliday. She will start in "The Bells Are Ringing," a musical comedy sponsored by the Theater Guild.

This Week in Radio

H-Bomb Explosion On All Networks

A BROADCAST from Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific, where — weather and other factors permitting — an American H-bomb is to be exploded Tuesday morning (12 noon tomorrow, St. Louis time), will be carried by all radio networks. ABC will be in charge of the "pooled" broadcast, with White House correspondent Bryson Rash as the narrator. Plans call for the broadcast to start at noon with a description of the blast, followed by post-explosion interviews with those at the scene. Stations KSD, KMOX and KXOK plan to carry the broadcast at the noon explosion time, and KWK will carry it by delayed broadcast at 10:30 p.m.

IRVING BERLIN . . . TO BE HONORED ON MUSIC PROGRAM ON KMOX AT 6:30 TONIGHT.

Barry Sullivan and Joan Banks will be starred in "Second Chance," the "Family Theater" drama on KWK at 9:30 tonight. The play is about a diamond broker who finally finds vindication after being sent to prison as a "fall guy" in a $200,000 theft.

Grandchildren of President Eisenhower will be interviewed on NBC's "Monitor" today, at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

A talk by John Foster Dulles before the B'nai B'rith convention in Washington will be broadcast by KSD at 9 p.m. Tuesday and by KWK at 10:30 p.m.

A talk by Chester H. Lang, former General Electric Company executive vice president, before the Junior Achievement banquet Thursday will be broadcast by KWK at 10:30 p.m. Thursday.

A preview discussion of Armed Forces Week activities will be presented on KWK at 12:05 p.m. today. Speakers will be Lt. Col. Arvid E. Dahlberg, Lt. Col. Walter H. Miescher, and Naval Capt. Clayton L. Miller.

Irving Berlin Honored

Song writer Irving Berlin, who will celebrate his sixty-eighth birthday on May 11, will be a guest on a program honoring him and his music on "What's New in Music" on KMOX at 6:30 this evening. Singers Jill Corey and Ray Middleton will take part in the all-Berlin program.

A transcribed talk by Dr. Edward T. Blomquist, medical director of the tuberculosis program for the United States Public Health Service, will be heard on KSD at 9:30 p.m. tomorrow. Dr. Blomquist will address the annual meeting of the St. Louis Tuberculosis and Health Society here earlier in the day.

"The Pale Horseman," presented in co-operation with the New York State Medical Society, will be heard on KSD at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Potatoes Anna

Ingredients: One to one and one-fourth pounds medium or large-sized potatoes, one-fourth cup butter, salt, pepper, paprika.

Method: Peel potatoes and slice crosswise into rounds about one-eighth inch thick. Spread a little of the butter over bottom and sides of glass pie plate (eight and one-half inches). Arrange a layer of potato slices at bottom of pan; sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper; dot with butter; continue layers. Sprinkle top layer with paprika. Tightly cover pie plate with aluminum foil. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 45 minutes. Remove foil. With a teaspoon, take up melted butter from bottom of pie plate and dribble over top layers of potatoes. Bake 15 minutes longer, uncovered. Serve at once. Makes four small servings.

Striking Fabric

Black eyelet-embroidered linen is one of the most striking fabrics available for summer dresses. The fabric is made in Ireland and is especially attractive for slim, sheath dresses. The increased interest in black brings a demand for unusual and handsome materials that have a decorative quality.

Mix orange juice and honey together; serve over fresh grapefruit sections (membrane-free) and sliced bananas.

Lace Ruffles

Narrow lace ruffles trim a sailor hat and scarf that are made of white organdy. The ruffles are applied in such profusion that they cover most of the surface. A similar idea is used on organdy collar and cuffs that trim a black cotton voile dress made in the shirtwaist manner.

Patent Leather Bags

Black patent leather bags in many shapes and sizes are on display in the stores. The "tote" bag continues to be a popular type and often is lined with novelty linen or printed silk. Modifications of the boxy bag are featured for use with silk suits and other costumes of a dressy style.

Cooking Liver

For best flavor, cook liver shortly after you buy it.

For Variety, Try Danish Cold Table

By Edith M. Barber

IT IS an interesting food experience to lunch or dine at a Danish "koldt bord" or cold table as literally translated. Of course your host or hostess should be a Dane if you are to do justice to the great variety of savories with which the table is spread.

Thin slices of dark or sweet rye bread and plenty of sweet butter will be on hand as each person at the table makes his own open-faced sandwiches. These are always open and each slice of bread is topped with only one item.

According to Peter Heering, who presided at a recent luncheon, even a fresh plate must be used when meats succeed any type of fish, of which sardines, anchovies, mussels, shrimp and salmon are specialtes. Fresh or pickled cucumbers and many different vegetable salads are good accompaniments for both meat and fish. Before either is piled on the bread slices, the latter must be lavishly buttered. Beer and aquavit are the chosen beverages with these appetizing foods, of which a whole meal can easily be made.

A second course may be offered with ham, veal, pork or meat balls or possibly roast duck. With the veal a creamy sauce with perhaps herb vinegar or lemon juice as a seasoning may be chosen. If you have indulged heartily in the first course you may have little appetite left for this, good as it may be.

At dessert time a special variation of what we call cherry jubilee or mixed fruit flavored with the Danish national liqueur, Cherry Heering, will be the specialty. The Danes are proud of the fine cherries that are produced in their country.

HAM DANISH STYLE: Saute enough thinly sliced ham before serving until lightly browned on both sides. Remove from skillet. To fat remaining in pan add three tablespoons currant jelly, one tablespoon prepared mustard and one tablespoon grated onion. Stir over moderate heat until well blended. Pour over hot ham.

DANISH FRUIT DESSERT: In your prettiest cut-glass bowl, mix berries and chopped fruits (whatever fresh fruits are in season). Add toasted chopped almonds, a wineglass of Cherry Heering and chill well. Bring the bowl to the table at dessert time, so your guests may admire its festive beauty. Serve the fruit salad with whipped cream or else spoon it over ice cream.

Uninhibited Oscar

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, May 5.

IT'S been a long time since anyone has seen Oscar Levant on network television and maybe it'll be forever before you see him at all. However, the impudent and frequently outrageous star of "Information, Please" has been delighting and outraging a lot of Hollywood folks on a local show out there called "Words About Music" which is broadcast on KNX, the CBS station there.

This is a panel show with Frank Del Vol as moderator, Elsa Lancaster and Levant as permanent panelists, and a couple of local celebrities each week as visiting firemen. Theoretically—but just theoretically—the panel is supposed to discuss old and new songs by composers, who visit the show each week. This gives a pretty girl named Millie Corey a chance to sing some pretty good songs and occasionally some pretty bad ones which makes up the bulk of the show.

BUT THE CHIEF INTEREST to Hollywood folks is: What is Levant going to say next? It is no secret—certainly Levant has never been at all reticent about it—that Oscar is a psychiatric problem of Herculean proportions, a sort of classic case of self-inflicted misery which psychiatrists may profitably study for years to come.

On the very first of the "Words About Music" shows, De Vol asked Levant how come he hadn't been seen on TV for so long. "I've been sick and in retirement," said Oscar. "The retirement took."

"What do you think of this show?"

"If it's bad enough," retorted Oscar, "NBC will probably grab it and put it opposite Ed Sullivan."

"How do you feel about being on it?"

"I feel utterly degraded."

"Where have you been all these years?" asked De Vol.

"I've been escaping reality."

"Now, come on Oscar," said De Vol. "No one can escape reality."

"I can. I have character. I also have a drugstore."

WELL, that's a fair sample of Levant's running stream of comment. It is to say the least, uninhibited—not only about himself but about everyone else.

Here are a few of his other comments:

Regarding Bing Crosby's "High Tor": "It was a sleepy hollow sort of thing—quite sleepy and very hollow."

OSCAR LEVANT . . . WHAT IS HE GOING TO SAY NEXT?

To Zsa Zsa Gabor: "You have discovered the secret of perpetual middle age."

Concerning Judy Garland: "She's three nervous breakdowns up on me but I'm two suicide attempts up on her. We sit around discussing sanitariums. When I like her, I think she's the greatest singing artist in the world. When I don't like her I think the same thing—but begrudgingly."

Of Paul Coates, columnist and TV reporter: "I was wrong when I said Coates wears a toupee. As he pointed out, that greasy little patch of hair is all his own."

Or: "I was surprised at Ike's indorsement of Nixon as his running mate—but not as surprised as Eisenhower."

SAMMY CAHN was the composer on the first show which gave them an opportunity to play some of his hits—"Tender Trap," "Be My Love" and "Love and Marriage" and also a new song of his called "Kiss and Dream."

Said Levant: "I think that title 'Kiss and Dream' is a psychiatric problem. I have a pill that induces nightmares and reduces blood pressure. Now I have nothing but nightmares: I have no blood pressure left."

The other panelists try to get a word in edgewise now and then. They rarely succeed.

Son Changed After Serving Overseas

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

MY son recently returned from military service overseas. Since then he has been almost like a stranger. He became engaged to a fine girl before entering the service. He stopped writing to her some time ago and after coming home broke off the engagement without a word of warning. His abrupt action hurt her terribly. He has picked up some strange ideas and prejudices. He said he broke the engagement because he can no longer stand "bossy" American women, and claims that girls overseas are more to his liking. Now he says he hates his job, that he doesn't want to kill himself "jumping around like American business men do." He wants to save enough money to return overseas. He has hurt us all terribly. He even told me I was a typical bossy wife while my husband was alive. For some reason, he is a very bitter young man. Do you think I should be silent and let him work things out for himself, or should we try to reason with him and try to find the cause of this strange new attitude.

WORRIED MOTHER.

It's hard to prescribe a cure for a bitter, warped outlook, and if it continues you would be wise to seek professional help, possibly through your own church or through the Pastoral Counseling Service of the Metropolitan Church Federation where specialized help is available. However, my inclination would be to let him try to work it out alone because I believe that any attempt on your part to reason with him or to persuade him that he is wrong would only force him back into a shell and make it that much more difficult for him to find his way and save his face after such an immature display of discontent and carping criticism. It is quite possible that as the days go on and he realizes more and more what his own country and his own family offer him, his idea of going across the world will fade. His overseas duty was an adventure to him. He found new customs, new philosophies and, unfortunately, some foolish ideas. I can understand why you would be hurt, especially by his criticism of you personally and his treatment of his fiancee, but I believe you will help him most by making his return to civilian life as happy and peaceful as possible rather than creating rifts which would only strengthen his ideas that the grass is greener on the other side of the fence.

Dear Martha:

● WHAT DO YOU THINK of a husband who always has to say something or have a smile for the women and girls he works with? Is this called for? We were window shopping and two girls even came from across the street to talk to him. He told one she had a beautiful voice, having heard her sing as she works. Don't you think he acts more like a single fellow? I think girls are flattered by his attention.

L. M.

Probably they are, and he may be flattered by their attention to him. I have only contempt for a two-timing husband, but there's a lot of difference between that and being friendly and pleasant to his fellow employes. Be alert to any trouble in your marriage, yes, but don't build up a situation in your own imagination and assume he's interested in someone else because he has a smile and a pleasant word for those around him.

Dear Martha:

● I AM A GIRL 18 YEARS OLD and have been seeing a man who is 59. He is married and still with his wife. I have known him over a year and he tells me that he's suing for a divorce. He has been married about 30 years. He's awfully jealous and we often have arguments over little things. I don't know what to do. If I don't see him I get lonely. He tells me he will marry me as soon as he gets his divorce. So what shall I do, just wait and keep on seeing him or what?

HILDA

Don't fall for that old line, Hilda. He probably has no intention of getting a divorce. It's the same old story and you're just one of the countless women who have walked into a sordid situation in the blithe hope that the man really meant what he said and would leave his wife. But what right have you to try to take him away from her anyway? If he doesn't love his wife and wants to leave her, that must be his problem, not yours. Find someone not old enough to be your grandfather—and single.

Dear Martha:

● I AM ONE OF SIX GIRLS working in an office and we have a problem with one of the others, a woman who has been there for about 20 years and thinks she owns the place. She has no authority but she tries to boss us around and when we do something she doesn't like she goes running to the head man. She acts like a martyr and is always working after the rest of us have gone home and then tells us the next day how tired she is. What can we do about her? She makes the rest of us unhappy, yet we don't want to hurt her feelings.

CONCERNED.

Unfortunately, there are plenty of misfits and martyrs around—men as well as women, incidentally—and they make others miserable wherever they go. Just don't let her complaints about overwork make you unhappy. Give her a little sympathy, since that's what she wants, and go your way. But you don't have to kowtow to her and go out of your way to please her just because she will tell the boss if she doesn't like something. Do your work in such a way that she'll have no complaints on that score, and don't waste any of the office time in talking about her. If the rest of you can bring yourself to be friendly to her, chances are she'll straighten up. She may feel that the younger ones have shut her out of their circle and only in this way can she gain a sense of importance.

Dear Martha:

● I AM 15 and going steady with the most wonderful guy. My problem is this: I can't convince myself that he really does like me as much as he says. I have no reason to disbelieve him but two fellows, at different times, lied to me and I more or less lost my trust in boys.

IN LOVE.

Why waste your time and energy worrying? If he didn't like you he wouldn't be going steady with you. There's a fine line between refusing to fall for insincere flattery and cynically closing your ears to sincere interest on the part of another. A smart girl will laugh off a line but at the same time she can enjoy genuine and worthwhile friendships without making herself miserable with doubts and distrust.

By Sylvia Stiles

ST. LOUISANS are in a festive mood that calls for gala attire. The month of May has started with a crowded social calendar offering an opportunity to wear elegant fashions, usually associated primarily with the winter season. Evening attire is needed especially for the many formal occasions scheduled during the next few weeks.

Fashion-conscious women have been concentrating their shopping on formal evening dresses for the bal masque to be given on the City Art Museum terrace next Friday night. Next on their list are formal dinner dresses to wear to the anniversary dinner of the Missouri Historical Society which will be held on May 24 in the rotunda of the Old Court House. Numerous evening weddings, the summer schedules of dances at the country clubs, and many other "dress-up" events bring the more formal type of apparel into the spotlight.

A tour of the shops indicates that the majority of women prefer the short evening dress to the floor-length one for late spring and summer wear. While some very handsome floor-length ball gowns have been selected for next Friday night's museum fete, the shorter skirts are preferred by the many. Covered shoulders also indicate a significant trend, regardless of the season. Soft drapery and stoles are employed to relieve severity of strapless bodices.

In the choice of a silhouette, individual preference rules this season. Empire modes are numerous, and the Directoire theme seems to be gaining in popularity rather than diminishing. Many of the high-waisted dresses add sashes of velvet or satin ribbon in accord with the fashions of the Directoire era. Flower-printed fabrics contribute to an old-fashioned emphasis while chiffon introduces a Grecian charm to many of the modes.

The vogue of sheer fabrics, apparent in fashions for many occasions, is noted particularly in evening types. The silk sheers, for example, are flattering and pretty. Chiffons and organzas predominate. Both of these fabrics fall into the soft folds and draping of the bodice that shapes the Empire silhouette for evening. This line frequently is underscored by a long, matching or contrasting scarf that trails from the shoulders or sweeps majestically at the back. The 1900 trend also is significant in the sheer materials that are featured in the palest of colors, accented with borders and rosettes of lace on bodices, skirts and along the hemlines.

Lace and embroidery that contribute so much to the beauty of any formal fashions have an important role this spring. Romantic themes are fashionable so an evening dress that is elaborate with a cobwebby film of a lacy texture is certain to be impressive. Chantilly vies with cotton lace. One striking costume by Sylvan Rich is a slim sheath of champagne Chantilly with its own coat of the same lace pattern. Another lace sheath has a frosted effect, the lace appliqued to silk organza. Cotton lace is used for a high-waisted princess-line dress. The lace in a shade of pale blue looks dramatic over a navy blue taffeta foundation.

Evening separates, suitable for dancing and dining, use lace extensively, especially in combination with other materials. One ensemble consists of flaring skirt of cotton lace, strapless bodice of cotton satin, and a very brief bolero of the lace. The lace bolero, as the eyelet embroidered one, is a practical as well as attractive addition to the summer wardrobe as it may be worn with several different dresses.

Dainty floral patterns on organza and sheer cottons contribute to the fragile emphasis of many evening and late-day costumes. One dress suitable for informal evening as well as for garden parties is of a garden printed silk organza. Tiered vertical tucks emphasize the fragile appeal. These tucks are placed in rows below and above the normal waistline. Dress is sleeveless and has a low, round neckline. Swiss embroidered organdy and printed organdy are appropriate materials for dresses that have wide, circular skirts.

Evening wraps are no problem this season as so many of the dresses have their own coats. This ensemble trend applies to the floor-length fashions as well as to skirts in street and ballerina length. One chiffon dress has a sheer coat made of two layers of the chiffon. Another has a wide stole that is ample as a wrap. A silk shantung sheath in an oriental pattern adds a coat slashed at the sides and embroidered in gold threads. Fur stoles and capes continue to be advocated, also, as evening wraps for late spring. One of the newest stoles has strips of the fur on a chiffon foundation.

'Most Happy Fella' a Rich Musical Hit

By Walter F. Kerr

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.

THE appealing little heroine of "Most Happy Fella," which opened at the Imperial Thursday night, has two loves. So does composer-lyricist-librettist Frank Loesser.

Mr. Loesser loves the rich, rolling, exhilarating cadences that can spill out into an auditorium whenever a musical show approaches the freedom and the melodic fury of opera, or at least operetta. And at the same time he refuses to turn his back on the girl who has long since returned his passion, the impish and skipping and crackling straight musical comedy.

In his opulent adaptation of Sidney Howard's effective old play, "They Knew What They Wanted," Mr. Loesser has simply opened his treasure chest and hurled his bountiful prizes in both directions.

The riches are almost beyond counting. In the vein of semi-serious there are sweeping hymns to the rolling California hills, ebullient explosions in honor of "Abbondanza" tender and touching little salutes to the beauty of passing autumn days. More than that. There is a roaring crescendo ("My Heart Is So Full of You") for baritone Robert Weede to sail at the balconies, and it is brilliantly sung. There is an old, plaintive, "Don't Cry," for Art Lund to wrap around the girl he is consoling — and unconsciously preparing to seduce. It is disturbingly right, in the writing and in the performance. And there are aching little comic laments for a wry, red-headed, dusty-throated lass named Susan Johnson.

AND ON THE OTHER SIDE of Mr. Loesser's fever-chart are all those tumbling, rollicking, heel-kicking outbursts that belong to the very best vaudeville. When a male chorus opens up on a shouting cannonade directed at Dallas ("Big D"), when a Dresden-China Jo Sullivan teaches her mail-order husband to observe the social amenities ("Pleased To Make Your Acquaintance"), or when Miss Johnson teams up with a beaming Shorty Long to announce "I Like Everybody," the clatter and the glitter and the irresistible drive of the music-hall are spectacularly honored.

Still, there's a little something wrong with "Most Happy Fella" — maybe more than a little. The evening is finally heavy with its own inventiveness, weighted down with the variety and fulsomeness of a genuinely creative appetite. It's as though Mr. Loesser has written two complete musicals—The Operatta and The Haymaker—on the same simple play and then crammed both into a single structure.

Mr. Loesser's impressive talent is in such a provocative mood that I'd say any conscientious theatergoer ought to acquaint himself with the experiment at the Imperial. Speaking for myself, I keep wishing that Mr. Loesser had written six shows in the six years since "Guys and Dolls" instead of packing the energy of all six into one.

'Wake Up, Darling,' Opens Stage's Silly Season

By Brooks Atkinson

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, May 5

IN strict accordance with the calendar, "Wake Up, Darling," which was acted at the Ethel Barrymore Wednesday evening, has officially opened the silly season. Beginning with a silly idea, it pursues it with implacable resolution straight down through a facetious evening. Imagine "Anniversary Waltz" without the wit, good taste and originality, and there you have "Wake Up, Darling," except that the acting and direction are in a broader key.

According to the biographical notes in the program, Alex Gottlieb, composer of this frolic, "has established himself as one of the leading comedy writers of four media: stage, screen, radio and television." Naturally, one asks one's self which of the media "Wake Up, Darling" represents. It's hard to say on short notice. But it's fair to point out that there is not much theater in it.

It belongs to the bean bag school of script writing. One character tosses a joke to another. The second tosses it to the third. Eventually a joke gets tossed back to the first character, the length of time depending on the number of characters on the stage at any given moment. To tell the truth, there are not enough jokes to go round. But something gets tossed every time. The motion is continuous.

"WAKE UP, DARLING" is triangular. Polly Emerson, who wants to go on the stage, is married to Don Emerson, an advertising writer who writes plays in his spare moments. In time to make a terrific entrance, Polly gets the star part in a musical play written by Deerfield Prescott, who is the repressed type. Deerfield makes passes at Polly. Don takes umbrage. From that moment on, "Wake Up, Darling" is toss-catch-toss-catch until the final curtain. It's like warm-up practice in a ball park.

Although "Wake Up, Darling" has a pleasant setting by Ballou and is also lighted by electricity, the performance is not very sprightly. Ezra Stone's direction is as mechanical as Mr. Gottlieb's writing. As the resentful husband, Barry Nelson acts like a professional. He can move his hands as well as his lips, and give a line a comic flourish. When the bean bag is tossed to him he can catch it lightly and toss it on to the next victim with grace. Good.

But Barbara Britton, as the wife, acts as monotonously as a starlet—blonde, of course; and Russell Nype gives a flat performance as the goatish playwright. As the household drunk Kay Medford, who is getting into a rut, croaks, groans and stares in a state of chronic depression at the other inmates.

Tony Curtis Tells How He Became Trapeze Artist

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 (UP).

TONY CURTIS chinned himself on his office door and announced he was in the best physical condition of his life.

"I have to be," he said. "I get some terrific roles because I'm the only actor physically fit to play certain parts.

"That's one reason Burt Lancaster picked me to star with him in 'Trapeze.' He couldn't find many guys who were willing — or able — to go sailing through the air on a couple of lengths of rope. As it was, I almost quit.

"When we went to France to make the picture I didn't realize I'd have to work 63 feet above the ground. The first time I climbed to the top of the platform I told Burt to count me out.

"This trapeze stuff went beyond acting, and I wasn't about to die for my art. If that's what you call it."

Lancaster conned him into climbing the platform every day for a week.

"He just wanted me to stand there without doing anything. This I did. Then one day I stood there hanging on to the trapeze with one hand. I froze that way for 20 minutes before I finally sailed out into space.

"THEY HAD a safety belt on me, but let's face it, I was scared to death. When the trapeze finally quit swinging I was just hanging there, suspended in air. I couldn't stay that way for the rest of my life so after what seemed like hours, I let go.

"I dropped like a shot and wound up hanging upside down on the safety belt 30 feet off the ground. I was limp as a rag doll.

"But once they lowered me into the net I couldn't wait to get back up to try it again."

Tony practiced with the safety belt for six days before Lancaster needled him into flying on his own. The first thing he learned was to fall into the neck without breaking his neck.

"I took off and swung three times before letting go. It was the longest trip of my life. A month passed before I felt to the net. After that I knew I had it made—and the circus people accepted me as one of the gang.

"Before I was through I learned to pirouette in mid air, and all kinds of fancy stuff. Never had more fun in my life."

Tony said Marlon Brando and Montgomery Clift were considered for the role, but Lancaster, an old circus man himself, didn't think they were physically equipped for it.

"One actor in ten thousand could have qualified," the bobby-sox king grinned. "And I just happened to be that man."

Webster College

The Webster College Chorale and the Glee Club of the Missouri School of Mines will present a Festival of Song at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the Webster College auditorium, 470 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves.

The program will include scenes from the operas "Dido and Aeneas," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Carmen," the Sanctus and Hosanna from Mozart's Requiem Mass, and O'Hara's "One World."

Large Sweaters

Sweaters that are designed for the larger figure are increasing in number and variety of style. In addition to the usual cardigan styles there are bolero shrug models and V-necked casual types. One bolero designed by Donwood is decorated with embroidery of imported Italian flowers. Ribbing outlines the opening and the short sleeves. A casual model by this same designer has a wide ribbed border and raglan shoulders.

Your Own Bulge Battle

YOU may not be overweight, but if you "overbulge" in the waistline, you won't have a figure to be proud of in the new summer frocks. Few women have been able to keep their figures without using a strong checkrein—and that's what you have to do now. Guard your figure against any excess weight.

First, and foremost you must keep your abdomen pulled in at all times — when you walk, dance, or sit at your desk. Watch your diet to keep a slender waistline. You can even whittle down the waistline with the same strokes that make clean sweeps with the vacuum. And, do these exercises listed below each day.

Stand with your feet apart, your hands together at the back of your neck, elbows out. Then, without moving your hips, twist entire top part of body as far to the left as you can. Go back to the original position and twist the whole top of the body as far to the right as possible, return to starting position and repeat exercise.

Sit with feet about 18 inches apart. Extend arms sideward, shoulder high. Be sure abdomen is pulled in. With a swing touch the toes of the left foot with the right arm. At the same time the left arm should be swung to the rear. Resume starting position. Now reverse the procedure by swinging the left arm downward so that the fingers touch the right toe. Swing right arm back. Go back to starting position. Continue six or seven times at the start and increase until you get up to 15 or 20 times.

Do You Measure Up?

Easy-to-use tables show you how to calculate your ideal measurements from head to toe. They will make figure readjustments simple and accurate. For a copy of "Do You Measure Up?" send 10 cents (in coin) and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Secrets of Charm in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Polka-Dotted Coat

A polka-doted coat that also may be worn as a complete dress is illustrative of the versatile aspect of many summer costumes. When worn as a coat it is unbelted. A solid colored torso dress that matches the background of the coat material completes the ensemble. The dress has its own petticoats.

Dark CinemaScope

HOLLYWOOD—Metro finally has succeeded in breakdown opposition by 20th Century-Fox to the filming of a CinemaScope picture in black and white. Fox, which introduced the process, had advocated using only color negatives, and had dissuaded both Metro and Warner Brothers when they previously had planned to do CinemaScope films in black and white. Metro's trailblazer project will be "The Power and the Prize." It goes before the camera Monday with Robert Taylor and Elizabeth Mueller, a newcomer from German pictures.

Gene Kelly Film

HOLLYWOOD—Gene Kelly, no longer under exclusive contract to Metro, will star in, produce and co-direct "Happy Journey" in France for release by the company. Kelly expects to start the picture late next month at the Belancourt Studio in Paris. The story by Arthur Julian and Joseph Morhaim will present Gene as a father seeking his son who has run away with a schoolmate. During the search he meets the other lad's mother and eventually they wind up as a happy family unit. Noel Howard will serve as the co-director.

Billy Wilder Plans

HOLLYWOOD—Billy Wilder, the director-producer, has a full year of work lined up. He has signed with Arthur Hornblow Jr. and Edward Small to direct their film version of "Witness for the Prosecution," based on the Agatha Christie play. The film, scheduled as a United Artists release, will go before the camera early next year in England. At present Wilder is completing the Charles A. Lindbergh story of his solo flight to Paris, "The Spirit of St. Louis" at Warner Bros. Late this summer he will switch over to Allied Artists in his dual capacity as director-producer to make "Ariane," with Audrey Hepburn starred.

New Home-Reducing Plan Is Guaranteed to Take Off Pounds and Inches

Science does wonderful things. Latest in the field of weight control is the program developed by the famous Niagara Research Institute. This plan, which was produced under the supervision of competent medical authority, is unusual because it is the first home-reducing program to present a scientific, medically correct, three-way approach to the problem of excess weight. It is very economical, carries the Good Housekeeping seal and costs nothing to try in your own home. For free booklet and information, write to Niagara of St. Louis, Dept. 2A, 6254 Delmar Blvd., or call PA. 5-0990.

'Three Empty Rooms'

HOLLYWOOD — "Three Empty Rooms," a recent television play by Reginald Rose, has been bought for filming by RKO. Sidney Lumet, also out of TV, will direct the suspense type melodrama as his first movie effort. Rose is to write his own screen play. Current plans are to do the filming in New York this summer, and the studio hopes to sign Rod Steiger for one of the lead roles. The story deals with a honeymoon couple who becomes involved with a band of jewel thieves.

Second Gobel Film

HOLLYWOOD—George Gobel, the comedian and his Gomalco Productions, have signed a one-picture contract with RKO to make "So There You Are" this summer. Goodman Ace is the author of the original screen play which will star Gobel as a Madison avenue advertising executive who enters a Mr. and Mrs. America contest with his wife. William Bloom will represent the studio as producer. The comedian made his screen debut in "The Birds and the Bees," currently being distributed by Paramount.

Yellow Linen

Yellow linen is a favorite material for late spring and summer coats. It is seen in combination with printed dresses and also as an accent for the white dress. Both slim coats and the fitted, flaring modes are included in the collections of leading designers.

Matching Cape

The dress with its matching cape is a summer type to consider. Some of the capes button to the dress at the shoulders. Another new idea is the cape stole. One side buttons while the other swings free to form a stole.

Answers to Housewives' Questions

By Dorothy Brainerd

IT'S blanket-washing time again, which means that we were not surprised to receive the following request from Mrs. A.M. of Collinsville.

"I recently washed wool blankets which I have washed before with success, but this time they shrank," she explains. "Could you please tell me if there is anything I could do to bring them back to their normal size?"

We can do this for you, Mrs. A.M.—we can mail you a copy of an article entitled "The Best Method of Washing Wool Blankets" by Louise Woodruff, extension economist for the University of Missouri, if you will send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The directions are much too lengthy to be repeated in this column. They include a special reconditioning treatment for blankets that have been shrunken or felted in washing.

"I LIVE in an attractive little apartment which has been built into the top floor of a private residence," writes Miss M.C.

"The wall behind the kitchen sink is some kind of wallboard (I know it is not plasterboard) which has just one layer of wallpaper on it. It has become terribly splattered and is quite unsightly, but I don't want to paper it again.

"My idea is to cover the wall with some adhesive-backed plastic which is sold under several brand names. But I wonder if it is as easy to put on as is claimed. Could it be put on over the wallpaper, and does it have to be overlapped with seams or just put edge to edge?

"The saleswoman to whom I talked didn't seem to know too much about her product, and I thought perhaps you could give me some information."

Sorry, Miss C., but I really think this matter should be discussed in detail with the person from whom you purchase the material. The brands which you mentioned in your letter are sold in all major department stores, and if one salesperson is not well informed, try another store or insist upon speaking to the manager or buyer. I simply am not qualified to advise you about one of several similar products.

Hope I don't sound uncooperative, but as mentioned last week it is important that one follow directions of the manufacturer to the letter.

I can tell you, however, that this material should be overlapped about one-sixteenth or one-eighth of an inch. Since it is very thin it will not show, but it will keep cracks from showing at the "seams" after it stretches a bit. When overlapped so that it is bonded to itself, it will not stretch the seams loose.

A CULINARY QUESTION which perplexes Anna C.

"I have some dry malted milk which I would like to use in making frozen malts. Would you please print a recipe in your Sunday column?"

Here you are, Anna; hope you enjoy this.

Chocolate malted milk ice cream: Three-fourths cup sweetened chocolate flavored malted milk; one-fourth cup sugar; one-fourth cup milk; one cup heavy cream, whipped.

Combine the malted milk, sugar and milk in top of a double boiler. Heat, stirring occasionally until the mixture is smooth and slightly thickened, about 15 minutes. Cool to room temperature. Fold in the whipped cream; pour into a refrigerator tray and freeze.

MRS. E. D. wants to know how to treat an iron skillet that rusted after being washed and dried in a dishwasher. She also asks if there is anything that can be done to remove a rancid oil odor from a wooden salad bowl, explaining that it was not a treated bowl but just "plain, rough wood."

Just recondition the skillet in the usual manner—that is, scouring it with fine steel wool, washing thoroughly, then rubbing with unsalted oil or fat and heating until the fat begins to sizzle, taking care that it does not burn. Turn off the heat, allow to cool, and wipe out any excess fat.

It may be difficult to get rid of the offensive odor if salad was tossed in an unfinished wooden bowl. You might try rubbing the inside with pumice stone and a little water. Do not get it too wet; just work with the stone and a bit of water.

If you are able to remove the odor and stains, wax the inside very heavily with bees' wax, burnishing with a rag just as hard as possible. The bees' wax will not give any odor, and it will keep the oils from penetrating.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Anita Ekberg and Robert Ryan Teamed

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Ryan and Anita Ekberg will be teamed by RKO in "Portofino," a romantic adventure scheduled to be filmed in January in Italy. John Farrow will direct. The story by Bernie Giler originally was announced for filming by Howard Welsch, independent producer. The RKO screen play will be written by Jonathan Latimer. The two performers recently completed "Back From Eternity" for the studio.

'Marjorie Morningstar'

HOLLYWOOD—Everett Freeman will write the screen adaptation of Herman Wouk's novel, "Marjorie Morningstar" for Warner Bros. Wouk, at the request of the producer, Milton Sperling, spent a week here interviewing candidates for the script assignment. Work declined to write the film version himself because he felt he was too close to the book to approach it with the proper dramatic perspective.

Freeman will take on the new job after he completes his current writing stint at Universal revising the comedy "My Man Godfrey," which was made in 1936. The report is that Universal is considering "Godfrey" as a prospective starring vehicle for Lana Turner, with whom it recently made a picture commitment.

Hollywood Briefs

HOLLYWOOD — Adolphe Menjou has signed with RKO for the Debbie Reynolds-Eddie Fisher film, "Bundle of Joy." ... Robert Stevenson will direct "The Halliday Grand," to be produced by Collier Young and Associates, Inc., for release by United Artists. Joseph Cotten will be starred. . . . Red Skelton will have assistance from three other comedians when he steps before the RKO camera in "Public Pigeon Numbed One." They are Jay C. Flippen, Allyn Joslyn and Benny Baker. . . . Leonard Spigelgass will write the screen adaptation of "Silk Stockings," the musical show based on the old movie "Ninotchka." Arthur Freed will produce the film for Metro.

Fables Of the Famous

By E. E. Edgar

TRESPASSING: While working as an editor out West, Mark Twain invested in dozens of wildcat mines, hoping that one of them would strike it rich. None of them did, but he continued to increase his holdings.

"Why don't you stop throwing your money away on those mines?" a friend said to him. "You'll never get a cent out of them."

"Oh, I don't know," drawled Twain. "I own about half of Nevada underground. If I could get Congress to move the State off my property, I'd be a wealthy man."

RETALIATION: The supreme self-confidence of Fiorello H. LaGuardia often led him to make outrageous shots in the dark, relates Ernest Cuneo in "Life With Fiorello."

"It always irritated me to see how lucky he usually was. Once, for example, a large manufacturer bitterly criticized him. Fiorello had never heard of the concern before, but he dictated a statement saying that he welcomed attack from an organization which was notorious in the bad treatment of its employes.

"I was staggered by this and asked him how he knew this firm was hard on its employes. He admitted he didn't know the first thing about the firm, but he said he knew because everybody was bad to employes, except him of course.

"I was confounded when some of the firm's employes communicated with him and said they were glad he was fighting their battle."

RESOLUTION: At a New Year's Eve party, humorist Wilson Mizner was seated next to a promoter who had been involved in several shady deals.

"Have you made your New Year's resolution yet?" asked the humorist.

"Yes," said the other. "From now on I am going to follow the Ten Commandments."

You've been following them all your life," cracked Mizner. "Why don't you resolve this year to catch up with them?"

MORBID: Eugene O'Neill's father lived to see his son acclaimed as a dramatist. The elder O'Neill, a well-known romantic actor, was present when his son's play "Beyond the Horizon" was performed on Broadway.

It was a sordid drama of love and hate, entirely unlike any of the drawing room plays in which he had starred. Dejectedly he watched the morbid story unfold. When the final curtain came down, his son asked him:

"Well, what did you think of it?"

"It's a fine play," said the old man, "but you'll never get this audience to recommend it. When they leave here, they'll probably go home and commit suicide!"

NECESSITY: Some years ago, New York Yankee fans arranged a Yogi Berra day in honor of the team's star catcher. Berra, then a young, inexperienced kid, was overwhelmed by the array of expensive gifts which were heaped upon him.

When the presentation was over, he stepped forward to express his appreciation.

"I want to thank all you people," he said with feeling, "for making this day necessary."

THREAT: Hack Wilson, an outstanding baseball player in his day, made the mistake of hitting the bottle too often. No one realized better than he how much it had shortened his career. To other players, especially the kids first making the grade, he preached the evils of drink.

One night, when he was rooming with a Cub rookie, he staggered into the hotel room in a sorry condition. He thrust a bottle of beer into the rookie's hand and roared:

"Drink this, sonny! It'll make a man outa ya!"

The kid hesitated.

"Drink it, I said!" ordered Wilson threateningly.

The kid hesitated no longer. The Cub slugger, with his bulging biceps, was not a man to be trifled with. The rookie lifted the bottle to his lips.

As he did so, Wilson, with a vicious swipe, knocked the bottle out of his hand. It crashed against the wall and broke into fragments. For a moment there was silence. Then Wilson growled:

"And if I ever catch you doin' that again, I'll really let you have it!"

Helen Hayes to Play in 'Anastasia' Film

HOLLYWOOD—Helen Hayes will make her first screen appearance in four years by portraying the Russian countess in "Anastasia." This was the role played by Eugenie Leontovich on the Broadway stage. Miss Hayes' co-stars in the film, to be produced abroad by Twentieth Century-Fox, will be Ingrid Bergman and Yul Brynner. Filming is scheduled to commence in England May 28, with sequences to be photographed as well in France and Austria. Miss Hayes last appeared on the screen in "My Son John." Early last year the actress contemplated co-starring with James Cagney in "All Our Tomorrows" for Metro but withdrew from the picture because she was unable to clear other commitments.

Esther Williams

HOLLYWOOD—Esther Williams hopes to be able to squeeze in another movie before starting on her "Aqua Spectacle of 1957" stage show tour in England in July and commencing a two-year television association with NBC. The actress has agreed to star in "Tiger Mike" for Robert Goldstein Productions, and the producer now is making feverish plans to have the film, or at least Miss Williams' scenes in it, completed by the middle of June. Steve Fisher wrote the screen play in which Miss Williams will be seen as a Texas oil heiress, who proves herself equal to the task of keeping her late father's empire on an even keel.

Letters to a Doctor

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I imagine you receive many letters from all over the country. I have read quite a few in your column. May I make a suggestion what, I think, will be very helpful to us readers? I know you must hear from people who insist that they remain anonymous. Yet, many of their problems and case histories might be of great aid to us if you published their letters—in full or in part. Not mentioning their names, initials or locality, you would not be violating their confidence. Don't you think this might be helpful to many distressed people?—Sincerely Mrs. J. T."

Answer: Although I cannot answer every letter (and problem) I receive, I read each letter from readers of the column. In this way, I am continually feeling the pulse of you people in whose paper the column appears. I learn about what interests you and about what concerns you most. When you read a column on cholesterol, for example, you will know that I have received numerous requests to write on that subject.

In ANSWER to Mrs. J. T.'s request I shall quote from some letters I received this morning:

Letter No. 1: Dear Dr. Steincrohn: "We read all your articles and they help us much to understand some of the things that worry us. Your column on high cholesterol made us wonder if there are any shots that can be taken to bring it down. A column on this would be very helpful. Best wishes."

Letter No. 2: (Brickbats!) Dear Sir: "As a user of the weed for over 30 years, I was aware when I started the habit that it was detrimental to health. I learned that in grade school, the same as every other kid of the time did. Being so aware of it I was keenly watching my reactions to it and for the last 20 of those years I was trying to quit. For the last 10 years I got up every morning with the idea that on this day I was going to quit. I finally screwed up enough sense and will power to do the job and I am now free of the plague. I have not felt so good in the last 15 years and all the tobacco men on TV could not again sell me their poison.

"In case you do not know it, you are not just going to casually give up smoking some day when you feel it necessary. It is not that easy and it will take probably more will power than I personally think you possess.

"It is indeed unfortunate that your views as a medical man are exposed to so much of the public, at least as regards tobacco. Mounting evidence and statistics will soon prove you to be so terribly wrong about the use of this poison and you will be stuck with the knowledge that you have influenced many unformtunate souls to keep on with something that can only harm them as it did me. The old saying about doctors just burying their mistakes has taken a new turn now, for they are also burying themselves through smoking. And they, of all people, should know better.

"As a medical man advising the public, yours is a great responsibility. I wonder if you are not being paid by the tobacco industry. On the side?"

LETTER NO. 3 (Bouquets!): Dear Dr. Steincrohn: "Your column is wonderful. You seem to know exactly what to write. Please answer and explain to the public the importance of not annoying cardiac patients, unnecessarily. I hope you will write a column on this subject soon."

LETTER No. 4 (Prayer): Dear Dr. Steincrohn: "May I suggest that what Mrs. J. J. W. (Whom you wrote about in your column as worrying herself to death) needs is some heart-to-heart talks with God, instead of—or perhaps in addition to—a psychiatrist.

"I would suggest that she read and meditate on these parts of Scripture; and many others that she will find will ease her mind. To me, worry is an insult to God. I have found peace of mind and a stronger faith in spite of a soul-trying experience in our family at present. May she do the same. If she will read the Sermon on the Mount; the 37th, 46th, 118th, 125th Psalms, and many other references in the concordance of her Bible on faith and trust, I am sure she will be comforted. That is my prayer."

These few letters will give you an idea of the immense opportunity to have to look into the hearts and minds of people; and of how small and insignificant I feel when I take upon myself the task of trying to guide and help you, through my answers by column or letter.

Shaw's 'St. Joan' Bought for Filming

HOLLYWOOD — Otto Preminger, the director-producer, has announced the acquisition of screen rights to Bernard Shaw's play "Saint Joan" and the signing of a new three-picture financing - distribution agreement with United Artists. Preminger, now representing Hollywood as a member of the judging committee at the Cannes Film Festival, negotiated the "Saint Joan" purchase with the trustees of the playwright's estate in London. Preminger expects to start the picture version, possibly in England, before the end of the year. This summer he will produce in France an adaptation of the novel "Bonjour Tristesse," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will release. Preminger's contract with United Artists covers a period of five years. His last picture for the company was "The Man With the Golden Arm."

Reincarnation Films

HOLLYWOOD — "Bridey Murphy" appears to have sent Hollywood producers thinking about how they can exploit public interest and curiosity about reincarnation. Allied Artists joined the growing parade today with "The Hypnosis of Diana Love," slated for filming in July from a script by Mark Hanna and Charles Griffith. Universal already is at work on "I've Lived Before," the story of an airline pilot who believes he is the reincarnation of a World War I flier. Paramount, meanwhile, admits that it is exploring the "Bridey Murphy" story.

EIGHTH AND FRANKLIN

Behavior Of Children At 6 Years

By Frances L. Ilg, M.D., and Louise Bates Ames, Ph.D.

"Dear Doctors Ilg and Ames:

"MY daughter, who will be 6 in a few months, has always been a lovable, easily trained but shy and very sensitive youngster. She has been getting along well in school and until now has played well with her little friends. Just lately, however, she seems to be the victim of the children she plays with 'taking' sides' against her.

"Unfortunately all the children of our little neighborhood play together — about six of them—and she has no one else to turn to for companionship except her sister, aged 2. I have tried reasoning with the children (who range in age from 4 to 8), giving them treats, and ignoring them. But they still taunt her and tease her every time they get a chance.

"WHEN she comes to me with misery and fear written all over her, I feel powerless to tell her what to do. She needs guidance and help to work her way back into the good graces of the gang; and I feel incompetent to give it to her. Any suggestions you could give me would be appreciated. Also, I should like to know whether she should stay with the youngsters, fight it out, or should I keep her in the house, lonely as that would be. That seems a drastic step with the long summer ahead. I feel that I must do something for her soon, as the continual tension is affecting her normally good appetite and giving her nightmares."

You daughter's social difficulties are not unusual for a 6-year-old. In fact, you may find that other girls in this neighborhood group are also being excluded or mistreated part of the time—not just your daughter.

It probably doesn't help much for you to intervene. Rather it would be good if you could plan inviting some one child at a time to do something special with your daughter in the house or even away from home. You could take the children to whatever treat you arrange." This often helps most.

HOWEVER, it is true that some children even more than others at six do seem to attract mean treatment from their friends. Sometimes keeping them away from the others for a while is about all you can do. Could you possibly arrange for her to visit her grandmother or some other relative this summer?

Our guess is that if you can help her just through the next six months or so, things may improve a lot. Seven-year-olds are usually nowhere near as cruel to their friends as sixes are. However, this same difficulty is likely to crop up again at eleven. Being forewarned may help you when it does come.

School may help, when she enters next fall. This will probably introduce her to some different children and among them there will probably be some whom she likes. You can of course foster such friendships by inviting these special children to visit.

But for the present give more time to her yourself. Have a music hour and try dancing with her and her little sister. Plan cooking sprees in which they can participate. For a time give less thought and attention to your housework and spend more time with the children.

Universal Coup

HOLLYWOOD — Universal-International executives are convinced they have effected a casting coup in bringing together James Stewart and Audie Murphy as co-stars of "Night Passage," to be made late in the year. The actors, as the respective individual stars of "The Glen Miller Story" and "To Hell and Back," gave the studio the two biggest money-making pictures in its history.

"Night Passage" is a new novel, published in February, by Norman A. Fox. The action is set in Montana in the 1880s and is carried forward by two brothers. One is a railroad agent (Stewart) and the other an outlaw (Murphy), who is killed by his own band while attempting to protect his brother.

The picture will be produced by Aaron Rosenberg, who also made "The Glen Miller Story" and "To Hell and Back."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

CHARTER FREEHOLDER SECTION

PART TWELVE — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 6, 1956 — PAGES 1—4K

INFORMATION FOR VOTERS IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

45 CANDIDATES FOR 13 SEATS ON BOARD TO DRAFT NEW CHARTER

Backgrounds, Records and Platforms of St. Louisans Seeking Election Are Presented for Study.

Facts about the 45 candidates for 13 places on a board of freeholders which will draft a proposed new city charter or modifications of the present one are presented in this special section of the Post-Dispatch.

Material about the candidates was obtained from questionnaires mailed to them, from public records and from Post-Dispatch files. Candidates were invited to express any views or proposals they may have for incorporation in the charter draft, which must be approved by voters before adoption.

Sketches of candidates follow:

HUGO P. ALBRECHT — A real estate broker and appraiser, Albrecht was Federal Housing Administration director for the eastern district of Missouri from 1948 to 1953. He has offices in his home at 4162 Humphrey street.

Formerly he practiced law and in 1948 had offices with Phelim O'Toole, real estate dealer and now Circuit Clerk and Fourteenth Ward Democratic committeeman. Albrecht then was Democratic committeeman from that ward and also was a member of the State Democratic Committee.

He has been indorsed by the St. Louis Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO, but not by the Citizens Charter Committee.

He is former chief clerk in the circuit clerk's office, a former income tax field agent for the State Auditor's office and a former city district deputy assessor.

In 1942 he ran unsuccessfully for Democratic nomination for Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, and in 1946 filed for nomination for Circuit Clerk but withdrew before the primary.

Born in St. Louis, he attended parochial and public schools and St. Louis University Law School. He is 62 years old, married and has five children.

MRS. FRANK A. BECKER—She has been Republican committeewoman from the Thirteenth Ward since 1926 and has held several appointive public posts, including those of courtroom clerk in the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, condemnation commissioner and deputy jury commissioner. She was unsuccessful Republican nominee for Seventh District constable in 1954.

She was elected to the 1949-50 charter board of freeholders and served as its secretary. The charter proposed by this board was defeated by the voters.

Mrs. Becker served by appointment as a city member of the Metropolitan Transit Board of Freeholders and was one of three members who refused to approve the board's plan for a city-county transit district.

Her major objection was a provision that fares at all times be fixed high enough to finance a publicly operated transportation system's general obligation bonds. She and one other dissenter felt that expenses of acquisition of the system should be borne by all residents of the district and not alone by users of the facility. The plan was defeated by voters in January 1955.

Mrs. Becker's chief proposals in connection with her candidacy for the present charter board include: "A city-supported college, reduction of surplus funds in the city water division by reduction of water rates, home rule wherever possible, annexation of the county or at least the unincorporated territory."

She has the indorsement of COPE, the labor group.

Mrs. Becker, wife of an insurance dealer, lives at 3667 Marceline terrace and has two daughters. She was born in Ohio, attended public grade and high schools and Notre Dame Convent in Cincinnati.

JOHN A. BODART—A painter and decorator operating from his home, 1905 East De Soto avenue. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Republican nomination for state representative from the Fifth District in 1938 and 1940. At that time he favored legalization of horse-race betting and bingo.

He favors a non-partisan approach to the charter problem and preservation of the merit system for city employes. He opposes home rule for the police.

A native of Wisconsin, Bodart is 59 years old, married and has one child. He is an eighth-grade graduate.

CLORIS BOLER — A Negro. Boler says he is a chemist and a 1920 graduate of the European School of Drugless Therapy. In 1950 he was secretary to State Representative William A. Cole. He states he attended the Los Angeles (Calif.) College of Physiotherapy in 1937 and was admitted to the Missouri Chiropratic College here in 1942. Born in Mississippi, attended Newton (Miss.) High School and C.M.C. College at Kosciusko, Miss. He is married, has four children and lives at 3720 Cozens avenue.

JOHN M. BOWLIN—He is in the real estate business, associated with the Joseph F. Dickmann Co., 8125 Maryland avenue, Clayton, and lives at 5154 Westminster place. He has been active in real estate 10 years and before that was an employe and officer of the old Mississippi Valley Trust Co. for 20 years. A Democrat, he has never sought or held public or party office except in 1954 when he was named by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker to the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Tax Equalization Board. Born in St. Louis, he attended Christian Brothers College. Married, no children.

He favors preparation of a charter "that will provide more efficient government and give the Mayor more authority over department heads, some of which are state offices and others under civil service. Would give much thought before submitting changes that would conflict with state law."

COLBERT B. BROUSSARD—He is principal of Dumas Elementary School and has been with the St. Louis public schools since 1928. In the post-World War II period he was a supervisor of veterans' training for the Board of Education.

He is a member of the City Plan Commission, trustee of the Greater St. Louis Economic Council and treasurer of the Urban League. He was president of the Urban League in 1949, first Negro to hold that post. He was co-chairman of speakers' bureaus in the recent earnings tax and bond issue campaigns and was vice chairman of the Council on Human Relations, 1949-52.

He received the degree of bachelor of science from Northwestern University in 1926 and master of arts there in 1945. As chairman of the Urban League's recreation committee, 1933-38, he wrote a survey, "Recreational Facilities and Needs for Negroes in St. Louis," which led to establishment of several playgrounds.

He is on the Citizens Committee slate.

Born in Louisiana, he is 55 years old, married, has three children and lives at 4973 Northland place.

FREDERICK E. BUSSE—He is a member of the law firm of Thomas, Busse, Weiss, Cullen & Godfrey, with offices at 418 Olive street. He attended Beaumont High School and Westminster College and is a graduate of St. Louis University Law School. Has never sought or held public or party office.

He is a member of the executive council, Metropolitan Church Federation; board of governors, North Side Y.M.C.A., and of the board of directors, German Protestant Orphans Home.

He is on the Citizens Committee freeholder slate.

Born in St. Louis, he is 45 years old, married, has one son and lives at 1740 Grape avenue.

JOHN F. X. CALLANAN—He is a Union Electric Co. sales department office manager and practices law part-time. Has never sought or held public or party office. Member of the labor law committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis.

He is on the Citizens Committee slate.

Born in St. Louis, he attended McBride High School. He attended St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance after Navy service in the South Pacific in World War II. He was graduated in accounting in 1948, then studied law at the university's night school, being graduated in 1952. He is 34 years old, married, has three children and lives at 4952 Magnolia avenue.

GLYNN B. CHIPLEY—An insurance broker with offices at 3525 Watson road, Chipley has never sought or held public or party office. He states his freeholder candidacy was sponsored by the Ellendale District Protective Association, which he helped found in 1930 and of which he is now treasurer.

He believes the city charter should "provide for a form of government responsible and responsive to the needs and wishes of the voters, particularly the average home owner," that it should exclude legislative matter and that aldermen should be elected in their respective wards.

Born in Schley county, Ga., Chipley is 69 years old, married, has four children and lives at 2720 Ellendale avenue.

JAMES S. CORCORAN — A lawyer with offices at 818 Olive street, Corcoran was Ninth District Magistrate in 1953 by appointment of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly for an unexpired term. He served until Jan. 1, 1955.

He then became attorney for Sheriff Martin L. Tozer at $3000 a year, a part-time job, succeeding William G. Sparrow, who resigned after he was elected to the magistrate post vacated by Corcoran. Corcoran had not sought re-election as magistrate.

He is on the COPE slate.

He is a brother of Mrs. Charlotte Corcoran Lee, Fourth Ward Democratic committeewoman.

He was a state assistant attorney general, 1949-51, and has served as a provisional police judge. He was president of the Young Democrats of St. Louis in 1950 and chairman of the Young Democrats state convention in 1951. He is a Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean war, having served as a lieutenant. He attended McBride High School and St. Louis University schools of commerce and law.

Born in St. Louis, he is 33 years old, married, has three children and lives at 5530 Delmar boulevard.

MRS. ROGERS DEAKIN—Wife of a physician, Mrs. Deakin is active in the League of Women Voters and is a vice president of the Twenty-eighth Ward Republican Organization.

She states that the freeholders' task will be "a thorough study of our present charter; undoubtedly changes can and should be made, but they cannot be made in advance of the study. Individuals and groups should be heard; legal advice is needed. The charter must provide the maximum good for all the people in as modern, efficient and economical a way as possible."

She has been indorsed by COPE.

She is a member of the League's charter committee and served on the committee which set up the League's governmental institute. She has been an active political worker about five years, "trained and encouraged by the League and warmly welcomed by my party."

Mrs. Deakin is a native of St. Louis, 50 years old, attended Yeatman High School and Washington University and lives with her husband at 6237 McPherson avenue. They have four children.

JOHN THOMAS DUMONT JR.—He is a lawyer and insurance broker with offices at 16 South Central avenue, Clayton. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the charter board of freeholders elected in 1949 and was employed in the office of former St. Louis Revenue Collector Richard E. Gruner. A Republican, he has been active in the Twenty-eighth and Fourth Ward Republican clubs.

He favors establishment of "a full university under the Board of Education" and a pension plan for city employes. He was born in St. Louis and is 30 years old, single and lives at 5811 Cabanne avenue. He studied at McBride High School and is a graduate of St. Louis University commerce and law schools.

MAJOR B. EINSTEIN—He is a vice president of First National Bank in St. Louis and was a partner in the old Waldheim, Platt & Co., investment brokerage firm. He has never sought or held public or party office. Has been active in Community Chest and Red Cross campaigns and has been co-chairman of the Missouri Region, National Conference of Christians and Jews, and president of Jewish Hospital, Jewish Federation of St. Louis and Congregation Shaare Emeth.

He is on the Citizens Committee freeholder slate.

Born in St. Louis, he is 56 year old, married, has two children and lives at 320 Union boulevard. He attended Smith Academy and Washington University.

MRS. MATHIA LALLY FRICK—Wife of Howard W. Frick, an attorney, Mrs. Frick operates a tax and bookkeeping service at 4103A Laclede avenue, which is her voting address. The Frick residence is at 7248 Clayton road, Richmond Heights. She has not sought or held public office but has been active in the Seventeenth Ward Democratic organization.

She is a native of St. Louis, 46 years old and has four children. She holds the degree of bachelor of arts from St. Louis University and of master of arts from Washington University.

In a letter to aldermen and Republican and Democratic city committee members, soliciting their support for her candidacy, Mrs. Frick said she was "neither for nor against a new charter," but "if the Mayor and the newspapers insist that we must have a new charter let us not get the wrong one."

"With all due credit to the fine idealistic dreams of our Mayor," she wrote, "it is apparent that his program is lacking in practical aspects. His zeal to do good may saddle the city with a charter that is beyond any dreams of accomplishment and that will compound the very evils he seeks to avert.

"I refer to his desire . . . to reduce the number of aldermen and to reduce or eliminate patronage; in other words to do away with direct representation and direct responsibility—the cornerstone of democratic government."

DAVID M. GRANT—A lawyer with offices at 11 North Jefferson avenue. Grant is a former president of the St. Louis branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and for many years has been a leader in movements to gain more rights for Negroes.

He also has been long active in Democratic politics. In 1932 he ran unsuccessfully for state representative from the Fourth District. The following year he was named an assistant city counselor by Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and served until 1941. He then became an assistant circuit attorney under Thomas C. Hennings Jr., but was fired in 1942 by Acting Circuit Attorney Henry G. Morris after a controversy over complaints by Negroes that they were being excluded from jury duty. Morris was said to have blamed Grant for the complaint.

Grant was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee in 1945 for Nineteenth Ward alderman. In 1952 he ran for Sixth Ward committeeman with support of the faction headed by then Sheriff Thomas F. Callanan and was defeated.

He is one of four freeholder candidates indorsed both by the Citizens Committee and COPE.

In a letter published in the Post-Dispatch last December Grant called for election of a board of freeholders which would include in the charter civil rights guarantees.

"Five and a half years ago," he wrote, "a board of freeholders headed by our present Mayor submitted a proposed charter which was silent in every respect on civil rights. One of its committees declined to include even a simple provision prohibiting discrimination in city buildings privately leased for occasional public promotions. Other offered civil rights propositions were likewise eschewed. That charter was vigorously opposed and soundly defeated.

"If the new charter leadership is afraid to face this jet-age challenge for human dignity, it should withdraw and quickly. . . . There are enough voters among minority groups affected by public discrimination to vote down any charter which omits provisions for civil rights."

Grant, 53 years old, was born in St. Louis, attended the University of Michigan and studied law at Howard University. He is married, has two children and lives at 2620 Lawton boulevard.

JOHN HAAS—A retired coal dealer, Haas is 60 years old, married, has two children and lives at 5033 Louisiana avenue. He was born in St. Louis and attended Blow School. He has never sought or held public or party office.

JOHN HAMILTON—An accountant with an office at 5451 Easton avenue, Hamilton formerly was an auditor for a cigar firm and before that was a deputy collector of internal revenue. He was defeated for the Democratic nomination for city collector of revenue in 1954. In the 1940 presidential campaign he was director of a CIO committee for Franklin D. Roosevelt and secretary of a combined labor committee for Roosevelt.

Born in Scotland, he attended grade and high school in Glasgow and studied two years at the old City College of Law and Finance here. He is 54 years old, married, has five children and lives at 1917 Belt avenue.

HENRY C. HARRING—He is president of the Missouri Chiropractic College, 3117 Lafayette avenue, and has never sought or held public or party office. States he is "inclined to favor the bipartisan system of government." He is a former president of the Mid-Town club.

Born in Missouri, he attended high school in Washington, Mo., and the St. Louis Chiropractic College. He is 67 years old, married, has one child and lives at 4262 Lafayette.

MISS MARGARET ANN HERRMANN—She is a 23-year-old teacher of American history and government at Nerinx Hall, Catholic girls' preparatory school in Webster Groves. She is secretary of the Associated Young Democrats of Metropolitan St. Louis and former field secretary of the League of Women Voters of Missouri. She is a graduate of Webster College, Webster Groves, and lives at 6551 Oleatha avenue.

She states: "The young people of St. Louis should have the opportunity of taking an active part in the consideration of the city charter. Youth should be entrusted with the responsibility of serving and preparing for the future of St. Louis. The age group I represent can offer new ideas, opinions and solutions to city problems."

JOHN SEVIER JOHNSON—He is a salesman and business consultant and former part-time instructor of logic, philosophy and religion at St. Louis University. He holds bachelor of arts and master of science degrees. Was defeated for Democratic nomination for Board of Aldermen from Twenty-fifth Ward in 1949 and has been active in politics several years.

He favors a balance between the merit system and patronage for city jobs, explaining that "if there are no appointive offices at the disposal of the parties no man can run for office unless he is rich or unless some interested powers put up money . . . Of course no one wants all offices to be at the beck and call of any ward-heeler but they should be where they can be reached by the vote of the public if they do not perform." He opposes bringing the so-called state offices under city control, on the ground that "the job now is well done and we need only see that there is no duplication."

Johnson, a native St. Louisan, is 56 years old, married, has three children and lives at 4610 Westminster place. He is a Marine veteran of World War I and was wounded in action.

DR. RALPH A. KINSELLA—A physician in St. Louis since 1911, Dr. Kinsella is director emeritus of the department of internal medicine, St. Louis University School of Medicine, and former president of the Missouri Association of Occupational Therapy. He was a member of the City Plan Commission from 1937 to 1944 and of the State Board of Health by appointment of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945.

He has the indorsement of the Citizens Committee.

MEL KRAH — A sales engineer for a blueprint concern, Krah served a four-year term as Tenth Ward alderman, 1951-55, and was defeated for re-election.

As a member of the Republican minority in the Board of Aldermen, he favored Mayor Tucker's charter program, opposed spot-zoning and voted generally for progressive measures. In his campaign for re-election he declared a new charter was essential to provide St. Louis with more home rule and to permit abolition of some municipal offices no longer necessary.

He is on both the Citizens' Charter Committee and COPE slates for the freeholder board.

Born in St. Louis, he is 44 years old, married, has one child and lives at 3457 Texas avenue. He studied at old Trinity Lutheran grade school and McKinley High School.

CANDIDATES' NAMES WILL BE ROTATED ON BALLOTS TO AVOID ALPHABETICAL BIAS

SKETCHES of the 45 freeholder candidates printed in this section are in alphabetical order, but only about one-fourth of the voters will find the names that way on their ballots.

This is because there are four separate sets of ballots, each set starting with a different name. The list of names is in alphabetical sequence, but is broken into three groups of 13 names and one of six.

Each of these four groups will head the ballot an equal number of times and each of the city's 787 precincts will receive a proportionate share of the four kinds of ballots. Thus possible preference to candidates high in the alphabetical listing will be avoided.

Here Is List Of Candidates

List of 45 freeholder candidates in Tuesday's special election. Names will not appear in this order on all ballots, since law requires rotation of names. For convenience of voters, the 13 candidates indorsed by St. St. Louis Citizens Charter Committee are designated by X. Voters can choose fewer than 13 candidates, but ballots marked for more than 13 will be thrown out.

45 Candidates Seek Seats On Board to Draft Charter

Tile Layers and Marble Masons Union and has never sought or held public or party office.

He has the indorsement of both the Citizens Charter Committee and COPE.

Born in St. Louis, he is 56 years old, married, has two children and lives at 5834 Westminster place. He studied at St. Alphonsus (Rock Church) School and St. Louis University High School.

FRANK A. NEUN—He is a law partner with Paul Lashly, with offices in the Arcade building, and was an assistant city counselor from 1946 to 1952. Neun was treasurer of the Twenty-eighth Ward Republican Club, 1936-39, and in 1938 was unsuccessful Republican nominee for state Representative from the old Fifth District.

He was named secretary to Director of Public Welfare Henry S. Caulfield in 1941. The following year he entered the Navy and commanded a combat ship in the Pacific.

As assistant city counselor he was counsel for the City Plan Commission and participated in drafting of legislation for comprehensive zoning, a traffic code and a traffic commission. Last year Neun served as campaign director of the Citizens' School Improvement Committee, which sponsored five so-called "blue ribbon" candidates for the Board of Education. All were defeated.

Neun states he has been a student of the city's government since his youth, when his father, former Circuit Judge Walter J. G. Neun, was elected president of the Board of Aldermen, serving from 1923 to 1935.

He favors a charter which will "simplify and modernize our city government both as to administrative and legislative functions, pave the way for an over-all metropolitan type of city-county governmental structure, maintain civil service, obtain more home rule over transportation facilities, put idle Water Division money to work and put into effect the best suggestions of the 1941 Griffenhagen survey."

Neun was born in St. Louis and is 46 years old, married, has one son and lives at 5600 Bancroft avenue. He attended Soldan High School and Washington University Law School.

DELBERT RICHARD NEUPERT—He is advertising manager of Sligo, Inc., industrial supply firm at 1301 North Sixth street, and has never sought or held public or party office. Born in Burlington, Ia., Neupert is 35 years old, married, has one child and lives at 4409 South Spring avenue. He attended Scullin elementary school and Beaumont High School.

He is a former vice president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which has indorsed his candidacy, and has been active at the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church and in charity drives. He favors "a more workable charter geared to the present pace of growth of St. Louis and flexible enough to be adapted to future city activities."

JAMES E. (JIM) PARKER—A roofing contractor operating from his home, 3414 Oregon avenue, Parker also is a boxing referee and a former lightweight boxer. He plays the drums and is a member of the Musicians' Union.

He was an unsuccesful candidate for Republican nomination for Tenth Ward alderman in 1951 and for state representative, Sixth District, in 1952. He was nominated for representative again in 1954, but lost in the general election.

He is past president of the Third District Youth Association and has been active in work with crippled children and juvenile delinquency, and in the Masonic organization. He is 52 years old, a native of St. Louis, married and has no children. He attended grade school.

LOUIS S. PAUL—A teacher of American history at Bayless High School, St. Louis county, Paul has never sought or held public or party office.

His proposal for the charter board: "To strengthen civil service and study the situation regarding state jobs; improve administrative efficiency and study city manager as well as other types of executive set-up; make provisions for city county merger; place publicly owned corporations operating in the city (as Public Service Co.) under home rule; oppose any provisions for allowing a future increase in city earnings tax, thus forcing the city to find some other form of taxation than this regressive tax."

Born in Philadelphia, Paul is 30 years old, married, has three children and lives at 5216 Davison avenue. He holds degrees of bachelor of science and master of arts in education from Washington University. He has been teaching three years and states that previously he was a union shop steward when working in industry.

HENRY B. PFLAGER—Member of the law firm of Orr, Pflager, Foulis & Andreas, with offices at 314 North Broadway. Pflager has never sought or held public or party office. He has contributed to Republican political campaigns and in 1951 was treasurer of the Citizens' School Improvement Committee, supporting so-called "blue ribbon" candidates for the Board of Education. He is a director of General Steel Castings Corp. and former administrative officer of the St. Louis Ordnance District.

He is on the Citizens Charter Committee slate.

He is vice president of the Art Museum board and a member of the Public Library and Shaw's Garden boards. Served three successive terms, 1940-43, as president of the city-county Y.M.C.A.; was 1945 Red Cross fund drive chairman and is a board member of several charitable organizations.

Born in Chicago, he is 52 years old, married, has two children and lives at 47 Westmoreland place. He attended Princeton University and Harvard Law School.

ERNEST MAXWELL POTTS—He is sales manager of Fererer Realty Co., 2600 Gravois avenue, and has never sought public or party office. He is former public relations director of Parks Air College and a former reporter for the Globe-Democrat.

He has been active in the Young Republican Organization and states that "I was one of the first people in St. Louis to openly advocate revision of the city charter as a means of streamlining the municipal government and making its operation more efficient and economical. I urged this action while trying to line up support within my Republican party for the earnings tax."

A member of the St. Louis chapter, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Potts believes at least one of the freeholders should be someone trained in the real estate business.

Born in Alton, Potts is 39 years old, married, has four children and lives at 5557 Lindenwood avenue. He attended college two years, at the University of Illinois and St. Louis University.

PAUL W. PREISLER—He is a consulting chemist, research associate in bio-chemistry in the Washington University School of Medicine and has been a practicing attorney since admission to the bar in 1954 after attending night law classes at St. Louis University. He is general counsel of the American Federation of Teachers, Local 420, which he founded in the 1930s.

He was an unsuccessful candidate for the 1949-50 charter board of freeholders. As a representative of the teachers' union he worked for approval of that board's charter proposal, but it was defeated by voters.

At a recent meeting of present freeholder candidates Preisler praised the 1950 proposed charter and said he would favor bringing it up to date, with stronger provisions for the initiative, referendum and recall and improvement of methods of charter amendment. Controversial provisions which apparently led to defeat of the 1950 proposal should be submitted to voters separately, he said.

For more than 20 years Preisler has been in the public eye from time to time as the usually successful champion of seemingly lost or unpopular causes. In the middle 1930s he led a fight which resulted in revocation of a Board of Education rule barring teacher membership in unions. In 1937 he won a case before the Missouri Supreme Court which restored non-partisan Board of Education elections.

In 1951 he won a court decision giving minority parties the right to have election poll watchers and in 1954 won the right to be a nonpartisan candidate for Congress. His most recent legal victory last November, was the overthrow by a state Supreme Court decision of St. Louis's gerrymandered state senatorial districts.

Preisler was chairman of the Socialist Central Committee here for 15 years until 1951 when he dropped out of the party. He had been an unsuccessful Socialist candidate for various offices. He served as an Army lieutenant colonel in World War II and took his law course under the G.I. bill.

Member of an old St. Louis family, Preisler attended public schools here and was graduated from Washington University as a chemical engineer in 1923 and obtained his doctorate there in 1927. He is 53 years old, single and lives at 3709 Juniata street. He has the indorsement neither of the Citizens Charter Committee nor of COPE.

ORIN E. RAPP—He is a salesman for American National Life Insurance Co. and has never sought or held public or party office. A Purple Heart veteran of World War II, having been wounded in action in France, Rapp is active in veteran affairs and commander of the Eleventh District, American Legion.

Rapp was one of the six polling place officials of the third precinct, Seventh Ward, fired by the Election Board after the August 1954 primary for "conducting the election in a careless and improper manner." Rapp, a Democratic election judge, and the other two Democratic officials were listed as living at 1109A Chouteau avenue. Rapp in fact lived at 4510A Cleveland avenue, outside the ward, although required by law to live or have a place of business in the ward.

The Election Board investigated officials of several wards after lopsided majorities for Democratic machine candidates were recorded in many precincts. In Rapp's third precinct the vote was unanimous or nearly so for such Democrats as State Senator James M. Webbe, Clerk James H. McAteer of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Clerk James Lavin of the Court of Criminal Correction and Recorder of Deeds Anthony J. Denny. Rapp and his fellow officials refused to testify on constitutional grounds. A circuit court grand jury later found that crimes had been committed in several wards, but said it was unable to fix responsibility.

Rapp, who is on neither the Citizens Committee nor the COPE slate, organized a protest meeting of the 32 unindorsed candidates which was held April 27. Seventeen of the 32 met and adopted a statement that they were "free and unpledged." A proposed rebuke against the Citizens Committee was abandoned after several unindorsed candidates defended the committee.

Rapp announced April 24 that he was withdrawing as an active candidate, but it was too late for his name to be struck from the ballot.

Rapp, born in St. Louis, is 44 years old, married, childless, and lives at 4070 Quincy street. He attended Cleveland High School.

EDWARD J. REGAN—Regan has been supervisor of community relations for McDonnell Aircraft Corp. since last February and before that was on the news staff of the Globe-Democrat 10 years, recently as chief copy editor. He has never sought or held public or party office. He favors putting all county-type offices under city budget control, extension of civil service to employes of the collector of revenue, license collector and treasurer and complete revision of traffic control authority and responsibility.

Born in St. Louis, he is 36 years old, married, has six children and lives at 5310 Devonshire avenue. He is a graduate of Washington University in business administration and has attended graduate school there two years. In World War II he was overseas 25 months with the Air Transport Command.

EDWIN C. ROBINSON — An auditor with offices at his home, 5256 Raymond avenue, Robinson was a policeman from 1927 to 1943, when he resigned to enter business. He ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination for State Representative, First District, in 1954.

Born in St. Louis, he is 53 years old, married and has three daughters. He attended night high school and business college.

MISS ELEANOR H. SCHICHT—She is a saleswoman for the American Life Insurance Co. of San Antonio, secretary of the Eleventh Ward Republican Organization and was secretary to Revenue Collector Gruner. She is a former president of the Civic League of Business and Professional Women.

"The new charter should be far-reaching enough to take care of the present and future needs for the betterment of the city, especially a workable sanitary code, to eliminate unsightly conditions," she said.

Miss Schicht was born in St. Louis, is 42 years old and lives at 3 River Bluff place. She studied at Holy Cross Lutheran School, public high school and business college.

She has been indorsed by COPE.

PHILIP M. SESTRIC — A lawyer with offices at 705 Olive street, Sestric favors a charter that will provide home rule for the city with respect to police and to public utilities operations now controlled by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Sestric, a Democrat and former assistant attorney general under J. E. Taylor, is a brother of Magistrate Anton Sestric and Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric.

He is on the COPE slate.

He served 32 months in the European theater with the Second Armored Division in World War II, received the Purple Heart, Bronze Star medal and seven battle stars and was discharged as a staff sergeant. He studied at St. Joseph Croatian School, McKinley High School and St. Louis University Law School. A native of St. Louis, he is 36 years old, married, has three children and lives at 4137 McDonald avenue.

MRS. CONRAD SOMMER—Wife of a psychiatrist, Mrs. Sommer formerly was a child welfare worker and is now a member of the Board of Children's Guardians. She is a former president of the St. Louis League of Women Voters and has been active in a variety of civic projects.

She is on the Citizens' Committee slate.

Mrs. Sommer, 44 years old, was born in Bell City, Mo., and attended Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, receiving her bachelor's degree in 1933. She received a master's degree in 1935 at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration and took additional graduate work there and at Washington University. She has lived in St. Louis since 1945. The Sommers and their four adopted children live at 5327 Waterman boulevard.

Her program for a new charter is as follows: "Make every effort to increase home rule for St. Louis. As a first step, provide a basic framework of government which clearly fixes responsibility and promotes competence in handling municipal affairs so that people, understanding and knowing how to control their government, will have no basis for distrust of local management. As a second step, obtain a Supreme Court decision on what the board of freeholders now being elected can do about the 'county' offices.

"Reorganize to simplify administrative relationships and define lines of authority. Fix responsibilty for fiscal policy and management including budget procedures which will provide a complete, co-ordinated and easily understood financial plan and audits by certified public accountants responsible to legislative branch.

"Make a thorough study of the civil service to determine what is needed to safeguard the merit system, promote real career service and at the same time make personnel administration more flexible and a real asset in the better general management of the city.

"Make a thoughtful study of possible ways to enhance the prestige and increase the effectiveness of the legislative branch."

GEORGE L. STEMMLER—He was city counselor, 1945-49, under Mayor Aloys P. Kaufman and before that was an associate city counselor four years. He has been in private practive, with offices in the Arcade building, since leaving the city post. He was co-counsel of the 1949-50 charter board of freeholders. In 1934 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Republican nomination for circuit judge.

He was elected president of the Bar Association of St. Louis in 1937 and later that year became editor and general manager of the Missouri Bar Journal. He has been a member of the board of governors of the Missouri Bar since 1951.

He is on the Citizens Committee slate, having been asked by that body to become a candidate.

Born in St. Louis, Stemmler is 60 years old, married, has four children and lives at 4541 Maryland avenue. He was graduated from the Washington University Law School in 1917.

CHARLES B. STEWART—He is a machine operator for McQuay-Norris Manufacturing Co. and has never sought or held public or party office.

He favors "charter revision in the public interest"; recommends a "declaration acknowledging existence of constitutional rights guaranteed by the (federal and state) constitutions"; prosecution of "anyone suspected of violating the constitutional rights of an American citizen or attempting to enforce a void ordinance, regulation or unlawful purpose"; examination of freeholders' recommendations by constitutional lawyers before submission to voters and "revision of election laws . . . to assure a secret and untrammeled ballot."

Stewart is treasurer of the St. Louis Property Owners Association of America. Born in St. Louis, he is 45 years old, married, childless and lives at 3513 Halliday avenue. He attended grade school and Beaumont High School.

HERSHEL WALKER—He operates an electric oven at Wagner Electric Corp., and has been employed there 14 of the 20 years he has lived in St. Louis. Walker, a Negro, is 47 years old and was born in Forest City, Ark. He is married, has four children and lives at 1382 Arlington avenue. He went through ninth grade at Madison Training School, Madison, Ark. He is a Democratic precinct worker.

His program as a candidate calls for: "Guarantees to all people of the right to work, live where they choose and have free access to all public places regardless of race or creed, with severe penalties for violators"; local control over Public Service Co. and other public utilities, also over the police department; eliminate "all remnants" of spoils system and establish 40-hour week and unemployment insurance for all city employes; establish citizen advisory committees for all city departments.

ROBERT GRANT WALSH—An attorney with offices at 705 Olive street, Walsh lives at 9899 Riverview drive and has been active in north side affairs for some years. He was First Ward Democratic committeeman, 1944-48, and president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Missouri, 1944-45. He has been active also as a draft board chairman and helped write legislation simplifying administration of the Selective Service Act.

He was instrumental in successful opposition to placing of stockyards on North Broadway across from Bellefontaine Cemetery, in having the Mark Twain Expressway route shifted eastward to avoid needless property condemnations and in a fight for better bus transportation for Baden area.

Served on the City Board of Equalization in 1951 and 1953 by appointment of Mayors Joseph M. Darst and Raymond R. Tucker, respectively, and was a provisional police judge under both Mayors. He was active in support of the earnings tax and public improvement bond issue campaigns.

Walsh, 42 years old, was born in St. Louis, is married and has two sons. He attended St. Matthew's parochial school, McBride High School and St. Louis University Commerce and Law Schools.

He is on the COPE slate. His charter proposals call for home rule for public transportation and police and unification of city and county.

As a union leader he has been outspoken against race discrimination in industry, asserting that much persuasion along this line remains necessary in the labor movement.

During deliberations of the 1949-50 charter board of freeholders Webb was chairman of

13 Candidates on Citizens Slate, Nine Indorsed by Labor Group

Four Have Support of Both Organizations —Tucker and Many Politicians on Opposite Sides.

Names of 22 of the 45 candidates for the charter board of freeholders appear on slates which have received wide publicity — those of the Citizens Charter Committee, whose members were selected originally by a committee of St. Louis Award winners, and the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education.

The 13 candidates receiving the largest number of votes will form the board.

Voters will mark ballots by an X opposite the candidates of their choice. They may vote for fewer than 13, but if they vote for more than 13 their ballots will be invalidated.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker has thrown his support behind the Citizens Committee slate, while many politicians of both parties are on record for the COPE slate. Four candidates are on both slates.

The 13 candidates indorsed by the Citizens Committee are:

Colbert B. Broussard.
Frederick E. Busse.
John F. X. Callanan.
Major B. Einstein.
David M. Grant.
Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella.
Mel H. Krah.
John J. Nally.
Henry B. Pflager.
Mrs. Conrad Sommer.
George L. Stemmler.
William A. Webb.
Frank L. G. Weiss.

The four on the COPE slate as well as the Citizens Committee slate are Grant, Krah, Nally and Webb. Others on the COPE slate are:

Hugo P. Albrecht.
Mrs. Frank A. Becker.
James S. Corcoran.
Mrs. Rogers Deakin.
Sidney E. A. Knodel.
John H. Naber.
Miss Eleanor H. Schicht.
Philip M. Sestric.
Robert Grant Walsh.

Some unindorsed candidates have charged that preparation of slates is undemocratic. However, the current freeholder campaign, with two major slates, is in contrast to the similar campaign for charter freeholders in 1949, when no less than five slates were announced.

Sponsors then were the League of Women Voters, the Republican and Democratic city committees, the General Council on Civic Needs and the Progressive party. There was considerable overlapping of indorsements between the various groups. All 13 of the freeholders elected were on one or more slates. Twenty-nine of the 63 candidates in 1949 were without major indorsements.

Six of the 45 candidates this year are women, compared with only four among the 63 in 1949. All four were on the 1949 League of Women Voters slate and two were elected. They were Mrs. Becker, running again this year, and Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, now city Director of Public Welfare.

Women will figure in the election in another way. For the first time policewomen—10 of them—will be on relief duty for regular officers at precinct polling places.

the Central Trades & Labor Union charter revision committee. Last March he rejected an invitation to serve on the Citizens Charter Committee because he was considering filing as a freeholder candidate.

He has been indorsed both by the Citizens Committee and COPE.

Webb is 48 years old, a native of St. Louis, married, has four children and lives at 6029 Sutherland avenue. He attended public elementary schools and has a high school equivalent certificate issued by Harris Teachers College.

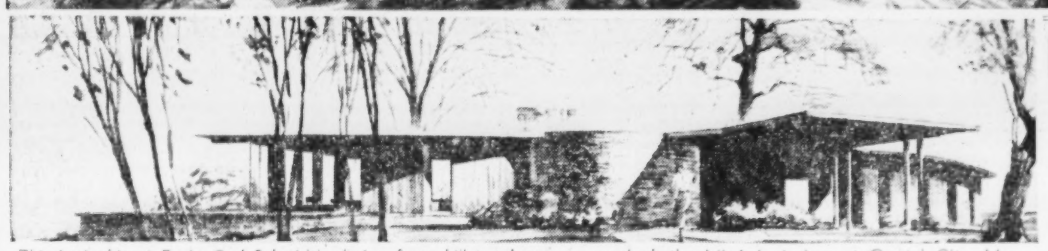
FRANK L. G. WEISS—He is owner of Union Hardware & Mercantile Co., 1428 Salisbury street, and former president of the Greater St. Louis Retail Hardware Association. ## Versailles Apartment Property Is Sold

The Versailles Apartments was sold last week by Continental Development Corporation, which had held title for Philip Schiffer, Eugene Glick, N. M. Glick and William S. Seltzer, to the Martin Steven Realty Co. Negotiations were by Martin O. B. Israel for the purchaser and William S. Seltzer & Co. for sellers. The 10-story building, buff brick and terra cotta trim, with entrance lobbies at 709 S. Skinker and 6208 Rotsbury, has 45 luxury units (eight rooms, three baths; seven rooms, three baths; six rooms, two baths; four rooms, one bath), gross annual income of about $121,000. There are two passenger elevators and a freight elevator; 50-car garage in separate two-story structure. Giraldin Brothers Real Estate Co., which financed earlier purchase through Great Western Life Assurance Co. of Winnepeg, and manages the property, will continue management. Lobbies recently were redesigned by interior decorations department of Lammert Furniture Co. and the exterior has been steam cleaned and painted.

Design for Hill Top House to Overlook Mississippi River at Crystal City



This is Architect Erwin Carl Schmidt's design for a hill top house to overlook the Mississippi river at Crystal City, Mo., for Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd N. Theusan. Working drawings are being developed and construction is expected to get under way by early summer. Glass inner face of the hemicycle plan will afford 270-degree view up and down river from southeast side of the house, in contrast to nearly solid northwest outer side which deepens into stone arc of the study. Plastic roof bubble will give light in this solid wall area. Elsewhere stone arch is flattened and broadened to seat height, and will be developed beyond the inclosure into retaining walls and terraces. Closets forming northwest face, and the roof, are to be constructed of four-inch tongue and grooved wood. All interior partitioning will be constructed of slab doors. Heating will be by radiant slab floor system.

Engineer Shop, Lab Job Begun

Construction has been started of a new $1,000,000 experimental laboratory, shops and office building at the southeast corner of Macklind and Berthold avenues for the Lambert Engineering Co., reports the office of Syl G. Schmidt & Associates, architects-engineers, who have done the designing and have charge of the development.

The building will rise on the site of the old Missouri Riding Stables property, running the entire block between Berthold and Wise avenues, by a distance of 320 feet east of Macklind.

The building will contain 90,000 square feet of floor space, of which 60,000 square feet will be shops, laboratory testing and development area.

The front part of the structure, facing Berthold, will be two stories in height, and will contain general administrative offices. The main entrance is to be at the corner of the property, set back 80 feet from Macklind avenue, and will be approached over a patterned brick and block terraced court floor, from either Macklind or Berthold. An existing large tree will remain to provide an attractive focal point at the entrance.

On High Spot.

The structure will set on one of the high spots in the city and will be visible from the express highway.

On Macklind avenue the facade will rise one story at the corner with the two-story administrative section to the east carrying over it to the shops section.

The shops and laboratory section will extend along Macklind all the way to Wise avenue on the south, and east along Wise avenue to the truck concourse, a distance of about 225 feet.

The design of the exterior is contemporary with fire resistive materials being used throughout. A feature of the exterior treatment is a two-story high, Bedford stone wall covering a third of the Berthold facade on which a large illuminated colored enamel and stainless steel company sign will be mounted. The balance of the two-story north section will present heavy aluminum mullions extending the full height to the roof line, with blue paneled wall construction between floors and projected aluminum sash. To the east, and set back from the street, will run the shipping, receiving and dock areas.

The front entrance wall will rise two stories, of plate glass and aluminum construction, through which will be visible an open modern stairs. Extending westward from the entrance, the same treatment will continue for the one-story section, with a large wrap-around planting box against the Bedford stone wall at the west side.

Williamsburg Brick.

The shops, laboratory and experimental one-story section to the south will be enclosed with sill-high brick walls, cast sills, painted steel sash fenestrated with glare-reducing glass. Painted metal siding will extend from top of sash to aluminum roof fascia, around area.

The brick to be used will be a soft velvet textured Williamsburg pink, contrasting with blue panels of the wall construction,

Dorm Bids At U. of M. Requested

Plans drawn by St. Louis architects Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum went last week to contractors for bids on two new men's dormitory units for the University of Missouri at Columbia. President Elmer Ellis said that this marks the actual start of a $10,000,000 dormitory program, ultimately designed to house 3000 additional students on the campus, partly financed by appropriations from the recent Missouri Building Bond Issue.

The architects' design calls for the use of a new type of interlocking pre-cast concrete slab construction, but contractors were also invited to bid on a conventional type of reinforced concrete column and beam construction.

Three separate buildings, two dormitory units and a dining-lounge building, will face a courtyard on the block square site. The dining-lounge, at the west end of the court and connected to the dormitories by covered walks, will have separate service entrances directly from the street, away from the courtyard. A slope of the site permits a partly at-grade level basement for the dining lounge, in which will be housed the kitchen, mechanical and refrigeration equipment and storage space. The ground level, with a spacious terrace at each end, will contain a large lounge, cafeteria, snack bar, mail room, rest rooms and laundry facilities for students.

The two dormitory units will each have four entrances, and will be divided vertically into separate "houses," or student groups, for social and student government organization.

Each of the total of eight "houses" will have its own lounge and social facilities, as well as shower and toile facilities on each floor. An apartment for the head resident will contain a kitchenette.

Dormitory rooms will be finished with asphalt tile floors, and painted masonry walls and ceilings. Corridors and lounges will have acoustical tile ceilings.

New Shoe Store Downtown

Work on New Building Started

This is a sketch of new building under construction for Swank's, Inc., dealer in audio-visual equipment and supplies, on Skinker boulevard just north of Delmar boulevard. Innovation will be an after-hours drive-up depository for return of rented films, patterned after the night-depository systems used by banks.

Crestwood Community Group Building Community Swimming Pool

Under construction adjacent to the St. Louis Water Co.'s standpipe property (see tank in background) in Crestwood is a community-financed, Olympic-sized swimming pool and facilities, which will be operated when finished by a community organization. Ownership will be vested in an organization called the Rosebrook Real Estate Co., a Missouri corporation of Crestwood residents, and operation will be under lease from the owning corporation by a closed membership club of 350 families.

Glasgow Village People Will Dedicate Parks and Playgrounds There Today

Dedication of 25 acres of parks and playgrounds to the people of Glasgow Village, represented by Glasgow Village Improvement Association, will be held 1:30 p.m. today.

Ceremonies will be held at the new four-diamond ball park at the foot of Roderick drive in the Village, where the Improvement Association will erect a plaque naming the ball park the Clarence T. Wilson Park in honor of the developer of Glasgow Village.

St. Louis county officials will attend, and the dedication speech will be made by Charles R. Skow, secretary of Park Recreation for St. Louis county. Ken Gavin of Glasgow Village will act as master of ceremonies.

After the ceremony C. T. Wilson will throw out the first ball for four opening softball games of the Glasgow Village Men's League.

The acreage for parks and playgrounds was set aside and developed as a result of Wilson's philosphy that it takes more than modern designed homes to make a modern community. It takes people working, playing and planning together to bring out the spirit of helpful neighborliness which makes any community really progressive and civically inclined. He feels that subdivision developers are obligated to help mold that spirit by making sure the people have the proper facilities for community activities.

Opening Tomorrow Prepared

Construction of five new drive-in and walk-up windows on Lucas avenue side of Bank of St. Louis, 901 Washington avenue, was completed last week and full-scale use of the facilities will get underway tomorrow, Arthur Blumeyer, president, reports.

The installation will be dedicated in a special program next Wednesday, at 11:30 a.m., when Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, Blumeyer, members of the bank's board of directors, officers, employes and guests will gather to officially open the new facilities.

Focal point of the program will be when Frederick B. von Harten and his sister, Miss Anne Eleonor von Harten, who

People of Crestwood Form Company, Building Community Swim Pool

A company of the people of Crestwood, organized as a Missouri corporation called the Rosebrook Real Estate Co., has undertaken to construct a community swimming pool facility and through a second organization will operate it as a closed membership club.

The pool and dressing rooms are to be built . . . work on the pool is under way . . . on a tract of one and one-fifth acres adjoining the St. Louis County Water Co.'s Crestwood standpipe tank, west of Sappington road and north of Highway 66. The pool will have Olympic standards, a shallow place for children to play, a spray pool, in addition to dressing and shower facilities, a 20-foot wide sundeck all around, and the whole will be enclosed by a high, cyclone-type fence.

Elmore Riggs is president of the Rosebrook Real Estate Co., builder and owner of the pool property; L. Rolph is vice-president; Stanley Brook, secretary-treasurer. The club which will handle operation of the property under lease will be headed by Charles Kunkle as president.

The pool has been designed by Architects John Muldoon and Don Topping, Crestwood residents, and the general contractor is the Buckley Construction Co. Plumbing work is being done by the Arthur Meier Plumbing Co.

Development of the pool is being carried out with direction

Hope E. & R. Church to Lay Cornerstone Today

This is a sketch from Architect Ernest T. Friton of the Hope Evangelical and Reformed Church, Tamm and Eichelberger avenues, St. Louis Hills, where a cornerstone is to be laid at 3:30 p.m. today in the construction of the sanctuary, which will complete work begun in 1950 with erection of an educational building. The Brockmeyer Construction Co. has the general contract for the contemporary Romanesque structure.

together with the alumilited finish of sash and mullions—an eye-arrestiing colorful spot in an otherwise drab section will enliven the area.

To the east of the building will be provided a large area for parking; a through truck concourse will extend from Berthold to Wise avenue. A cyclone fence will run along the east and south side of the property with returns to the building walls to provide property protection required for Government contract work.

Interiorwise, the first floor of the administrative area will contain a plate glass enclosed vestibule at the entrance leading into a large reception lobby, off of which will rise the open stairs to the second floor, and in front of which (and between it and the plate glass exterior wall) will be an indoor planting box to provide continuity of outdoor feeling through to the lobby.

From the reception lobby, access will be had to a first floor conference room, general offices, private offices, a large all-purpose room with built-in kitchenette, a large drafting and design room, blueprinting room, a fireproof vault for the storage of tracings and restrictive Government material, toilets and coat room. The second floor area will contain executive offices (a stair hall will lead to the second floor reception room off of which the president's suite will be entered through a closed off foyer, containing a period Georgian Room with ceiling height paneled walls, special built-in gun and trophy cases, a private dark room, toilet and shower for personal use.)

Color Throughout.

Adjoining the president's office will be a special conference room with built-in bar service facilities. Four other private offices with secretaries between will string out along the north wall; the balance of the area will contain general office, special offices, a fireproof vault, purchasing department, payroll section and auditors' rooms, toilets, interior communicating stairs to shops area and a large equipment room.

Acoustical ceilings will be used throughout. Partitions are to be of tile, wood and metal, sub-floors of concrete on metal decking supported by structural steel columns and beams and covered with asphale tile finish. The lobby floor, stairs and second floor stair hall are to be of terrazzo. Toilets and rest room floors and walls will be covered with ceramic tile. Doors, trim and bankers' partitions will be of oak construction. Color dynamics will be employed throughout. Foam glass insulation and composition roof will cover this part of the structure.

Open Steel Frame.

The shops and experimental areas will be constructed of open steel columns and beams and bar joists for roof support, painted concrete block walls, concrete block and metal partitions and steel sash. The area will contain the experimental rooms, special purpose and experiment rooms, environmental testing department, fabrication and certification rooms, maintenance, shops, tool and die shops, turret and lathe department, drill and milling machine department, inspection room, sub and final assembly departments, industrial fan assembly department, concrete finishing machine assembly line, punch press department, metal cleaning department, finished parts storage, stock room and storage areas, boxing and crating, shipping and receiving, personnel entrance foyer, personnel hiring and waiting rooms and offices.

Tiled toilets, washroom, locker, restrooms and showers will be provided.

A large lunchroom and Government office will be located on a mezzanine level in the center of the building. Floor in the above area will be hardened cement with asphalt tile finish floor at the mezzanine level. The entire roof area will be composition over insulation board.

The structure will be heated by a low pressure boiler, with steam for the shops and laboratory area, and hot water perimeter heat for the administrative section, supplemented with forced warm air from ceiling diffusers.

Operations Changed.

The administrative area will be air-conditioned with some offices in the shops section and the Government office also. Illumination for the administrative area will be by recessed fluorescent troffers; in the shops, laboratory and experimental section the lighting will be by continuous open fluorescent fixtures.

The entire building will be sprinklered.

Lambert Engineering Co. headed by Stafford L. (Casey) Lambert was founded in 1940 under the name of Lambert Ordnance Co. and was located at 3100 Locust street. With the advent of the Arms Embargo Act, the nature of the business changed, consequently the company was renamed the Lambert Engineering Co. and has devoted its time and effort to product development, production, and the manufacture of aircraft components for the various aircraft manufacturers.

Due to expanding production needs, the present building at 918 South Boyle avenue was acquired in 1946.

In 1948 Lambert Engineering Co. engaged in experimental and development work for the Air Force. This again necessitated the expanding of production facilities, the building was enlarged to 26,000 square feet, occupying two stories.

Since that time the company has worked closely with the military in developing and producing products for the national defense effort.

While at times this schedule has demanded the major part of the company's capacity, the new quarters at 1100 Macklind avenue will make available greater capacity for the development and production of civilian goods.

Film Firm Building Drive-Up

Construction has been started of a new building on Skinker, just north of Delmar boulevard, for Swank's, Inc., sales rental and service dealer in audio-visual equipment and spplies.

"No where else, to our knowledge," said Ray Swank, the firm's founder and president, "can one see and hear in a single showroom, every proven make of audio-visual equipment, from the home-type to huge convention hall sizes.

Since 1938, Swank's has supplied films to schools, churches, businesses, and has one of the country's most extensive film libraries.

The new building will be air conditioned, will have floor space totaling 8000 square feet on two levels. The first floor will be for sales and service, basement area warehouse for new and rental equipment. Rentals films will also be kept in the basement.

All acoustical areas will have random perforated tiles for sound fidelity, as well as decorative effect.

An innovation in the building will be arrangement for after hours return of rented films through a built-in, weather-protected receptacle and gravity chute. Another "first-time-anywhere" will be use of "shopping-carts."

It will be possible for one person or small groups to see and hear films in individual, sound proof screening rooms, of which there will be a number.

The building is being built by H. B. Deal, general contractor, for S. D. Rossi, Inc., who has leased it to Swank's for a long term.

Baker Shoe Back to 6th Corner Site

The original St. Louis Baker's Shoe Store, located for 28 years in downtown St. Louis, is moving from Seventh and St. Charles back to Sixth street at the southwest corner of Washington avenue. The grand opening is scheduled for next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Baker's is a division of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., of St. Louis, the nation's largest exclusive women's shoe retailer.

According to Harry Edison, president of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., the opening of the spacious new Baker's, comprising two selling floors, is indicative of the faith his company has in the future of downtown St. Louis. "We have met the shopping needs of suburban customers by opening Baker's stores in Northland Center, Jennings; in Clayton, opposite Famous-Barr, and in Stix, Baer & Fuller's Westroads development," said Edison, "but we also feel that downtown will remain a vital shopping district and that business will increase because of new parking facilities and greater traffic control."

The new store has an imposing facade of Cherokee red spectrim and signs of white porcelain with turquoise neon tubing. Extending glass show windows are trimmed in pink terra cotta while the complete store front is outlined in brown terra cotta.

A new and varied collection of dress shoe fashions has been assembled on the main floor while casuals and slipper will be found on the lower level.

Both floors are carpeted in yellow and brown tweed. Walls are painted off-peach and contrasted by olive-green accents. Appointments include chairs of beige, white and copper stripes.

The main floor has a drop ceiling painted a pumpkin shade while the stairwell and basement columns feature simulated grass cloth in pumpkin and gold.

Both fluorescent and incandescent systems are used to give sufficient light without glare.

Baker's also uses modern methods of temperature control.

Jones-Kissner Construction Co. of St. Louis was the contractor and the architectural design was done by Edison Brothers Architectural Department.

Dow Chemical's Sales Office in Clayton Building

The Dow Chemical Company's St. Louis sales office has occupied new quarters in a recently completed office building in suburban Clayton, it is reported by Donald Williams, vice president and director of sales.

Located at 10 South Brentwood boulevard, the new office was established as part of the Dow sales department's expansion activities in behalf of more effective service to customers. The former office quarters were at 3615 Olive street.

Manager of the office is Glenn H. O'Neal, a veteran of 32 years with Dow. The St. Louis territory includes Missouri, Kansas, Wyoming, western Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, northern Mississippi, western Kentucky, southwestern Indiana and the southern half of Illinois. The office handles general chemicals, plastics, magnesium and agricultural chemicals.

The new quarters occupy the fourth floor, an area of about 10,000 square feet. Dowell Incorporated, a Dow subsidiary, will also change its sales activities to the same location.

Mystery Marks Realty Women's 'Bosses' Night

Slick black invitations printed in white, depicting the mysterious, were issued last week by the Women's Division St. Louis Real Estate Board for their fifteenth anniversary party and the tenth of which has been dedicated to their "bosses" to be held Wednesday evening, May 16, in the Starlight Roof of the Chase Hotel. As in the past, it will be preceded by a cocktail party in the Zodiac Cocktail Lounge.

Mrs. Mabel N. Kisling, vice president of the Title Insurance Corporation and a past president of the division, who, since its inception has written and produced the humorous show which is the main event of the evening, will again be author and producer of the bosses' night skits. She is being assisted by Mrs. Jayne H. Pulliam, immediate past president, as vice chairman of the affair.

Mrs. Clara Pendleton Welsch is president of the women's division.

Lambert

trical engineering firm, consulting engineers for Lambert Engineering Company, will occupy space on the first floor of the new building.

Lambert Engineering Company does complete research, planning, designing, tooling and production service with little or no subcontracting, permiting tight control of operations.

One of the unusual features in this new plant will be environmental testing in all phases, as required by the military, thereby setting another milestone in Lambert history by making it the largest and most complete environmental testing laboratory in the midwest.

The general contractor for the new project is V & M Contracting Company; Eichler Company, mechanical contractor; Plumbing Service Co., plumbing and sewering work; Thos. J. Sheehan Co., sprinkler contractor; Guarantee Electrical Company, electrical contractor.

Bank Sets Drive-up Opening

have had accounts with the bank almost since its founding in 1913, drive up in a 1913 Ford automobile driven by its owner, George L. Sullivan, of Socony Mobil Oil Co., to make the first deposit.

A band appropriately dressed will play music popular during the period, and brief talks will be made by the Mayor and Blumeyer. Following the ceremonies the guests will be shown the operation of the new drive-in windows and then will be taken through the walk-up department.

Blumeyer stated that the new facilities were installed to meet the increasing demand for drive-in and parking service; to beautify and modernize the area, and "to evidence the bank's faith in the future of downtown St. Louis."

A feature of the drive-in and walk-up windows is use of television equipment by which tellers will be able to request information concerning accounts from employes in the checking and savings department and information will be transmitted by cameras back to small screens in front of the tellers.

The bank's parking lot on the north side of Lucas avenue has been resurfaced, the walls of adjoining buildings repaired and painted, and large attractive metal streamer signs erected along the street side of the lot.

REGULARS INCREASED.

Increased use of the conventional mortgage loan as opposed to the government-subsidized FHA and VA loan has been noted by the United States Savings and Loan League. Conventional lending accounted for 57 per cent of housing starts in the first quarter of this year, compared to 50 per cent in the first quarter of 1955.

New Home in Bennett Hills Subdivision Bought

New home at 1524 Renderer drive in Everett Schneider's Bennett Hills subdivision, off Manchester road just west of Warson Village, which has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. John Dugan. Dugan, said the Dolan Realty Co., agency in the sale, is real estate and tax officer of the Terminal Railroad. The home has three bedrooms, two baths, full basement, automatic heat, dishwasher and disposal unit. Dolan said 72 homes have been built and are now occupied in the subdivision. A third section of the development is expected to get under way soon.

Green Stamp Centers Set Up for Area

The Sperry and Hutchinson Co., which claims to be the nation's oldest and largest trading stamp firm, has opened two new redemption centers here for S&H Green Stamp savers in the St. Louis area.

Located at 3205 South Kingshighway in St. Louis and 10615 Manchester in Kirkwood, each store displays more than 1500 items of nationally-advertised merchandise.

"Opening these stores is one of the highlights of our company's sixtieth anniversary and brings the number of S&H Green Stamp redemption centers throughout the United States to more than 400," according to Herbert R. Newman, of Chicago, vice president.

The local redemption stores are each 9000 square feet in size, and were designed by Allen H. Dahme and Associates, of Grand Rapids, Mich. General contractor was the Don C. Musick Construction Co., of St. Louis.

"The design and construction of these stores places them with the most modern and up-to-date stores in the St. Louis area," according to John Sokolowski, of Chicago, merchandise manager.

Both stores are air-conditioned and parking space has been provided.

The local centers will be supplied from the S&H warehouse in Chicago, which is the company's largest unit.

The stores are staffed by local personnel, supervised by Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, of 5802 Columbia av., St. Louis, the Kingshighway store manager, and Mrs. Rita Maher, of 761 Westgate av., University City, the Kirkwood store manager.

Sales offices for the St. Louis area are located in the Kirkwood store, under the direction of a branch manager, to be appointed at a future date, according to Robert A. Sawhill, of Peoria, Ill., acting state manager.

The St. Louis branch is part of the Chicago district, which consists of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana. Established in 1896, the company's home office is in New York City, where direction of the 48 state operation is coordinated. S&H Green Stamps are given by more than 70,000 merchants from coast-to-coast and are saved by more than 20,000,000 women. The company redeems billions of stamps annually.

Local representation includes Bettendorf's supermarkets and scores of service stations, drug stores, dry cleaners and hardware stores.

Named Manager

Lester Hodges has been named general sales manager of George F. Doering, Inc., a firm which does real estate brokerage, mortgage banking and subdivision development. Doering said he is handling the financing of about 400 new residential units this year, in addition to other activity.

Community Pool

from the St. Louis County Health Department and the Missouri Health Department, with relation to water purity, etc. Water change will be handled on a six-hour turnover pattern, with a filter of diatomacious earth. For night swimming the pool will be lighted both above and below the water's surface.

Financing of the project has been done by the selling of shares in the ownership corporation. A total of 350 families, which will constitute a closed membership total, pay into the organization a $20 initial fee, $10 a share for ownership shares in the corporation, and a federal excise tax of $4, a total cost to each of $154. In addition, each family will pay an annual club dues of $18 which will pay for operations, that is, water, chemicals, power, cleanings, etc.

Share purchase and membership agreements stipulate that when any participant desires or has reason to leave the organization, his rights will be sold back to the organization itself. Thereby, any shifting that takes place in membership will be constantly under control of the owners and operating organization.

Construction cost of the facility has been estimated at $50,000 to $55,000.

$100 BILLION INVESTED.

American families have invested more than $100 billion in new housing since the end of World War II, reports the United States Savings and Loan League. This huge sum represented the purchase of over 100 million new homes built in the last ten years.

Girl Scouts Camp Work Under Way

Construction of expanded facilities that will make it possible to serve 192 more girl campers than last year (when 586 attended camp) is in progress at the Greater St. Louis Girl Scout Council's Camp Cedarledge at Pevely, Mo.

Included in the $187,987 contract are a new dining hall and kitchen, a new swimming pool, bath and filter-house, two new "unit" houses, an infirmary, 16 tent frames, four latrines, new bridges, remodeling of some existing structures, and the drilling of a new water well and installation of mains to various parts of the camp.

The well is to be put down 600 to 800 feet, probably into the Robidoux strata, and new mains will be laid below frost line so water will be available in the camp through the winter.

Bridgework includes widening and strengthening an existing structure to permit large delivery trucks with foodstuffs, etc., to reach the new kitchens. One bridge is to be removed and replaced with a concrete slab on stream bottom, for wading, etc.

The new dining room will be 47 by 72 feet, with stone fireplace, large entrance porch; frame on slab on grade with screened sides, open timbered roof, capable of seating 250 at a time for meals. The kitchen will be of concrete block with wood frame windows, flat wood roof, will have stainless steel equipment.

The pool will be L-shaped, 108 feet by 60-40 feet (5400 square feet) to accommodate 200 at a time, will be of poured, reinforced concrete with wide concrete sundecks, chain-link fence enclosure. The bathhouse will be concrete slab on grade with wood walls, no roof, two units having 20 showers each, toilet, lavatory, thermostat controlled, coal-fired boiler; master shower control. The filter house will have diatomaceous earth filter, chlorinator, recirculating system.

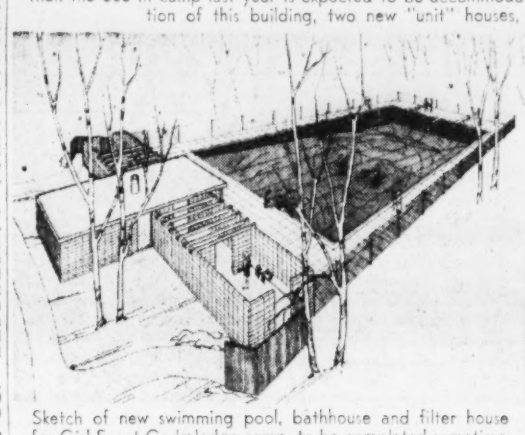
Each unit house will have large living room, a kitchen, a large porch, a store room; be equipped to serve for winter week-end camping. (In summer girls sleep in tents). The infirmary will have entrance porch, examination room, ward for six patients, a nurses' quarters, will be suitable for use as a troop cabin in winter.

Wood platforms 12 by 14 feet on concrete posts will be used for erection of wall tents. Latrines with concrete pits and bases, wood framing, will be placed to serve each troop area.

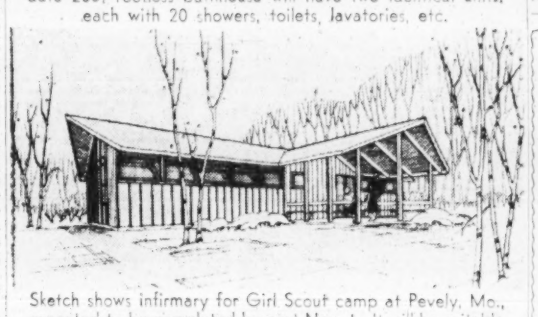
The Brockmeyer Construction Co. has the general contract, the Arthur Maier Plumbing Co. the plumbing work, J. Livingston & Co. the electrical contract. Designing has been done by Eric W. Smith and Associates.

Work Begun on Girl Scout Camp Facilities

Sketch from Architect Eric W. Smith Jr. and Robert Entzroth, associate, shows dining hall and kitchen installation, part of a $187,987 building program under way at Camp Cedarledge, Pevely, Mo., to increase camp's capacity for Greater St. Louis Girl Scout Council's summer camping program. Completion by July 1 is contemplated. Total of 192 more girls than the 586 in camp last year is expected to be accommodated this year through construction of this building, two new "unit" houses, other facilities.



Sketch of new swimming pool, bathhouse and filter house for Girl Scout Cedarledge camp, to be completed sometime during this summer. It will have 5400 square feet, accommodate 200; roofless bathhouse will have two identical units, each with 20 showers, toilets, lavatories, etc.



Sketch shows infirmary for Girl Scout camp at Pevely, Mo., expected to be completed by next Nov. 1. It will be suitable for use as winter camp cabin.

Foster Builders Move Into New, Larger Quarters

The Foster Construction Co. has moved to new and larger quarters at 8229 Maryland avenue, which is the newly completed Louderman Building.

The Foster Construction Co., developers of subdivisions in University City, Ladue, Olivette, Florissant, Des Peres and St. Louis county, has obtained larger quarters to add a general real estate office, with salesmen for both its own developments and trade-in sales.

Also associated with Foster Construction Co. is Jerry Mason Construction Co., said C. H. Foster, president of Foster Construction Co. Jerry Mason, formerly vice president of C. T. Wilson Construction Corp., will specialize in contract building and commercial development.

Acres Added To Shopping Center Plaza

Three more acres of ground have been purchased to enlarge the plaza of the Crestwood Plaza Shopping Center, under construction on Highway 66 at Sappington road, report Louis I. and Milton L. Zorensky, owners and developers.

Several additional leases have been signed for stores in the 34-acre development, it was reported last week. Newest signers include Bond Clothers for a retail store of 15,000 square feet; Lerner Shops (women's clothing) for a store of 14,140 square feet; Phelan-Faust Paintcraft store of Kirkwood and Webster, for a store of 5600 square feet, and the Libson Shops for a unit of their women's ready-to-wear chain.

Earlier leases were made to Sears Roebuck & Co. for 156,000 square fet; Kroger Grocer & Baking Co., Walgreen Drug Co., F. W. Woolworth Co., National Shirt Shops, Thom McAn Shoes, Pam's International Shoes and the Cotton Shop.

Negotiations are proceeding for a second major department store of 150,000 square feet, the developers said.

Construction, by the I. E. Millstone Construction Co., is going ahead at a rapid rate. Openings early next year are anticipated. The Center will have parking for more than 3000 cars within walking distance to its 36 stores.

Three in Realty Field Seek Seat With Freeholders

Three persons active in the field of real estate brokerage seek seats on the board of freeholders proposed to draft a new charter for the city of St. Louis, it was pointed out to members of the St. Louis Real Estate Board last week in a letter signed by Joseph A. Goeke Sr., president; Sheldon H. Stock, secretary, and Clarence C. Lang, executive-secretary of the board.

Voting on personnel for the proposed board is to be held in the city Tuesday, May 8.

The three listed by the real estate board are Hugo P. Albrecht, formerly district director here of the Federal Housing Administration, now a sales associate with the Phelim O'toole Realty Co.; John M. Bowlin, a sales associate of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., Inc., and Ernest M. Potts, a sales associate of the Federer Realty Co., Inc.

Although the St. Louis Real Estate Board did not undertake to indorse either the slate chosen by the executive committee of the Citizens Committee, or any other slate, or any of the three persons it cited, the letter, never-the-less, lamented that no person representative of the real estate business had been chosen for a place on the Citizens Committee slate, "considering the large contribution real estate is required to make to the cost of city government." The board believes some representative of the business should have a seat on the board of freeholders and thereby give real estate business a voice in the drafting of a new charter, the letter related.

All Not Heavy That Looks So

Among other new garden gimmicks available in this year's market there are lightweight bird baths, sun dials, gazing balls, etc. The secret of their lightweight? They're hollow. Yet they can be weighted down at home. The tops come off and the hollow core may be filled with sand or earth or other suitable material.

Takes Management

Rube Gorden, owner of the Belcher Hotel at 407 Lucas, has assumed active management of the Belcher Health Baths with Dr. Joseph H. Scroggins, a chiropractor and masseur at the establishment.

Proposed 'Finance Building' for Autumn Jubilee

This is a sketch of a proposed finance building to be erected for the Mid-America Jubilee on the St. Louis riverfront next September. A single story, 80-foot by 30-foot building of contemporary design, it would house exhibits of banking, investment and insurance groups. In the picture (from left): Alfred Stern, managing director of the Mid-America Jubilee; Arthur Hemminger, vice-president of the First National Bank and chairman of the Jubilee Finance Committee; and Joe Dettling, Gardner Advertising Company assistant executive art director, who made the sketch. Stern and Jack Robinson, art director-designer of the Jubilee, outlined plans for riverfront celebration at a meeting of the Art Directors Club of St. Louis last Thursday night.

Hails Lilac Necessary, Good Shrub

By ROBERT T. VAN TRESS
Chicago Daily News Garden Editor

CHICAGO (CDNS)—One of the indispensable shrubs for the home grounds, whether it be large or small, is the lilac.

The common lilac has always been known for its good qualities — surviving under severe cold and excessive heat, full sunlight or partial shade and soil of almost any type providing it is fairly rich and moderately well drained.

Lilacs may be used as tall screen hedges, for massing, for specimens and for their abundant blooms. They are unexcelled by any other shrub, blooming even under adverse conditions.

Lilacs also make desirable cut flowers, if cut in the cool of the day and placed immediately in water. Some varieties wilt soon after cutting, but if some of the bark is removed from the stems and they are plunged in almost boiling water, the flowers will revive.

With the introduction of the so-called French hybrid lilacs, the original old-fashioned type is seldom used now except for mass planting. The famous French hybridist Victor Lemoine, was responsible for the improvement in size and color of the flower.

The late John Dunbar of Rochester, N.Y., also originated a number of choice varieties.

Any description of the French hybrids would necessarily fall short of their real beauty of form, color and size of the panicles. In fragrance, however, the old-fashined lilac is still superior.

While it is one of the best known shrubs for landscape planting, there are many handsome species of the lilac family still waiting recognition. These relatives of the common lilac have merit for the sake of variety and prolong the blooming season.

The Chinese lilac is a vigorous and free flowering shrub from eight to 10 feet in height, superior to the common lilac in the looseness and gracefulness of its branches.

The flowers are an attractive reddish purple. It requires very little pruning or attention and is one of the best high growing, general purpose shrubs for home planting.

The Persian lilac is lower growing, producing slender, arching branches with rather small, oval leaves. The fragrant flowers vary from pale lilac to white, appearing shortly after the common lilac.

The late lilac is a variety with large leaves and excellent habit, about eight feet tall, producing pinkish flowers. It is valuable nor its flowering habit and should be used in groups and masses for distant effects.

Tht last lilac to bloom is the Japanese tree lilac. It has the distinction of being the largest and most tree-like, with large leathery leaves and big clusters of creamy-white flowtrs. It needs a rich, moist soil and will attain a height of 20 feet, with a clean, stout trunk with bark like that of the cherry.

Construction on Chambers Started

Construction of a new automobile filling and service station has been started at the intersection of Chambers road and Scottsdale drive, the Arthur Fischman Realty Co., reports. It is scheduled for completion in August.

The property has been preleased to the Shell Oil Co. for 15 years through Fischman's office, which also is doing the building.

Pool House for Park Operation

This 125-year-old brick home on a hill northeast of the intersection of Brown road and Natural Bridge road has been remodeled by the Holiday Hill recreational enterprise to serve as administration building and as pool house (i.e., dressing rooms, showers, etc.) for the new swimming pool to be opened there about May 30.

Old House Remodeled By Holiday

Remodeling of a 125-year-old St. Louis county landmark as the administration building and swimming pool facility for Holiday Hill recreation area at Natural Bridge and Brown roads in Berkeley was completed this week, William H. Zimmerman, president, reports.

The Georgian colonial structure sits on a hill overlooking the Champ Dairy Farm and the new municipal airport and is a familiar site to pilots landing at Lambert Field. It is adjacent to the new Holiday Hill swimming pool which will be open to the public about May 30.

Zimmerman said the "building has been remodeled inside and out" under his own contracting. The first floor houses dressing rooms, a snack bar, check room and shower rooms, while the second floor contains the offices of his $500,000 recreation area enterprise which incorporates 45 acres.

Leased From Champ.

Walls of the building—which is painted bright pink with black columns at the entrance—have been waterproofed. Showers are temperature controlled and the facility meets all the sanitary regulations of the county and state, Zimmerman said.

He pointed out that the building is a sign of its time, being constructed with handmade nails, horse-hair morter, unfinished lumber and has a 22-inch foundation.

The Holiday Hill recreation area corporation leased the land from Norman B. Champ, owner of the dairy farm. The Champ family bought 380 acres of ground in 1913 from Joe Lucas, who operated a race horse stock farm. The ground is believed to be a part of an original 3000 acres owned by the Brown family for which Brown road was named, and the building part of the original mansion of the Brown estate.

Costly Development.

Zimmerman said he spent four years in planning the recreation site as largest of type in St. Louis and the nation offering activities for the entire family, including a nine-hole "pitch and put" golf course. He formerly owned the Zim Record Brush Co. here and the Pro Fairways at Natural Bridge road and Goodfellow boulevard.

About $125,000 was spent to get the area in shape, Zimmerman commented. "We spent $30,000 in grading, $35,000 for rock and limestone, $35,000 for electrical work, $25,000 for sewage and plumbing. Tons of grass seed and fertilizer were used." He said the golf course is the first one in the area to have Bermuda grass on the greens.

Among Holiday Hill features are a kiddie land, a 19-hole miniature golf course, golf driving tee, archery range, baseball pitching and batting range, self operating rides such as miniature army tanks, sports cars and gas farm tractors, and the longest train ride of its kind in St. Louis—three-fourths of a mile—in an exact replica of a diesel.

Sales Course Set

The Reliance Real Estate Co., Kingshighway and Chippewa and 6320 West Florissant, will conduct a free training class in real estate selling beginning tomorrow at the north side office. Classes will also be conducted at the south side office later.

Class will be conducted two evenings each week for six weeks. Subject matter will include Missouri real estate law, financing of real estate transactions, requirements of the state real estate examination, and techniques of selling real estate.

He can't use the rear entrance door at all. An earlier tenant with squatter's rights, is in possession, a mama robin with a nest of baby robins. ## Resident Lighting Forum Will Hear Woman Consultant

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Resident Lighting Forum, sponsored by the St. Louis Section of the Illuminating Engineering Society will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday in the tenth floor auditorium of the Union Electric Building, Twelfth and Locust streets.

Miss Reynolds

The guest speaker for this meeting is Miss Jan Reynolds, home-lighting consultant for the Sylvania Electric Corporation, an authority of home lighting and allied subjects throughout the United States and Canada. Her discussion, "Brighter Living," will include colored slides of residential interiors, as well as a color box display showing the effect of light on color. Of a non-technical nature, her discussion will be of interest to everyone engaged in the art of lighting and interior decorating, society spokesmen said.

The Forum will also hold a business meeting at which officers for the coming year will be elected. Coffee and rolls will be served at 6 p.m.

5000 Are Invited For G.M.C.'s New Center Dedication

DETROIT — Five thousand persons from throughout the United States and Canada have been invited here to help General Motors dedicate its giant new Technical Center May 15-16.

Leaders in science, education, industry, business, press, radio and television will take part in a two-day program formally dedicating the 330-acre center "to a better tomorrow through research today."

Started in 1949, the center is the largest and most modern research facility ever developed by industry anywhere. Four thousand scientists, engineers, stylists and technicians work in the 25 buildings which comprise this center of technological progress.

The dedication here will be the focal point of nation-wide observances in 71 G.M. plant localities. Plant cities celebrating in the United States and Canada, including St. Louis will join in the Detroit program through closed circuit television and radio hook-up.

The Detriot program will begin May 15 with a news conference with Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors.

A huge grandstand has been erected overlooking the center's 22-acre artificial lake for the formal ceremonies May 16. They will begin with the closed circuit television tour of the campus-like grounds for the benefit of plant city luncheon meetings.

Conreux, A.G.C. Manager, Heads Up Food Co-op

CHICAGO —J. C. Conreux, manager of the Associated Grocers' Company of St. Louis, Mo., has been re-elected president of the Co-operative Food Distributors of America and its affiliated organization, the National Retailer-Owned Grocers, Inc. Both organizations are headquartered in Chicago.

In his role as president of the Co-operative Food Distributors, Conreux directs the activities of the national association for retailer-owned food distributors. At present, 103 of these organizations are members of C.F.D.A., as the association is called. These firms supply foodstuffs to some 26,000 retail stores. Together, the membership of this important factor in the food industry do well over $9 billion in retail food sales. It is estimated that C.F.D.A. warehouses, through their member-retailers, account for 23 per cent of all the food business in the United States.

"The aims of C.F.D.A.," stated Conreux, "is to consistently educate its members in the intelligent practices of food distribution economies, so as to continually lower the cost of doing business, and thereby enable our retail members to sell foods to the homemaker at the lowest possible prices. It is our opinion that only through such exchange of information and ideas, can each of us succeed in holding down, in our individual markets, the retail prices of foods and enable our customers to purchase their food needs within their budgets."

The National Retailer-Owned Grocers, Inc., which also renamed Conreux as president, is responsible for the control of the private label program operated for the benefit of retailer-owned groups throughout the United States and Hawaii. In addition, this firm administers an insurance program for member groups.

MATSU DEFENSE KEYED TO IDEA IT CAN'T BE TAKEN

Nationalists Fortify Island Heavily Against Threat of Red China Invasion.

By SPENCER MOOSA

MATSU ISLAND, May 5 (AP) — This small Nationalist stronghold in the East China Sea could well be named "incredible outpost."

From even a short distance it seems to merge with Red China.

By military logic it appears untenable in the face of assault from the mainland—but not to Chiang Kai-Shek's high command and the defenders.

Even Americans, it seems, think Matsu can be held.

Or else why, it might be asked, should they station a military team here to train and advise the troops of Maj. Gen. Hwa Hsin Chuan?

Why should millions of dollars worth of American guns, radar equipment and other material be shipped here?

'Incredible Changes.'

But the really incredible thing about Matsu is the way in which the ever present threat of war has transformed this small island under the shadow of Red China's might.

Long trenches have been hewn out of hills and there are gun emplacements everywhere. Tunnels, supposedly impervious to conventional bombs and shells, house command posts. Cavernous ammunitions bunkers have been dug.

The tiny island, which formerly had nothing more than trails, is now crisscrossed with 34 miles of highway.

Amid all this building of defenses, the island's once barren hills, have been transformed by patient toil into terraced vegetable patches.

Only eight months ago all vegetables had to be imported from Formosa. Now they are grown here, in fields reaching to the very brim of gun emplacements.

Ignored by Civilians.

The civilians go about their work and play as if they had never heard of war.

A woman peacefully washes clothes in a small stream. Small boys, seeing visitors from Formosa, give the thumbs up signal and, proud of the only foreign word they know, shout "Okay."

An wizened old man ambles along a highway smoking a pipe.

No one pays any attention to the sound of the shellbursts.

A Nationalist officer explains casually that the Reds are firing at Kaoteng, a tiny island within sight of Matsu and even closer to Communist China.

Among other things, Matsu has a reforestation program. It is sponsored by the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction, a Chinese-American subsidiary of the International Co - operation Administration which sent tens of thousands of saplings to the island.

The soldiers who live here have scant recreation facilities, typified by an underground room with chairs, magazines and maybe a radio.

Spotlessly Clean.

One striking impression of Matsu is the spotless cleanliness of all military establishments.

Troops look in good physical condition. Their discipline is excellent and their morale appears very high. Most of the soldiers originally came from the mainland but have been retrained and re-equipped in Formosa.

The rest were recruited under compulsory military service laws introduced by the Nationalists in Formosa.

This time last year most of the troops were billeted in tents.

Today they are housed in quarters gouged out of the hills and affording good protection against conventional bombing.

Squalor Borne Well.

Civilian life in the 10 villages on the island is much more squalid.

The dwellings are crude and dilapidated, the smells strong and pungent, and there are many flies.

But the civilians, all things considered are cheerful, good-natured and optimistic.

Nationalist officers here say that if Chinese Communists invade Matsu they will be met with resistance as stern as American Marines found in invading Iwo Jima in World War II.

But the outcome, they assert, will be different: the Americans took Iwo Jima—the Chinese Reds will not take Matsu.

Commander Confident.

The most confident person here is the commander of the Matsu complex, Maj. Gen. Hwa, a 38-year-old native of the north China province of Shensi.

Gen. Hwa has clean-cut, handsome features and fine teeth. He is calm and has an easy manner. But his eyes flash when he talks of the Communist threats against Matsu.

"Matsu," he declares, "is a part of the Republic of China—and it will remain a part of the Republic of China."

The general is proud of his troops and what they have accomplished in the way of fortifying this island.

He points to a long subterranean communication tunnel, burrowed through sandstone, and says:

"Seven men worked nine months to build this tunnel."

But while his own troops furnished the labor to make a powerful fortress of Matsu, Gen. Hwa doesn't forget the Americans for the weapons they have supplied and the military team they station here to advise and train his forces.

"We greatly appreciate everything," he said.

"The team here is doing everything possible to help us."

WEDNESDAY 'TOWN HALL' EDUCATION MEETING SET

A "Town Hall Meeting on Education," one of a series sponsored throughout the city by the St. Louis Public Schools Advisory Committee, will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Beaumont High School, 3836 Natural Bridge avenue.

A panel that will answer questions from parents of elementary and high school pupils on the Beaumont district will include members of the Board of Education; Philip J. Hickey, superintendent of instruction; V. Harry Rhodes, commissioner of school buildings, and other members of the administrative staff.

The success of a similar meeting in February at McKinley High School prompted the Advisory Comittee to plan a series of the conferences in which responsible authorities will receive the views and questions of school patrons and answer them on the spot. Echeal T. Feinstein will conduct the question and answer period.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, May 5—A large building is going up on a hill across the Lake of Albano from the Pope's summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. A sign over the entrance reads "Pius XII Center for a Better World."

It is a new institution that Italian Catholic Action is building as a gift to the Pope. It will house the brains and motive power of a movement from which the Pope expects great things.

Starting from the simple idea that all men are brothers, the movement intends to reform the Roman Catholic Church from within and create a better world.

In the eyes of the men at the head of the new movement, the building will be a kind of "war college" in which a general staff will be trained to lead an army of Catholics to a "conquest of the world for Jesus."

Some of these new leaders will be apostles and preachers who will teach the new doctrines. Others will be practical men whose task will be to put the doctrines into effect.

The person who is keeping the movement in a constant forward motion is the Rev. Riccardo Lombardi of the Society of Jesus. He was once regarded as one of the greatest preachers in the world. In Italy people used to fight to get into halls and churches when he spoke.

"We are a voice crying in a desert," says the 47-year-old Father Lombardi, speaking of his movement. "We announce the social coming of Christ. We cry to society, 'Repent, for Jesus is at hand.'

"I shall dedicate what remains of my life to creating half a dozen apostles and perhaps as many as 1000 preachers who will continue my work. It is my dearest hope that America may one day become the voice of the new movement. It will be the culminating day of my life when she does so."

SOUTH VIET NAM REBELS VIOLENTLY OPPOSE U.S. FILMS

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1956.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, May 5—Dissident bands in the wilds of South Viet Nam have expressed violent criticism of United States propaganda films.

United States Information Service mobile units returning to Saigon yesterday reported the following:

In a village where the film, "This Is Your Army," was being shown to 500 Viet Namese the soldiers' performance was interrupted by a burst of Stengun fire that cut the screen in two.

In another village seven soldiers and 12 civilians were injured when somebody threw a concussion grenade from the darkness. The movie was "The Police—the People's Friends."

At another place the rebels broke up a showing by burning a house down. In still another case, while an entire village was watching the movies, rebels stole all their water buffalo.

MULTI-RACIAL COLLEGE OPENS IN EAST AFRICA

Copyright, 1956, London Observer.

NAIROBI, Kenya, May 5—East Africa's first large-scale venture in multi-racial education has opened in Nairobi with an initial 250 students. Their racial composition at an introductory course in the impressive five-story building of the Royal Technical College of East Africa will include 98 Africans, 88 Asians and 11 Europeans.

The buildings have cost so far slightly more than $4,200,000 but extensive plans for the accommodation of more than 2000 more students call for a five-fold increase in size.

The college is intended to become a companion to Markerere University College, turning out technicians urgently needed for East Africa's many development schemes in industry, transport and power projects. Courses include several branches of engineering, architecture, commerce, science and arts, and also domestic science for women.

SPRING DANCE on the CAMPUS

Modern Dance Group at Washington U. in an Outdoor Rehearsal

COOL AND CRAZY

At the beginning of "Cool and Crazy," five women dancers (above) perform as a unit whose members are equally intoxicated with the music. But as monotony gradually undermines group activity, each dancer comes forward for a solo part. Dance is to cool jazz—the Dave Brubeck recording of "Balcony Rock." The dancers, from left, are Jean Baer, Jacquelyn Corwin, Noreen Goodman, Miriam Molasky and Joan Thompson. The "Crazy" phase of dance opens with trio of men (right) in an assortment of frenzied leaps, slides and attitudes. When the women join in they are exuberantly tossed into the air by male partners. The men dancers, from left, are Joseph Rosenstein, Richard Dyer and Ron Reiss. Music changes for this part of the dance to the theme of the movie "The Man With the Golden Arm."

RUTH

BARBARA ALLEN

Duet by Joan Thompson, who dances the lead role of "Barbara Allen," and Joseph Rosenstein, one of the lads with whom Barbara flirts to arouse jealousy of the one she really loves. Accompaniment would be ballad itself, performed by guitar-playing folk singer.

BY CHARLES MENEES
of the PICTURES Staff

ON A BALMY spring afternoon, the advanced modern dance workshop at Washington University moved outdoors to rehearse on an expanse of greening campus. Grass was pleasant on the bottoms of bare feet, and the sun's heat penetrated leg muscles, limbering them up. Open air and the freedom that comes with bright, outside space were welcome relief from an inside stage.

Costumed but without musical accompaniment, the dancers went through a portion of their annual indoor recital program. These dances, with choreography by students and their instructor, ranged from a coltish jazz-theme dance called "Cool and Crazy" to a tensely serious one based on the Biblical story of Ruth. A folk dance described the romantic tragedy of the song "Barbara Allen."

Modern dance is offered in the university's physical education program. The extra-curricular dance workshop has 25 members selected from about 80 in modern dance classes. Claudia Chapline, of the physical education department, is the instructor.

Labor's Strength Is Reflected in Its Washington Buildings

Teamsters

Machinists

International Association of Machinists' new 10-story headquarters, faced with white marble and pink granite, cost $2,500,000, exclusive of the $1,000,000 site. Machinists will use five floors and a half; rent the rest, including ground floor; plan to make profit from building. It was designed by A. Hamilton Wilson and William M. Denton, Washington architects.

By PAUL BERG of the PICTURES Staff

STRIKING SYMBOLS of the affluence of organized labor in America are the multimillion-dollar union headquarters buildings springing up in Washington, D.C. The five newest structures—three of which were just finished and two of which are nearing completion—cost about $15,000,000. The new buildings are of contemporary design, have luxurious executive offices, imposing conference rooms, functionally styled clerical work areas.

All are in the choice real estate area of downtown Washington. The International Association of Machinists spent a million dollars for its 29,164-square-foot site at the corner of fashionable Connecticut avenue and N street. Executive suites in the $5,000,000 International Brotherhood of Teamsters' building have enviable, unobstructed views of the Capitol. At the AFL-CIO headquarters, nearing completion, top labor leaders on the top floors will be able to look out at the White House.

Forty-eight national unions — about one out of every four in the country — now have their headquarters in Washington. Eleven own their buildings; 37 occupy leased space. Primary reasons why so many are locating in Washington are to be near the seat of government, to watch and influence legislation, to be handy to each other.

For the wealthy unions, many of which have millions of dollars in reserve, real estate is an excellent investment. The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers estimated that it would have to pay more than $33,000 a year rental for the space it needed, figured it was smart economics to put that money into a building of its own which would become a permanent asset of the union.

Less tangible, but no less significant than the economic reasons, is the prestige factor of a union's owning its own imposing structure with features as elegant as management's, if not more elegant. The marble and glass edifices, symbols of strength, could affect Washington officialdom, as well as union members sight-seeing in the nation's capital.

The five new headquarters buildings are the International Brotherhood of Teamsters', finished six months ago; the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers', finished in January; the International Association of Machinists', dedicated yesterday; the International Union of Operating Engineers', and the AFL-CIO Headquarters, both of them nearing completion.

Other unions which own national headquarters buildings in Washington are the International Union of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers; the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; the National Federation of Federal Employes; the National Association of Letter Carriers; the United Mine Workers, and the International Association of Retail Clerks.

The United Auto Workers has purchased the old CIO building for $500,000, and the United Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Union is buying the old AFL building for $350,000. The International Union of Bakery and Confectionery Workers will start construction of a three-million-dollar headquarters in July, on a million-dollar site across the street from the Hotel Statler. The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, now with headquarters in Detroit, plans to build a half-million dollar structure in Washington soon.

Operating Engineers

Nearing completion is the $2,300,000 headquarters of the International Union of Operating Engineers. It is across the street from the rear of the Mayflower Hotel. The building, designed by Holabird and Root, is faced with green tinted glass and metal. It will have eight floors, be occupied exclusively by the union.

Bakery Workers

Across the street from the Hotel Statler, old buildings are being demolished to make way for the new headquarters of the International Union of Bakery and Confectionery Workers. Among the structures being razed are onetime homes of former President William Howard Taft and Admiral Dewey, Spanish-American War hero.

Headquarters of Many of America's Trade Unions Are Costly, Imposing Structures That Rival Buildings of Government or Business

AFL-CIO

The eight-story AFL-CIO headquarters, above, was started by the AFL before it merged with the CIO last year. Seventh-floor conference room, photo at right, looks out on Washington Monument and the White House, visible through right window. The building was designed by Holabird and Root, cost $3,500,000 including site. Next to the headquarters is historic St. John's Episcopal Church, known as "The Presidents' Church," because every President since Madison has attended at least occasional services there. Washington buildings are restricted to 130 feet in height, to keep them from dwarfing the Capitol and national monuments.

A relatively modest structure by comparison with some of the other union offices is the Philip Murray building, of the International Union of Electrical Workers. The building, named for the late CIO president, cost $750,000 with land. It was designed by A. R. Clas, Washington architect; has Indiana limestone facing, edged with black granite. The IUE occupies the top three floors, will rent the lower three.

Electrical Workers

Board room of the Philip Murray building. IUE permits tenant unions to use the chamber for meetings. Room is plain and furniture simple when set against corresponding facilities of some union headquarters in Washington.

Newspaper Guild

CONFUSION AT FIRST BASE

In the last inning of a New York Yankees-Washington Nationals game in Yankee Stadium, Pete Runnels hit a grounder. Bill Skowron, Yank first baseman, scoops up the ball with his bare hand as Yank Pitcher Johnny Kucks charges from mound to cover first base.

As Skowron attempts to straighten up after fielding the ball, he is bowled over by Kucks (53). Skowron holds the ball, but he is now blocked by Kucks, who is between him and first base.

With ball in hand, Skowron (14) rolls on the ground. Empty-handed Kucks twists to get out of base-runner Runnels' way. Runnels is two steps past the base in a blur.

Runnels (5) trips and starts a fall of his own. Skowron struggles to his feet as Umpire Nestor Chylak calls the runner safe. Washington coach, Bill Jurges (54), has stepped outside coaching box while watching the play. But only the pride of the Yankees was hurt in the confusion of the collision at first base. They won, 4-1.

Italy's Touchy Politics

Coming Municipal Elections Will Indicate Their Direction

International News Photos except as noted

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS will be held throughout Italy on May 27, and the outcome will be analyzed almost as closely by diplomats on both sides of the Iron Curtain as by the candidates themselves. The diplomats are extremely anxious to know what effect President Giovanni Gronchi, an improved economy and the deglorification of Stalin have had on Italy's precarious political picture. In the parliamentary elections of 1953, the last nation-wide voting, a middle-of-the-road coalition barely outpolled parties of the far right and left, which scored substantial gains. The next balloting for members of Parliament will not take place until 1958.

Gronchi, a left-of-center Christian Democrat, was named President a year ago and has transformed a ceremonial office into one of real political force. He seeks an end to the Christian Democrats' policy of immobility, a policy due partly to the party's conservative elements and partly to its narrow parliamentary support against combined opposition from the extreme left and right. Gronchi plumps vigorously for land and economic reforms and expanded housing.

With industry operating at double its peak pre-World War II rate, Italy is experiencing a belated postwar pick-up. Some observers say that the prosperity has had little apparent political effect, but such appraisals have been made without benefit of any nation-wide balloting.

Italy's Communist party is the largest in the West. Its leaders are known to have taken up grudgingly the new line on Stalin. The municipal elections should show whether the shift in the Red winds has cost the party any of its following.

BIG TURNOUT FOR RHEE'S RIVAL

South Koreans, solidly massed on a school playground in Seoul, listen to a political speech by P. H. Shinicky (on platform at lower left), the Democratic candidate for President. The crowd, which overflowed onto nearby rooftops, was estimated at 20,000, with most of the people sitting on the ground shoulder-to-shoulder. Shinicky, a conservative, is a bitter political foe of Korea's 81-year-old Syngman Rhee, but he is given little chance of beating the aged President in the May 15 election. Rhee, whose Liberal party is ultra-conservative, is seeking his third term.

Insisting she had not intended suicide, she was removed to a hospital for observation.*

Mr. and Mrs. Strianese, married 10 years and childless, adopted Anna Maria by proxy through Rome's Court of Appeals with the aid of the husband's cousin, a nun at St. John the Baptist orphanage in Vatican City.*

UNDERWATER WORKER

Diver Charley Delps Searches River, Lake Bottoms for $125 a Day

Charley Delps sits relaxed as Howard Salter, his tender, fits metal yoke in the collar of suit. Yoke is secured to rubber collar, serving as gasket, with wing nuts, making suit watertight. Helmet, or hat as Delps calls it, screws onto threads at yoke.

Bronze shoes, weighing 18 pounds each, are buckled on by tender. The shoes serve as ballast, help prevent diver from being swept off feet by currents.

A tap on the helmet with fist of tender is signal to Delps that he is suited up, lines are free, all's clear for a dive. Delps keeps a tender on his payroll the year around.

With Delps below, Salter handles lines. J. W. Suddath (center) of the Service Pipe Line Company and Al Meyer, resident engineer of job for Missouri Dredging Company, talk with Delps by telephone. Missouri Dredging Company, working under contract to inspect pipeline for Service Pipe Line Company, hired Delps at his standard rate of $125 a day. Pipeline to the Wood River refinery was found to be swinging free, as much as eight feet off the bottom, at some points. It will be weighted to prevent possible breaking by water currents.

Photos by ARTHUR WITMAN of the PICTURES Staff

Tightly sealed in suit and holding probing rod, Delps jumps from barge into water. At front of weighted belt is scabbard containing round-handled knife. Air and telephone lines, inclosed in heavy cables, trail back to tender from where they are kept from fouling. Air and phone lines are used to haul Delps back to surface.

By JOHN STIPE of the PICTURES Staff

BUBBLES BREAK THE SURFACE of the Mississippi. Below them in the murky water, Diver Charley Delps is putting in a day's work. His only contacts with the outside world are his air line and a telephone connection with his tender, Howard Salter, who stands by handling lines on a small barge. This job, by Delps' standards, is routine. He is working his way across the river bed on an inspection of a 1000-foot-long section of two 12-inch oil pipelines at an underwater crossing to a refinery at Wood River.

In more than 25 years as a professional diver, Delps' work has varied from diving for false teeth to helping raise a submerged B-25 bomber.

Delps is a graying man of 51 years who wears his mustache neatly clipped on a tanned, weathered face. He has the lean muscular build of a trackman and is soft-spoken and jovial. Delps was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, started in his profession as a diver-tender at San Francisco. He has spent the last 13 years in the St. Louis area. During World War II he was a civilian diving instructor with the Navy. He occasionally makes jaunts, such as a trip to the Garrison Dam in North Dakota to inspect intakes 140 feet down.

As to his diving for false teeth, back in 1947 an East St. Louis resident became short of breath during a long underwater swim in a pool of Mississippi River backwater south of Cahokia. When he surfaced, gasping for air, out popped his uppers. Delps dived for the teeth, valued at $150, on an agreement of $15 for the dive if no teeth were found, $75 if they were. After a 10-minute search, he came up with the uppers.

In 1951 after a plane crashed in the Missouri River near Kansas City, Delps was flown there to fasten lines to the fuselage and wing section of the B-25 bomber to bring up the plane.

Five years ago, a rumor spread in Phelps County that a body had been dumped into the 120-foot depths of an abandoned and flooded sulphur mine 10 miles south of Rolla. Authorities refused to underwrite the expense of hiring a diver. Farmers chipped in to raise a fee of $150. Delps made two descents into the mine, found plenty of rusty tin cans and barbed wire but no body. In another assignment about the same time Delps hit a jackpot. He recovered $109,000 from a safe which robbers had dumped into the St. Francis River near Sikeston.

Most of Delps' dives constitute hard work in the darkness. He submerges to inspect work on new construction of river installations, to clear obstruction by demolition, salvage sunken barges, boats or cargo. Jobs like these keep him employed about three-fourths of the time.

Delps also has first-hand knowledge of the dangers in the life of a diver. Once, while he was cutting with an acetylene torch at the base of a loading dock on the East Side, a four-ton beam slipped, pinning Delps on the bottom in 30 feet of water. Two divers were called to help. A high-pressure air hose was used to blast away sand and Delps was freed after 8½ hours.

Salter, standing on barge and holding lines, knows Delps' position from continuous stream of rising air bubbles caused by diver's exhaling. On this job, Delps stayed in water for average of about 30 minutes each dive. He can stay under much longer. A compressor feeds him air. Bottle of oxygen, connected to air line, can be quickly cut into Delps' hose if compressor motor should fail.

Mrs. Lillian Delps, an elementary school teacher, reads in recreation room of the Delps' home at Granite City. She once worked as her husband's tender but now finds teaching a full-time job. Delps operates his ham radio station with the call letters W9QMG. His jeep is also equipped with a mobile radio set of same call letters.

Day's work at an end, Delps is stripped of rubber and canvas suit on the river bank. Considerable of his time is required for upkeep of gear and making preparations for dives.

Part of diving gear, valued at $25,000, is unloaded from his small steel barge by Delps, foreground, and helpers. The barge is moved about by a 25 horsepower outboard motor. Diving gear is compactly stored in chests, fits on a trailer which is towed by jeep.

Beckmann's Drawings

St. Louis Exhibition Shows Informal Side of a Noted Painter

THE DETECTIVE. With the touch of drollery that sometimes appears in Beckmann's later works, an officer of the law is shown in pursuit of a culprit. The detective is drawn with an extra left arm; formed by the coattails and buttons is a second face that lets him look backwards.

PORTRAIT OF FRANCES VAN VEEN. Between his spectacular experiments with colors, images and space, Beckmann executed a number of portraits in both oils and charcoal. This softly rounded composition, done in 1950, contrasts with his more characteristic angular and crowded arrangements.

THE BATH. Close-grouped arrangement of people in a swimming pool, drawn in pencil in 1925, has more of the touches familiar in Beckmann paintings that have been shown in St. Louis. Arms, legs and bodies of the bathers form patterns of jagged lines that are pulled into a tight composition by the rigidly straight figure of the diver.

By GEORGE McCUE of the PICTURES Staff

MAX BECKMANN'S PAINTINGS, with their biting social comment and their bold, unacademic style, won him a position among the world's leading artists of his time. His numerous prints and drawings are now being viewed with almost equal appreciation. Beckmann, who taught advanced painting at Washington University in 1947-49, is classified as "expressionist," but most of his works defy identification with any one school.

From the beginning of his active career in Germany in 1905 until his death in New York in 1950 at the age of 66, Beckmann went through several changes of technique, but his works are generally marked by their startling treatments of space and by their use of symbols to convey meaning.

A collection of 38 Beckmann drawings, prints and watercolors, produced from 1916 to the last year of his life, is currently on exhibit at the Martin Schweig Gallery of Modern Art, 4657 Maryland avenue. It is the first Beckmann show in St. Louis since 1948, when the City Art Museum gave his works the biggest one-man show in its history.

LUMBER CAMP. This 1934 watercolor is one of the few items in the show in bright tints. The first impression that it gives of tranquility is contradicted on close observation by forceful lines of the composition, and slashing brush strokes.

Penn Carnival

Six New Records Set at Track Classic

One of the nation's big annual track contests is the Penn Relay Carnival, held for the sixty-second year this spring. At Franklin Field in Philadelphia, Jim Beatty, right, of the University of North Carolina, breaks the tape only inches ahead of Ron Wallingford, University of Michigan. Beatty's time of nine minutes and nine seconds for the two-mile run set a new Penn Relays record. Wallingford's time for the race, only one-tenth of a second more than the winner's, also broke the previous carnival record.

Officials stand by with measuring tape as Gregory Bell of Indiana goes through the air for 25 feet, six and three-quarter inches in the running broad jump to top previous Penn Relays record of 25 feet, four and one-half inches. World record for the broad jump is 26 feet, eight and one-quarter inches, which was set by Jesse Owens in 1935. While six new records were set for the Penn Relays and two were equaled, Oxford University took two relay championships home to England. Four Oxford students won the four-mile relay by 60 yards. The same four men returned to the track 80 minutes later to take the two-mile event by 15 yards. This was the first appearance of an Oxford team at the Penn Relays in more than 30 years.

Veal Paprika, With Corn Sticks and Rice

1. Mrs. Balding cuts the thin slices of veal into serving pieces, then flattens them with a meat hammer.

2. Meat is browned in butter in which a clove of garlic chopped fine has been added. The veal slices are browned on both sides.

3. Sour cream is poured into meat pan, salt and pepper added, and meat is cooked, closely covered, for 30 minutes. Paprika is added near end of cooking.

By MERNA LAZIER

VEAL PAPRIKA as prepared by Mrs. Paul H. Balding of Staunton, Illinois, proved to be a prize winner in a culinary contest. It is made of thinly sliced veal gently simmered in a rich sour cream sauce deliciously flavored with paprika. It is served over fluffy boiled rice.

Mrs. Balding cuts the sliced veal into serving pieces and then pounds them with a meat scorer. They are browned in butter flavored with finely chopped garlic. When meat has browned on both sides, sour cream is poured on top, and salt and pepper to taste are added. Pan is covered with a tight-fitting lid and simmered for about 30 minutes. Paprika is added for the last 10 minutes of cooking. Meanwhile, the rice is put on to boil.

Batter for corn bread sticks is made by mixing together corn meal, flour, sugar, salt, baking powder, egg and milk. Stick pans are put in hot oven with some of the shortening in each mold. When shortening melts, it is swished in pans to grease them, then remainder is poured into batter, which is beaten until smooth and immediately poured into hot pans. Corn sticks are baked in a 425-degree oven about 25 minutes. These, with a tossed salad and a bowl of fresh fruit, complete the meal.

INGREDIENTS

One and one-half pounds thinly sliced veal
Four tablespoons butter
One clove garlic
One teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
Two cups sour cream
One and one-half cups raw rice cooked in three cups boiling salted water

Corn bread sticks:
One cup yellow corn meal
One cup sifted flour
One-fourth cup sugar
One-half teaspoon salt
Four teaspoons baking powder
One egg (beaten)
One cup milk
One-fourth cup shortening (melted)

Tino wants Mike (Burt Lancaster) to teach him to do a triple. Mike, embittered as the result of a crippling fall, refuses at first but is persuaded to take to the trapeze again as a catcher. He and Tino begin rehearsing.*

2. The new act clicks. Another performer, Lola (Gina Lollobrigida), watches the progress made by Tino under Mike's tutelage, and realizes that their act is headed for the big time. Lola convinces the proprietor, Bouglione (Thomas Gomez), that she could add glamor to the combination. Mike doesn't want Lola, but Lola makes young Tino believe she loves him. He gets Mike to make the act a trio.

3. Mike remains unreconciled to Lola's being in the act. When he learns that Lola really loves him, Mike decides to exploit Lola's love and expose her to Tino as a woman who has used her charm to fulfill personal ambition. Then Mike is injured fighting an escaped lion. Lola takes him to her apartment to bandage his wounds, and he realizes he has fallen in love with her.

4. Tino discovers Lola and Mike together, and the men fight. Tino, in his rage, declares he will not go on with Mike in their act even though this means he will never achieve the triple. Bouglione tells Mike that he is being replaced with a new catcher.

5. John Ringling North, American circus king, arrives in Paris to scout the sensational young trapeze artist he has heard about. Mike decides this is the moment for which he has worked and planned. He secretly changes places with the new catcher and climbs into the rigging. There, he taunts his protege into trying the triple somersault. Tino makes it, becoming the eighth man in circus history to accomplish the feat.

6. Tino has fulfilled all the hopes Mike had for him. Mike feels that his usefulness is ended. He instructs a new catcher in the technique of working with Tino, who is on his way to New York and the big time. Then Mike walks into the rainy night. A figure darts out of the circus gate, joins Mike. Mike and Lola walk away arm in arm.

BRITISH BARGE FAMILIES

Canalmen Take Wives and Children Along in Neat Freight Boat Homes

A UNIQUE LIFE IS LIVED by the families of the men who operate barges on Britain's inland waterways. The families make their homes on the barges, which carry some freight and tow other barges along the intricate lacework of English canals. The canal folk are known for their spotless and gaily decorated living quarters. Pride in the barges is instilled from childhood, and youngsters cheerfully join in the work necessary to keep their floating homes spick-and-span. The families have their own dialect, amusements and an appreciation of nature that comes from intimate contact with the countryside during their voyages.

When in Isleworth, England, children of the barge operators attend school—housed in a beached barge.

Like homemakers who live on land, wives of the barge operators have clothesline chats on washday.

Quarters on the barges are cramped. Here, Eileen Gratham brews tea in a tiny kitchen. Panel paintings are typical of barge decorations.

Wellesley Hoop-Rollers Pile Up on a Turn

Hoop-rolling isn't ranked among recognized sports, but to seniors of Wellesley College it is a vigorously competitive spring diversion. On the campus of the women's college in Massachusetts years ago, it was a rather sedate event for young ladies who were being conditioned to gentility. Contestants in this year's hoop-rolling, shown tightly bunched and getting in the way of one another on a tricky turn of the course, wear the customary caps and gowns but they have added shorts and left out the sedateness. Some 200 girls participated in this year's contest, the sixty-second.

Associated Press Photo

According to tradition, if not history, the winner is supposed to become the first member of her class to be married. This year's champion was Ethel Larrabee of Skaneateles, New York, a 21-year-old geology major. In accepting the coveted prize, a bridal bouquet, she made it publicly known that she isn't engaged yet.

I'll always remember...

The night I didn't go home

by MICKEY MANTLE
OF THE NEW YORK YANKEES

A lot of people think that all you need to be a major-league outfielder is the ability to hit and field well. I'd always thought so too, till one day I found there's something else just as important.

My dad was the one who showed me. He'd been a pretty good semi-pro player in Oklahoma but never had a chance to try for the big leagues. When I got the chance — being brought up from a Class C league for a tryout with the Yankees during spring training of 1951 — he was the proudest man in Oklahoma.

I started to sock the ball pretty hard during the exhibition games in the South and on the way north, and soon the sportswriters were calling me "another Joe DiMaggio." I was being figured on to be a regular outfielder with the world-champion Yanks, quite a jump for a rookie of 19, and there were newspaper stories about me from coast to coast.

But I looked like just another overpublicized bush-leaguer after the season started, for my hitting tailed off badly. Finally manager Casey Stengel decided I needed more seasoning and sent me down to Kansas City, then a Yankee farm club.

It hurt to leave the Yankees but I felt even worse when I started playing for Kansas City, for I was a bigger bust there, getting only two hits in my first 22 times at bat. I was feeling real low after one night game, having gone 0 for 5, when I met my dad outside the park. (He used to drive up from our home to watch me play.)

After we'd talked awhile, he got into his car. "Dad," I said suddenly, "I might as well go home with you. I'll never be able to hit major-league pitching."

He turned and stared at me. "All right, get in," he said. "If you've got no more guts than that, you don't belong in the big leagues."

My face turned red and I stepped back from the car. Dad drove home alone that night. I went back to my hotel and thought about what he had said. He'd embarrassed me, but, more important, he'd made me realize something. If I could hit, I'd make the Yanks. If I couldn't — well, I'd find that out too.

I found out pretty fast, because I hit around .350 for the next month, banging 11 homers and driving in 55 runs. Less than two months after the Yankees sent me down, I was back with them again, for keeps.

I don't think I would have made it without the help of my dad. He died in 1952, but I haven't forgotten what he taught me that night: to succeed — in baseball or anything else — takes a lot more than ability. It also takes courage. ■

FASHION IS HER DISH

Every woman who reads PARADE — and some of the men, too — will be interested in today's article on summer fashions (pages 6 and 7). It is timely. It is useful. It pictures and describes dresses that are new, smart, yet reasonable in price.

This article marks another "first" for PARADE: the acquisition of Virginia Pope as Fashion Editor. During a 30-year association with the New York Times, Miss Pope built up a world reputation as a fashion authority. She reported on all the major couture openings in Paris, London and Italy. In 1953 she covered the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. She originated and directed the international fashion shows which the Times sponsored nine years in a row. She served as president of the New York Newspaper Women's Club and president of the Fashion Group.

VIRGINIA POPE

Last year Miss Pope retired as Fashion Editor of the Times. Now she is back in action with PARADE. Today's article is only the first of many that will be bringing you new, practical fashion information, reported by one of the real experts in a fast-changing, complicated field.

PARADE is proud to have acquired Virginia Pope's services — and believes its readers will agree.

DESIGNED

for Summer Romance

by VIRGINIA POPE PARADE FASHION EDITOR

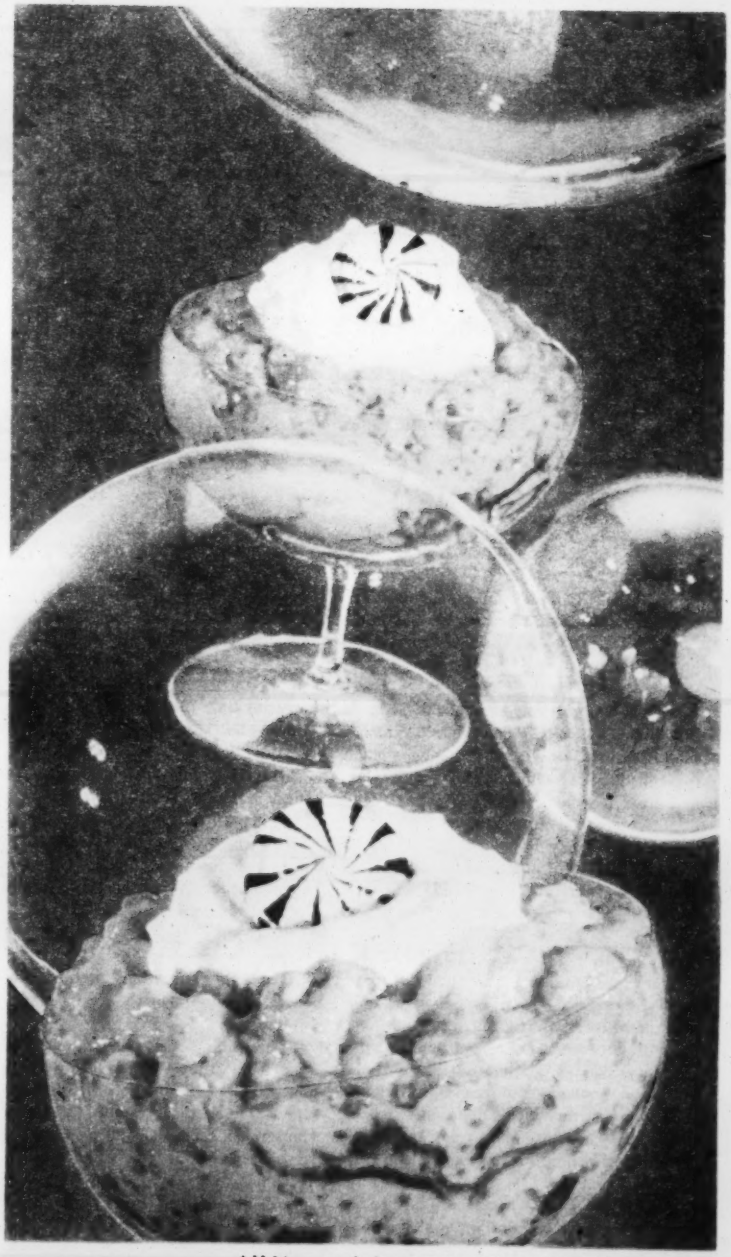
Summer and romance go together. When warmth creeps into the late afternoons and evenings, every woman wants to look pretty in soft, feminine clothes. This year there's no limit to the styles that spell allure.

The cottons are more attractive than ever. Light and airy, they are perfectly adapted to the still-popular full-skirted dresses. In color they are as exquisite as the flowers in an English garden. Some are patterned in stripes or checks; others are sprigged with bouquets of dotted with single blossoms.

The five dresses shown here highlight some of the season's trends. Each is pretty; each has style appeal. And whichever you pick, remember what Paris says: Flowers are an important accessory.

FLAMENCO of flowered gray cotton inspired by the Spanish dance. Flaring low-placed flounce at back of skirt. Designed by Estevez. About $50. Capezio sandals.



Add ¼ cup crushed peppermint candy to cool Tapioca Cream.

Light as a bubble!

So light...no other pudding is so fluffy light—yet so creamy luscious!

So versatile..."parties up" its personality so easily with flavorings, sauces, fruits, toppings, chocolate bits, nuts, coconut!

So nourishing...the fresh eggs-and-milk dessert that's so easy to digest—so good for children—never heavy.

WHO KILLED 'TRADER JACK' REDSHAW?

by SID ROSS and JOHN DEVANEY

GRANVILLE, ILL.

SHE STEPPED quickly out of the car, a black-haired woman of about 35. In her arms she held an 8-month-old baby. She started walking north on McCoy Street here. A few minutes later she was back, still carrying the baby. Hurriedly she slid into the car next to a small boy and the driver, a dark-complexioned man in his 40s. He threw the car — a blue, two-toned 1954 Oldsmobile — into gear and drove it a block north, parking it a few hundred feet from John Spencer Redshaw's "International Exchange."

It was about 10:30 a.m. on a cool, misty Monday — September 26, 1955 — in this sleepy hamlet (pop. 978) some 80 miles southwest of Chicago.

At 11, two men were noticed outside the former bank building that housed Redshaw's Exchange, a modern-day trading post run by Redshaw, 61, and his wife Mary, 60, with occasional help from their daughter Mary Ella, 38. There, drawing from his hodgepodge collection of thousands of items that jammed every inch of space, Redshaw would trade anything from a precious jewel to a human skeleton for whatever you had to offer.

One of the men, wearing a light-brown topcoat, carried a bag that resembled a doctor's satchel. The other, dark and in his 40s, wore a blue suit. The two jumped into a green 1955 Olds that had been parked outside the Exchange for the past half hour, gunned the car from the curb.

A moment later the driver of the '54 Olds kicked over his engine and swung into a quick U-turn. The two cars barreled south on McCoy Street, sped past the stop sign at the entrance to Highway 71, disappeared toward the west.

About 11:30, Mrs. Redshaw, coming from the post office and bank, arrived at the Exchange. To her surprise she found the screen door ajar, the usually padlocked door open. She rushed into the front of the store, saw no sign of her husband. Now nearly hysterical, she ran toward the vaults in the rear of the old bank building, calling her husband's name.

She found Redshaw, a huge 300-pounder, crumpled on the floor of an open vault. He was still wearing his jeweler's eyepiece. A few feet away lay the Thompson submachine gun that he always kept nearby; it had not been fired. Redshaw had been clubbed twice on the head, then shot three times at close range with a .38-caliber Colt. Rushed to the hospital, he was pronounced dead on the way.

Today — almost eight months later — there is not one solid clue to the identity of his killers. The '55 Olds was found abandoned, three miles west of Granville; police later learned it was a stolen car from Chicago. But the '54 car and the occupants of both have left a stone-cold trail.

Who killed Redshaw? Why? And what manner of man was he?

Those three questions mesh together, and together add up to the year's top murder mystery.

There has been no shortage of sleuths. State's Attorney Walter D. Boyle and Sheriff William Benson here have been given the full cooperation of the state police. The famous Pinkerton Detective Agency looked into the case but later withdrew. Even the FBI has been asked to investigate but refused because no Federal law had been violated.

His Own Banker

Most obvious motive, all agree, is robbery, for Redshaw's Exchange was jampacked with a reputed one to two million dollars' worth of diamonds, watches, antique clocks, sporting goods, musical instruments, pickled snakes, steam boilers, firearms, shuffleboards, exquisite china, Oriental instruments of torture, mink coats, sausage grinders, barber mugs, corn-cob pipes, expensive rugs and thousands of other things. Some of these even Redshaw didn't know he had, for he kept no records of inventory or cash. (In fact, though widely thought to be a millionaire, he apparently had no savings account, presumably keeping all his money in his own vaults.)

A self-styled "collector, trader and connoisseur," Redshaw dubbed his Exchange

Redshaw in his store: He'd buy, sell, swap anything.

Think you're good at solving whodunits? Here's a real-life one, with plenty of motives. Eight months after the crime, it's still a puzzler to Illinois police the "Mecca for the world's residue." The Mecca was in two parts — in the vaults and offices of the former bank and in a huge factory building said to be crammed with over 1,000,000 different items.

STORE, an old bank, was open to customers only by appointment. Redshaw kept precious stuff—jewelry and watches—in the bank's vaults.

Trader Jack, or Uncle John as he was also called, claimed he would swap anything for anything. Over the past 30-odd years Redshaw — according to rumor — had traded, among countless other items, an operating table for 20,000 fish hooks, a sheep ranch for a yacht and, via a pyramiding deal, a camera for a Central American banana plantation.

Redshaw claimed he never bought anything, only swapped, but this was not strictly true. According to a jeweler who had done business with him, his method of making a cash profit from his swaps went like this: "Jack would trade a $100 watch for your old diamond ring and $40. Then he'd trade the ring for $100 in cash or merchandise, pocketing that plus the $40."

Besides running a bustling mail-order business through ads in Chicago newspapers, Redshaw also did business with jewelers and collectors from all over the world who trooped to his padlocked door here. Looking for either "bargains" or rare items, they were let past the door only by appointment. And only a few were allowed to inspect the treasure-laden vaults.

"It was like something out of the Arabian Nights inside those vaults," recalls one bedazzled visitor. "Scattered all over the place, in cigar boxes, shoe boxes or just lying loose, were gems, rings, watches, necklaces and I don't know what else. There must have been hundreds of thousands of dollars in gems just strewn about."

Robbery, therefore, was the first thought of everybody here when State's Attorney Boyle began his investigation. (By coincidence, he also is Mrs. Redshaw's personal lawyer and is now helping to assess the estate.) The suspicion of robbery was borne out by Mrs. Redshaw's estimate that the killers had taken about $15,000 in gems plus "an unknown amount of currency."

But if the motive was robbery, why did the killers leave assorted pieces of jewelry scattered about the vault? Why did they not take the $229 in Redshaw's wallet, the 12-carat diamond on his finger and about $4,000 in gems in his pockets?

Even more strange, if robbery was the motive, why is Mrs. Redshaw gripped with the dread that her husband's killers will return to kill her and her daughter? This dread is very real. She absolutely refused to permit a PARADE photographer to take her picture. "Please don't ask me for any story about my husband," she begged in distraught tones. "The play is ended — Jack is gone."

What was he like alive? Would a look into the way he lived tell how and why he died? Hoping that it would, Sheriff Benson and Attorney Boyle began a painstaking check of Redshaw's strange career. Born the son of a coal miner in Spring Valley, Ill., on July 24, 1894, Redshaw came to Granville with his parents in 1912. For a time he worked in a coal mine; in 1919, after leaving the Army, he became Granville's postmaster. According to one story, he got started in the trading business when he admired the bamboo pen of a customer, bought a dozen and traded them off for some old watches, pocket knives and rubber boots.

Life With Fear

But as his fame and wealth grew — though Boyle says the latter was less than most people thought — Redshaw became more eccentric and secretive, especially during the past three years. The shades of his house were kept drawn day and night. He always drove to and from work — a short three blocks — and never by the same route as the day before. He carried a loaded pistol in his pocket, besides keeping the sub-machine gun on his desk. He walked furtively on the street, seldom stopping long to chat. When an out-of-town car came into Granville, Redshaw often took down its plate number and checked up on who owned it. Says a neighbor: "He lived with fear; you could almost smell it coming out of him."

He had few friends. In spite of the fame he brought Granville, most people here disliked him. "He had very little to do with people here," a lunchroom attendant told PARADE, "and people had very little to do with him, for few were ever invited to his house. He was interested in only one thing — making money."

Said another: "He was richer than anybody in town, yet his lunch was mostly a small sandwich at a luncheonette — and he never left a tip."

Another man said he felt sorry for Mrs. Redshaw. "She was just a slave to him," he said. "He was a shrewd, ambitious man who wouldn't let anything get in his way."

Mrs. Redshaw makes no comment on that. She does imply that their life together was less than festive. "We never went anywhere," she says. "It was just work all the time, seven days a week, Jack and me together."

Music-box Sentiment

Redshaw evidently was fond of his daughter Mary Ella, at least during their early years together. When she'd leave home for a semester at a private school, Redshaw would always play the tender hymn, God Be With You Till We Meet Again, on a music box. He had high hopes, says Mrs. Redshaw, "that Mary Ella would take over the business when her parents were gone."

There is some feeling that the daughter's failure to "develop into the sharp trader he was" led to a change in Redshaw's attitude. "He was a petty dictator," one neighbor says. "He broke up Mary Ella's marriage to a GI. I'd say she hated him — at least, she was afraid of him. Of course, nobody thinks she hated him enough to kill him."

Most of his business associates cared little for Redshaw. Said one jeweler: "He was honest — always paid his bills on time — but he was peculiar. He liked to flatter other people if in turn they flattered him. He thought of himself as a sophisticated man of the world, with a vast knowledge of all fields — literature, philosophy, politics, economics, rare objects. True, he did have a collection of jewels second to none and his collection of rare watches and clocks

Was it robbery? Revenge? Or a gangland slaying?

HOME of the Redshaws, three blocks from the store, was always kept locked and shuttered.

McCOY STREET is Granville's main avenue, with most of the shops and offices located in a two-block stretch. View is north, toward Redshaw store.

GARAGE of Redshaw home holds a motor boat, an item he had collected from one of his trades.

belonged in a museum. But he'd sell anything to make a profit."

He fascinated visitors. "He'd talk to you for two or three hours on how great a man he was," says one salesman. "He hypnotized you with his massive body and deep eyes. His clothes were the finest but they looked as if he'd slept in them, with food stains splattered all over them."

He trusted nobody. Says a jeweler in the nearby town of Peru: "He wouldn't even build a new house because he was afraid the architects might cheat him because he had a lot of money."

Some in Granville, though, speak highly of Redshaw. During World War II, they recall, he paid for 200 subscriptions to the local newspaper for Granville GIs away from home. He wasn't a church-goer but he once gave a badly needed piano to a local church. He regularly gave big amounts of cash to charity, delighting in matching the contributions of anyone who gave $100, $500 or even $1,000.

"That was just another way he had to show off," scoffs one of his neighbors. "Believe me, his passing didn't make for a sad funeral around here."

That violent death came to such a man — so disliked and so obviously living in dread of something — was no surprise. Being a sharp trader, point out some of his neighbors, Redshaw may well have been killed by someone who felt he'd been bilked in a trade. Even more likely, he may have been shot during a quarrel with a friend or business associate, for Redshaw easily angered some people. This theory is bolstered by Boyle, who points out: "Redshaw almost certainly knew the killers, for he wouldn't let anyone he didn't know well into the vaults, even at gunpoint." The main discrepancy here is that Redshaw kept a list of people he had appointments to see — and he had no appointments that morning.

Others here think Redshaw may have been the victim of a gangland killing. It had long been rumored that some of Redshaw's merchandise, with or without his knowledge, was stolen goods. Redshaw, according to this theory, was shot by disgruntled thieves (whose names he might not have put on his appointment list) after a quarrel over a split-up.

Some backing for the belief that Redshaw was tied to the underworld came from a recent St. Louis Post-Dispatch story by astute crime reporter Theodore C. Link. He wrote that Redshaw was the third man to be killed in a frantic hunt by gangsters for the missing $303,000 Greenlease ransom money. (Six-year-old Bobby Greenlease was kidnaped from his Kansas City home in 1953; his father paid $600,000 to the kidnapers, who later were captured, with only half the ransom money. The rest, they said, had been stolen from them.)

According to the Post-Dispatch, the underworld had been sizzling with rumors that all or part of the ransom money was locked in a Granville, Ill., vault. Redshaw was cut down, sources told Link, by gangsters trying to steal the money. However, say Boyle and Sheriff Benson, an intensive probe has found no evidence to indicate that Redshaw ever bought stolen goods or possessed the ransom money.

Revenge? Robbery? A gangland slaying? The murder, it's pretty well agreed here, traces back to one or more of those motives. But to pin down the answer, Boyle and Benson will have to find out:

- Was the woman carrying the baby working with the killers?
- Where did she go when she left the car and walked toward the Exchange?
- Were the missing jewels and currency in the satchel carried by the killers when they jumped into the '55 Olds?
- Why did the killers use two cars — knowing that Redshaw kept a watchful eye for out-of-town autos — when one would have been enough?
- Why did they bring along a woman, a boy and an infant?
- Why didn't they steal more than they did?

Most people here think those questions never will be answered, though Boyle says he still has a number "of live leads." Mrs. Redshaw, meanwhile, is attempting to catalog the hundreds of thousands of items in her husband's jumbled collection; after eight months, she still has a long way to go. Eventually, she says, she'll sell the jewelry, guns and other stuff, continue the business as an antique shop.

But for the present she keeps her door locked and refuses to do much talking about her husband. Thus this riddle of who killed Trader Jack, inside the enigma of Trader Jack himself, continues. ■

Can you help solve the killing?

In a special statement to PARADE, State's Attorney Walter D. Boyle asked for aid in solving the killing and made this appeal to all PARADE readers: "If you've ever done any business with Mr. Redshaw and think you have some information about his death, or if you have recently bought some jewelry that you believe is stolen goods, please write and give me full information. Address your letter to: State's Attorney Walter D. Boyle, Hennepin, Ill."

What do you know about looking for a JOB?

by JULES Z. WILLING

It's a startling fact that more people are looking for jobs today than at the height of the Great Depression. Fortunately, there is one important difference: most of these people are already employed. They are not job seekers so much as better-job seekers. They want more money, security or prestige, greater comforts or a better future. They are a product of America's steadily rising standard of living.

If you are one of them, note: There is an art to landing the job you want. There are special skills in presenting an application, handling interviews, negotiating salary. Have you ever applied for a job and failed to land it — and wondered why? Perhaps it is because you don't fully understand how best to play the role of job seeker.

This quiz tests your basic conceptions of that role. It covers the major areas in the strategy of landing a job. Your ability to answer the following questions correctly is an index of your skill as a job seeker.

Score five points for each correct answer. The highest possible score is 100. If you answer every question correctly, you are highly competent in the art of landing a job. However, most readers will score considerably less; the average person will probably score between 75 and 85.

But don't be misled by your score. In actually applying for a job, you might lose out by handling just one factor incorrectly. So it is important, regardless of your score, to study all the answers carefully. They constitute a little manual of procedure for the job seeker. And they are based on the experience of thousands of job applicants and interviewers.

TRUE FALSE

ANSWERS

If you marked any of these statements "True," you have a mistaken idea about the way to land the job you want. Every statement can be considered false. But don't feel badly. These are among the most prevalent misconceptions about job seeking. Let's take them one by one.

1 In the modern business world, longhand is as archaic as the horse car. Always use a typewriter for business correspondence.

2 When writing a letter for an interview, you get only one chance to state your case. It would be foolish to state only part of it. Fire all your ammunition.

3 If you try one approach at a time, you'll never know whether you've gotten the best offer; you'll get only one at a time. If you try everything simultaneously, you'll be in a position to choose the best of the available jobs.

4 Most executives resent attempts to get out of channels. Applications addressed to any executive usually are rerouted right to the personnel department.

5 One can't expect to put in a productive eight-hour day — day after day — at job seeking; there simply isn't enough productive work one can find to do. Three or four hours a day is about the the best that can be done.

6 While you should not stretch out to additional pages a story that can be told in one, never hesitate to use an extra page or two if they are essential in telling your story effectively. Employers are glad to read well-written resumes of any length from applicants who are presenting qualifications pertinent to the job vacancy.

7 People who advertise land jobs they would not otherwise know exist. The huge volume of situation-wanted advertising in newspapers throughout the country every day is evidence that employers do hire people who advertise.

8 Employers are highly suspicious of the "attention-getter." They know from sad experience that he is probably a nonconformist who will make a bad employe and a distraction in the office.

9 Don't give up your job to find another. An employed person has more time, more security and more independence than an unemployed one in his job seeking. And unemployment can be quite expensive.

10 Clothing and dress are so much a matter of individual taste that it is never wise to try to "make an impression"; it might be the wrong impression. Dress neatly, conservatively, but unobtrusively. The effect to strive for is, "He was well-dressed but I don't remember what he was wearing."

11 The prejudice against smoking is long dead. A cigarette might help put you at ease, but ask permission before you light up. If the interviewer offers you a cigarette and you want one, by all means take it.

12 The modern employer is as suspicious of the blue-nosed, anti-social applicant as he is of the alcoholic. Most employers expect a man to take an occasional social drink; sometimes it's an essential part of the job.

13 No competent interviewer tries to trap applicants. If you maintain a suspicious and wary attitude, you're going to have an unsatisfactory interview. Assume that the interviewer is genuinely interested in finding out if you are the man he's looking for, and try to help him. Don't fence with him.

14 Employers don't like reluctant employes. They prefer applicants who show genuine eagerness and enthusiasm for the job.

15 If you mention the highest figure you think you can get, you put yourself in the position of having to guess the figure the other fellow has in mind. The odds are against you. Instead, hedge by mentioning a range (such as $75 to $100) that will leave elbow room for later negotiations.

16 Interviewers resent "high pressure" from applicants. If they have a job to fill, they don't need your coaxing to fill it. What they want are the facts that prove you to be the best candidate. If you can give the facts, you don't need any pressure at all.

17 Playing hard to get will more likely lose a job than land one. Do not create the impression that you might play one firm off against another.

18 Employers are reluctant to hire people who must move ahead very quickly and who will quit if the firm can't maintain a constant rapid pace. The man who believes he is above his job makes a dissatisfied employe.

19 Many interviewers will "play the job down" and frankly tell you its drawbacks as well as its advantages — and the weak elements in your background as well as the strong. If you are promptly discouraged, you're not the man they want.

20 Always call back to check on an interview. This is evidence of your interest in the job. And sometimes it is the decisive factor. ■

FIRST PHOTO of Orson Welles with his new wife and new daughter. He currently is doing TV work in Hollywood.

ORSON WELLES:
Misunderstood man

BY HIS WIFE — Paola Mori Welles
as told to LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

Although I have been married to Orson Welles for more than a year now, people (mostly women) still refuse to believe it. Especially here.

"Darling," the Hollywood ladies say to me, "are you really married to that fabulous creature?" Or after seeing our daughter Beatrice, now 4 months old: "Darling, you deserve the Legion of Merit. How do you live with that man?"

The implication, of course, is that Orson Welles is an ogre, a sulfur-and-fire monster, a mad genius impossible to live with.

Where, how and why he established this reputation I don't know. Just because he made Citizen Kane, one of the greatest films ever produced, just because he was responsible for one of the most frightening broadcasts in history, The War of the Worlds, just because he was married in his youth to Rita Hayworth — are these reasons to condemn my husband?

I am not an authority on life with men. Before Mr. Welles (for some reason I can't bring myself to call him Orson), the only man I ever lived with was my father, a magistrate in Tripoli. But I do know my husband, and I can say frankly: He is the most misunderstood man in the world.

He is none of the things he is supposed to be: loud, selfish, rude or conceited. At least not to me.

Rather, he is clever, fascinating, unpredictable and kind.

What other man do you know who has been a stage star all over the world, produced Julius Caesar in modern dress, set up an experimental theater in New York, walked around Europe at the age of 11, edited Shakespeare — and written intensely practical articles for such trade magazines as the Embalmer's Review?

My husband did all these things, for he is different from most men — who are basically narrow-minded, unimaginative and materialistic. His sense of money, for example, is nonexistent. He hides cigar stubs in all the clothes drawers. Frequently I will change our daughter's diaper, and the new diaper will reek of tobacco. My husband also hates schedules and plans of any kind. When I ask him, "What time will you be home for dinner, darling?" his answer usually is, "Some time."

But these are trivia, the man's eccentricities. I don't try to change them. After all, Mr. Welles is 40, and when a man is 40 it is wiser for a wife to accept than to alter. Quarrels, nagging and jealousy do not keep a husband happy. Mr. Welles, I am proud to say, is a very happy man these days.

Watch him play with Beatrice and you will see at once that here is a gentle, dutiful father. Mr. Welles genuinely loves children. Last August, when Rita Hayworth was in Europe, she sent Rebecca, another daughter of his, to visit us in Montecatini. Mr. Welles was overjoyed. He would do anything to bring a smile to that little girl's lips. And how proud he was to introduce her all over Italy.

What so many women in America seem to forget about marriage is this: When you take a husband, you marry several men. When I took Mr. Welles I married a playwright, a poet, an actor, a musician, a scientist, an adventurer, a lover, a little boy. I could go on and on. My point is that each day with Orson Welles brings on a new world.

"Paola," he will announce one morning, "we are going to Spain to make a film." A few weeks later: "Paolina, we're taking off for London. I'm going to do Moby Dick on the stage." Or "Paolina," as he said recently after our baby was born in New York, "we are heading for a strange new country called Las Vegas. After I do my magic act there we're going to Hollywood."

I first met Orson Welles in Rome, in a friend's house, four years ago. I was then working as an actress in Italian films. When he was introduced to me, I said to myself, "Mama mia, this is the genius who does all those crazy things. I better get out of here." But he put me at my ease immediately. He speaks beautiful Italian. He is a well-rounded, well-educated man. In no time at all I became fascinated by him.

We began going around together in Rome. Then I went to work with him in Madrid; we did a film called Confidential Report. I saw him again in Paris, and last April when he was working for BBC television in England, I flew to him. We were married in London at Caxton Hall.

Since then I have been told that I deserve the Purple Heart or the Victoria Cross for staying married to a charming, brilliant, globe-trotting, many-sided genius. In truth I deserve nothing, because life with him is the most stimulating and exciting education a woman of 25 could get.

True, the tuition may be high at times — but Mr. Welles' courses are never dull. ■

MAY 6, 1937: Explosion and flame seal the doom of the Hindenburg.

I watched the end of an era

by STANLEY WASHBURN, JR.
Veteran pilot of both heavier- and lighter-than-air craft, and air-travel authority

Exactly 19 years ago today, shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening, a 30-year-old dream ended in a nightmare. In 23 seconds, the Hindenburg — a super-luxurious leviathan of the air, nearly a quarter of a mile long — was reduced from one of the most spectacular aircraft the world has ever seen to a pile of blackened wreckage.

I had more than a passing interest in this dream, because for three years I had been engaged in the development of a new-type, non-rigid airship, and at the time I was operating from a leased Navy hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. So on May 6, 1937, I joined several hundred Navy and civilian personnel there to welcome the season's first arrival of the big German airship, which was inaugurating a weekly transatlantic service from Frankfurt.

We will probably never again see any type of aircraft so large, so spacious — with such luxuries as staterooms for every passenger, hot and cold showers, a grand piano in the main lounge and a 100-foot promenade deck on either side of the passenger compartment. Bumps (or turbulence, as we now know rough air in airplanes) were unknown aboard the huge aircraft; she rode so smoothly that the glassware on the shelves behind the bar did not even have racks to hold it in place.

The Hindenburg's payload would make a mockery of a whole fleet of our largest airplanes even today. Besides accommodations for 72 passengers, she carried crated automobiles, drums of chemicals, holds full of air freight, and mail — a total of more than 50 tons of cargo!

Shortly before and just after 6 o'clock that afternoon, there had been two heavy rain showers. As the second shower ended, the setting sun broke through the clouds in the west, and the Hindenburg nosed toward us from the east, sunlight reflecting brightly from her silvery sides. The ship moved majestically overhead at about 30 mph, her diesel engines rumbling quietly, passengers waving handkerchiefs from her promenade windows.

Passing over the mooring mast, the giant Zeppelin started a wide, easy turn into the wind, a mile or so off the field boundary. Gradually she approached the mooring point, losing speed and altitude until, at about 200 feet, port and starboard yaw lines snaked from hatches in her nose. Ground parties of Navy men ran the lines to either side, and dug their heels in to hold her firm.

Meanwhile, a main mooring-line party awaited a heavier cable which was being lowered from the bow. I was standing in front of the stub mast by the main mooring-line winch, the nose of the airship hovering directly above me.

At this point, a light wind from the east began drifting the ship to starboard. The Navy landing officer issued an order for the port bow line party to hold. After the order was given, I heard the engines accelerate and looked up to see to which props the power had been applied.

Suddenly there was an orange flash at a point just forward of the port rear power car. Almost instantly I felt a concussion. Having worked with a hydrogen-filled airship for a year, I decided — in a split second — that the world's biggest bomb was about to let go — five million cubic feet of hydrogen gas. The next five seconds I dug in, in an effort to escape from under the ship.

It was like trying to run out from under a cumulus cloud. The huge mass seemed to be coming straight down on top of us. I vividly recall seeing the sparse grass on the sandy soil brilliantly lighted. I felt heat like the noonday sun on my back. I did not take time even to look back for perhaps five more seconds. In that time the Hindenburg's nose had reared high in the air, and a succession of explosions rumbled like low thunder.

The aft end of the ship was still airborne; but all along the keel black objects were dropping off. I dove under the steel structure of the mooring mast and took my first good look at what was happening.

The aircraft was on fire from bow to stern and settling gently, almost daintily, to the ground. Incredibly, human beings were running out from under the crushed base of the ship. Girders crumpled on contact, but little figures kept racing from the flames, some falling flat, then getting up and falling again to lie still.

A continuous metallic crackling sound and a steady overall roar was pierced by cries and screams from spectators, overwhelmed by the magnitude of the disaster they were witnessing. Loud and clear above the roar of the flames and screams I heard the shouted order of the Navy landing officer: "Navy, stand fast for rescue!"

Lost: 35 Lives

Within the next 30 seconds many were saved who probably would have been trapped by the collapse of the ring girders. Civilian and Navy personnel rushed back toward the ship, which now lay completely on the ground, burning furiously from nose to tail cone and disintegrating by the second. Limp bodies and staggering survivors just outside of the fire were snatched to safety or prevented from dashing blindly back into the inferno.

There, in a few minutes, 35 lives were snuffed out, the first casualties of any kind in 30 years of commercial dirigible operations — including the earliest experimental days of Count Zeppelin's time. Never before had an art been so highly perfected, dramatically proved, then abandoned at what had seemed its moment of triumph. To this day, the cause of the explosion still is subject to debate.

The Hindenburg disaster, following successive wrecks of our own Navy airships, shattered the world's confidence in the whole idea of the big airship. It was the end not only of a dream, but of an era. ■

THEIR SON IS DIFFERENT

LOS ANGELES.

The 3-year-old shown in recreation and repose on these pages has been brought up here by Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hayes as their own son, and the fact that he's different from most American boys has never entered his grizzled head. He plays cowboys and Indians with the other kids, sleeps in his own bed (in two-piece pajamas), helps with the housework and gets into mischief. Once he slipped into an empty baby carriage and a nurse popped a bottle into his mouth before she noticed the switch.

The Hayes' Fuzzy is different, however: he's something of a prodigy. He's the only 3-year-old in his neighborhood who's been on TV, and has more than 100 appearances to his credit.

RESTING, Fuzzy sprawls on Hayes' lawn. He has his own double bed, owns a complete wardrobe including boy-sized cowboy suit.

TEEN-AGE TOPICS

With the season of spring dances upon us, many of you are writing me concerning the etiquette of extending and receiving invitations to them. Here are some recent questions on the subject.

Q. I am a girl of 18 and have been invited by my boy friend to visit him in his college town for a week end. Is a chaperon required for such a visit? — E.K., Alexandria, Va.

A. No, the college makes arrangements for the proper chaperoning of the girls.

As I have written before, girls going to college week ends pay for their own transportation. In the Northern colleges, following the Ivy League tradition, the boys furnish and pay for the accommodations approved by the college for the girls. In the Southern colleges, generally speaking, the girls are expected to pay for their own accommodations, but these in turn are specified ones approved by the college authorities. It is quite correct to ask the boy which of these two systems is used in his particular college.

Q. I will soon be going to a formal dance at a military school. As it will be the first time I have stayed at a school over a week end, would it be all right to write the housemother at the fraternity house for any information I need? — A.M., Newport News, Va.

A. Yes, but address her by name. However, your friend probably can tell you about any regulations. My book, Amy Vanderbilt's Complete Book of Etiquette, has a section on Annapolis and West Point week ends which may be of help to you.

Q. I am 13. Please tell me what to do when a girl invites me to a dance. Should I buy the tickets and furnish the transportation, or should she? If I am going steady and another girl asks me to a party, should I accept, or should I explain the situation? — S.B., Albuquerque, N.M.

A. The girl buys the tickets and you furnish the transportation.

In the second case, you accept or not as you please, and no explanation is necessary, as you are not engaged. At your age, you should be going out with various girls, not just one.

Q. If you like a boy very much, is it all right to ask him to dance? —L.N., Oberon, N.D.

A. Only if it is a dance in which the girls choose the partners.

Q. After a dance, are you supposed to thank the boy or is he supposed to thank you? — G.G., Columbus, Ga.

A. He is supposed to thank you. You can express your appreciation by saying, "I enjoyed it, too."

by ED KIESTER

CAMDEN, ME.

Each Monday morning during summer, a covey of white-winged schooners glides out of the tiny harbor here and into the rock-bound waters of Penobscot Bay. Aboard each ship, 25 to 30 vacationing landlubbers lean on the gunwales and try to catch the full flavor of a bygone era. Many of them, like George and Carmen Burnett of Minneapolis — pictured aboard the Alice S. Wentworth — have come long distances to taste the romantic tranquility of cruising under sail.

Married less than a year, George, a young doctor, and Carmen, a nurse, considered their schooner voyage a delayed honeymoon. The footloose Wentworth, with no established ports of call but flitting where winds and tides would take it, appealed to their vagabond urge. The carefree pace gave them time to be alone together, to exchange quips with the other passengers, to soak up sunshine on the deck house.

Each day, the Wentworth logged six hours of sailing, anchoring in time for its passengers to take a quick dip in the chilling Maine waters. (Carmen took George's word for the bay's temperature; she spent her time sunbathing, never went near the water.) After the evening meal, the passengers went ashore to explore local villages.

Sometimes social life focused on the ship, not ashore. Two big events of the week on shipboard were a "get-acquainted" party on Monday and a lobster broil on Friday. By the time the latter rolled around, all 27 one-week sailors were close friends.

Days began early for George and Carmen. First step was washing, with a tin basin and cold water from one of the fresh-water casks. (After two days of this, they discovered that the cook would heat water if you asked.) After breakfast in the dining salon, they spent the day on deck: there were rugged landscapes to be admired, jokes to be told, books to be read, letters to be written, games to be played. They spent part of the afternoon napping in the sun.

DIVING owner Don Snyder plunges off bowsprit to join George as Carmen (standing, l.) watches.

Occasionally someone would organize a campaign to "sail the ship the old-fashioned way." George and the other men would hoist the sails by hand. (Normally a "donkey engine" does the job.) The girls would help to coil lines or aid in taking the stops out of the sails. After the back-breaking work of hoisting the mainsail, George listened admiringly as owner Don Snyder told of old seamen who sailed schooners singlehanded — and before the days of donkey engines.

On the Wentworth, work (maybe because it was not obligatory) became play. Carmen pitched in to help peel potatoes. Some of the others helped to swab decks, and George took a turn at the wheel, with skipper W. A. Haskell, an old schooner hand, giving advice.

A cruise without luxury— but schooners make up for it

Haskell, 58, had been on schooners 52 years; he remembered the days when the Wentworth carried coal and lumber along the Maine coast. Actually, according to Snyder's research, the ship dates back even further, to the heyday of sail. Nearly 100 years ago, it was carrying freight in Long Island Sound.

The two-master has been rebuilt countless times since, most recently in 1947 when it was converted for passengers. Today it has 11 tiny cabins (somewhat cramped, but many passengers sleep on deck in warm weather), electricity, indoor plumbing and a first-class galley, which specializes in steak, chicken, fresh-fish chowder and lobster.

For this easygoing vacation, George and Carmen paid $90 apiece. (Some Maine schooners charge less, but require passengers to bring their own bedclothes.) If you'd be interested in a similar vacation afloat, your first step should be to write Don Snyder (mailing address: P.O. Box 836, Rockland, Me.) for reservations. The schooner season begins in mid-June, lasts until mid-September and includes such high points as a lobster festival in August and a schooner race at season's end.

Unfortunately for families, most schooners discourage bringing children. On a ship only 86 feet overall, they tend to feel cramped; there's also the danger of toppling overboard. But if you're young and adventuresome, like George and Carmen Burnett, or if you're single, or if you want a vacation for Mom and Dad only, then a vagabond voyage might be your dish.

Of course, vacationing on a windjammer has some disadvantages: the quarters are hardly luxurious, and each passenger is on his own for recreation. But maybe it's this kind of carefree living you're looking for, just as George and Carmen Burnett were. And beating downwind along the choppy waters of the Maine coast is the place to find it. ■

SWAPPING STORIES, vacationers bundled in blankets, hats and jackets engage in cool-weather byplay.

GOING ASHORE, Burnetts get their land legs back. Visits to quaint towns were a high point of the cruise.

OTHER PLACES FOR CAREFREE CRUISES

Other schooners also sail along the Maine coast. (For information, write Maine Publicity Bureau, Dept. Z, 3 St. John St., Portland 4, Me.) But informality afloat isn't limited to Maine. For example:

CHESAPEAKE BAY: Schooner cruises in a different area offer similar accommodations and appeal, similar prices ($75 a week and up). Information: Tidewater Cruises, Havre de Grace, Md.

FLORIDA EVERGLADES: Shantyboat Lazy Bones drifts through swamp waterways, allows close-up look at nature, photography, complete relaxation. No children under 16. Not operating in "insect season." Price: $94 up. Information: Shantyboat Cruises, Box 1628, Ft. Myers, Fla.

OZARKS: Famed float trip on Ozark rivers is mainly for fishermen, but takes families, who camp on sandbars at night. Price: $15 a day up. Information: Ozark Playgrounds Assn., 112 W. 4th St., Joplin, Mo.

TRIUMPH OVER TOOTH DECAY

Crest Toothpaste with Fluoristan strengthens tooth enamel to lock out decay from within

Fluoristan is Procter & Gamble's exclusive stannous fluoride formula—proven the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste

Miracle of the Towns Without Toothaches. For years, children growing up in certain Western towns were virtually without cavities. Then science learned why: nature's decay-preventive, fluoride, was present in their drinking water!

Science Long Tried to Capture Fluoride—only medically approved preventive of decay—in a toothpaste. At last, after years of research, university scientists discovered Fluoristan—the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste.

Fluoristan Makes Possible Crest. Without Fluoristan, you cannot get maximum protection against tooth decay with a toothpaste. Crest protects all permanent teeth, both of adults and of children, six years of age and over.

Dentists Tested Crest for three years on 5,673 people. No toothpaste stops all decay—but Crest set decay-prevention records never approached by any other toothpaste. Thus Crest marks a new era . . . triumph over tooth decay everywhere.

IMPORTANT

Crest with Fluoristan is the only toothpaste ever developed that makes possible a major reduction in tooth decay for everyone, everywhere, by strengthening tooth enamel. Thereby, Crest marks a turning point in man's age-old struggle against this almost universal disease.

Instead of waiting helplessly for cavities to strike, Crest now makes it possible for you to build strong defenses against decay within teeth themselves . . . to actually fortify teeth so that they turn back the destructive attacks of decay (as opposed to the old-fashioned method of brushing a temporary coating of protection on the surface of the teeth). With Crest, your family approaches the long dreamed-of day of healthy, decay-free teeth.

All-round Traveler and an all-time buy

Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger 4-door Estate Wagon, Model 49

EVER SINCE Buick sliced the price of Estate Wagons, more buyers have been moving into the "wagon" than ever before.

Seems the price cut was all they needed.

Surely nobody needed coaxing to want the one all-round traveler with Buick's incomparable pleasure-car ride—and that's better than ever this year.

So is Buick performance, with record-high horsepower in the big 322-cubic-inch V8—and the spectacular getaway of Variable Pitch Dynaflow* even before you "switch pitch" for safer passing.

There's no question, either, about this Buick's ability to handle any task you put to it—from transporting very important people smartly, to picking up almost three cubic yards of cargo and waltzing away with it.

So what could you gain by waiting, when the already-low-price SPECIAL sells for less than smaller cars—and the spirited CENTURY is only one price-notch above it?

See us this week about the sweet-riding Estate Wagon—the best Buick yet, and certainly the best buy yet at 1956 prices.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Enjoy Motoring Now For Its Own Sake...

LOOKING forward to a vast outpouring of vacation and recreation bound motoring families during the spring months, the American Automobile Association offers a series of helpful hints aimed at increased travel enjoyment and driving safety.

"Present indications are that car owners will be out in force as never before," the AAA declared. "Weekend and Sunday driving in particular will likely be heavier than it was possible to imagine a few years ago. Millions of families will set out for a long day, or an overnight, away from home on every favorable weekend from now on.

"Springtime, with its marked advantages of climate and color, is also becoming a popular season for longer trips by car, to mountain areas and well known gardens reaching their peak of bloom. In terms of touring, the spring has distinct advantages of milder weather, fewer crowds and generally more moderate rates than summer later on."

The AAA noted that with the increase in expressways and scenic routes it is now possible to enjoy motoring for its own sake—in a manner beyond reach until recently.

As a means of helping all motorists on the road to enjoyable travels, the AAA made these suggestions:

1. Get your car in shape before you go. Getting repairs, or towing, on the road away from home may prove to be a costly experience, as well as a frustrating phase of the trip.

"Whether motorists are going on a trip or not, they should get a spring checkup for their cars. A partial check list would include: draining antifreeze, changing oil and cartridge, changing transmission and differential oil, repacking bearings, checking brakes, points, plugs, removing snow tires, lubricating speedometer cable, and checking front end alignment and wheel balance.

"2. Instead of setting forth simply to be on the road, think through your trip, planning your route and destination. Even if you're going only for a day or an afternoon, calculate your mileage in advance. Plan to visit places of interest to members of the family, including the children.

"3. Travel with a good map, such as those issued by the AAA, so you can chart your course. When you do, don't confine your motoring to the major roads but try to select some off-beat attractions.

"4. Get an early start. If you're going to drive on a well-traveled route, you'll make far better time if you get on the highway before most of the other motorists. Likewise, try to get back early and avoid getting trapped in the late Sunday crush.

"5. Above all, cultivate good driving habits. Never exceed the posted speed limits. When traveling at high speeds on express routes, allow plenty of following distance from the car ahead. Don't pass on hills or curves, and avoid driving if drowsy or tired."

Photographed at Mackinac, colorful vacation spot of the Great Lakes area, this colorful 1956 Buick convertible exemplifies the carefree days of summer vacations and the place automobiles have in American over-the-road vacation planning.

Versatility and ease of handling in traffic are attributes of Chrysler's New Yorker, with power steering and power brakes, factors that help eliminate fatigue of fast schedule vacation driving so typical of many American vacations.

Distinctive low-silhouette styling and flo-tone two-tone paint treatment mark Mercury's Monterey hardtop coupe. Noted for proven ability to hug the road, handling and riding ease is the 1956 Mercury.

Oxford can be anywhere in the United States, thanks to the nation's heritage from Old England, but this small town is more likely to be found near the eastern seaboard than the western. A Rambler station wagon, 1956 version with stepped up power, is a suitable adjunct to those long, rambling vacation trips so many St. Louisans plan.

Cadillac

Spring Tonic That Lasts All Year !

His heart is light and his eyes are bright this morning—for he's greeting the spring at the wheel of a 1956 Cadillac.

Springtime comes and springtime goes, of course—but the thrill of his Cadillac will go on and on—month after month and year after year.

First, there's the sheer satisfaction of owning a motor car that is such a joy to possess and a pleasure to utilize.

Then there's the thrill of driving it—with its incomparably smooth, quiet, powerful engine—its easy, positive steering—its big, soft, authoritative brakes—and its ride so smooth and relaxing that it must be experienced to be understood.

But perhaps the deepest thrill of all comes from a secret he shares with other Cadillac owners—the amazing economy of Cadillac ownership.

The first cost of a Cadillac is surprisingly modest—upkeep, over the years, is unbelievably low—and operating costs rival those of any car.

And now, may we speak of one other satisfaction he enjoys as a Cadillac owner?

We believe that, throughout the years of his ownership, he will be as pleased with us, as his dealer, as he is with the wonderful car itself. It is our constant endeavor to treat our customers as they are entitled to be treated as owners of the world's most distinguished car.

From purchase to resale, the owner's satisfaction is our purpose and our goal.

Why not come in soon—and arrange to greet the spring in your own Cadillac?

We think you'll be surprised at how easily and quickly you can make the move.

Don't Argue Men, About Who's Safe Driver

DON'T argue with your wives about the relative merits of male and female drivers, men. Avoid the subject like the plague and drop it like a hot potato should your spouse bring it up.

And bring it up she might, because the latest statistics are all in favor of the womenfolk, especially womenfolk under 25.

These statistics appear to indicate that the gals are much saner, safer and more careful drivers than we are, men.

Here are some of the cold and cruel facts your ever-lovin' may use to overwhelm you:

Ten times as many men drivers are involved in fatal accidents as women drivers. In all accidents—including injury-producing and property damage accidents as well as fatal—six times as many men drivers are involved.

So what, you retort scornfully, everybody knows there are lots more men drivers than women.

But if your little woman has read further, you're a goner.

It so happens that of the 72,000,000 or so registered drivers in this country, about 21,000,000 of them are women: that leaves 51,000,000 men drivers. In other words, the ratio of male to female drivers is only 5 to 2—not 10 to 1 or 6 to 1.

Even your feeble, "Yes, Dear, but men drive more miles than women," probably will serve only to strengthen her belief you're still the pig-headed brute she found out you were after she passed up a much better catch.

As for women drivers under 25, they've been given another insurance rate reduction in most parts of the country, which means these young gals can obtain insurance coverage at about half the cost to their young male counterparts.

Norris C. Flanagin, executive vice president of an insurance company, explained that rates have been lowered for the under-25 women "simply because they earned a reduction through safer driving."

Why should the women walk off with the laurels? Isn't it true that we male stalwarts are stronger and can handle a car better?

That may be, said Dr. W. A. Eggert, chief psychologist for an insurance group, yet "a proper respect for this deadly weapon we call a car is much more important to driving safety than is the ability to maneuver the car skillfully."

Dr. Eggert said the female driving caution that men are inclined to scoff at and joke about is an important reason why so many women keep out of trouble on the road.

Two courses appear open to us, men. We can try to convince the girls that the reason we fellows have a higher accident-involvement rate is that a man gets so flustered when he sees a woman driver he runs for the culverts and telephone poles.

Or we can be just a little more careful in our driving so we can hold up our collective heads proudly once more.

All Set?
Then, Let's Go

VACATION days are here for some, for many more soon will be. It's time to raise the question: All set? Then let's get going.

But first, let's double check, before you set out to discover Missouri all over again, or perhaps the points beyond.

You wouldn't want, says the Missouri Division of Resources and Development, to return and discover burglars had broken in while you were away. So, take a few precautions.

Arrange for neighbors to pick up your mail rather than let it accumulate; cancel newspaper delivery during the time you're gone, or better, have the paper sent to your vacation address. Call police to let them know you'll be away so they can keep a check on your house.

Chief Louis G. Rackers of Jefferson City, for instance, explained that "after all, police departments are designed for public service. We only wish more people would take advantage of the service and call us when they're going to be away."

He explains people should tell police how long they're going to be gone, whether anyone has another key, whether anyone will have reason to be in the house and therefore be burning lights. In this manner, police can prevent a vacation-ruining burglary.

"It's a lot easier to prevent it than try to solve it after it's happened," Rackers noted.

A few other hints:

Check house water pipes (some shut water off entirely); shut off gas or at least be sure the pilot lights are off; carefully lock all doors and windows; clean out refrigerator and shut it off (leave door open); be sure to get rid of perishable foods.

Did we say "let's go"? Well, yes, but are you too tired to start out? Think it over seriously and, if you are, get a good night's sleep first. The idea of putting as many miles as possible behind you on Friday night, to stretch your weekend, is tempting, but if you've had a hard week getting all set for the vacation, it's dangerous. Better to get a very early start Saturday morning . . . and you'll get just as far . . . much more safely.

National Park Service Building Accommodations for Visitors to Jackson Hole Country

DEVELOPMENT of log cabin accommodations and other visitor facilities at the Colter Bay area of Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming, will be started this spring to provide low-cost facilities for the increasing numbers of visitors to the wilderness park, Laurance S. Rockefeller, president of Jackson Hole Preserve, Inc., reports.

The work is part of a comprehensive plan developed jointly with the National Park Service to create a new kind of accommodations center. It is considered a pilot project in meeting the pressing need for national park facilities without detracting from the natural settings.

Sections of the Colter Bay area will be open to the public this year, including modern facilities for house trailers, the first built in a national park, and well-planned camp sites. The remainder of the permanent facilities, expected to be ready for the 1957 summer season, will be built by Grand Teton Lodge Company, a subsidiary of Jackson Hole Preserve, Inc., the nonprofit conservation organization founded by John D. Rockefeller Jr. In addition to some 80 log cabins to accommodate 400 persons, the development plan will include a cafeteria, general store, photo shop, tackle shop and boat basin, bath houses, and laundromat.

The Colter Bay site, a beautiful wooded tract overlooking Jackson Lake and the towering Teton range of mountains, contain 400 acres with room for unlimited expansion. It is towards the northern end of Grand Teton National Park near Yellowstone, 40 miles from the nearest town and six miles from the new Jackson Lake Lodge. The area is removed from the main highway and is being carefully developed to preserve the natural beauty of the region.

The trailer and camp site areas already have been installed by the National Park Service. Incorporating the latest design, they have conveniently-placed bath houses for the 225 camp sites and 110 trailer spaces. The modern trailer area, equipped with individual plumbing and power connections, will be operated by the Grand Teton Lodge Company as park concessionaire and a temporary general store and tackle shop will be readied in time for the 1956 season beginning June 11.

The program of work to be undertaken by Grand Teton Lodge Company is expected to cost upwards of $1,000,000. Log cabins from Moran and Square G Ranch in the park will be moved to Colter Bay and completely renovated and private baths added.

Nearby and also serving the trailer and camp site areas, a 300-seat cafeteria will be built along with the other facilities. The design of the new buildings will be of rustic wood on a steel frame harmonizing with the log cabin area and natural setting.

Eldridge T. Spencer of San Francisco, architect for the Yosemite Park Company, is architect for the new work. It will be under the direction of Raymond C. Lillie, vice president and general manager of Grand Teton Lodge Company. Grand Teton Lodge Company also operates Jackson Lake Lodge, built in 1955 as a "gift to the American people," Jenny Lake Lodge, and the bus transportation system in the park.

XP-500 Will Run on 'Anything', But It's Still Experimental

THE XP-500, first automobile in the world powered by a new engine that burns almost any type of fuel, is reported by General Motors president Harlow H. Curtice.

It will be unveiled at the May 15-16 dedication of the new General Motors Technical Center, where such engines have been under test the last three years.

Known as the free piston engine, designated GM-10-10, Curtice said the experimental power package represents an entirely new concept in automotive power.

"Although the principle of the free piston engine has been known for more than 30 years," the GM president declared, "General Motors research staff is first to put it to work in an automobile."

The XP-500's engine has no crankshaft or connecting rods, no rotating parts in the manner of a conventional auto engine with its pistons spinning a crankshaft. Basically its pistons operate like a bicycle tire pump or old-fashioned fireplace bellows, blowing hot gases through a pipe to a turbine.

The spinning turbine powers the rear wheels of this revolutionary experimental motor car.

Curtice said engineers directed by Dr. Lawrence R. Hafstad, GM vice president in charge of research staff, are the first to design a free piston engine into such a small compact unit. It generates a nominal 250 horsepower and is described as a Siamese unit.

This means it consists of two parallel cylinders, each containing a set of two horizontally opposed pistons, a departure from previous free piston engine design.

One of the most interesting features of a free piston engine is an unfinicky fuel appetite. In tests at Technical Center a unit has run on all types of mineral oils from high octane gasolines to so-called bunker "C" or residual fuels.

In fact, a GM experimental unit has been fuelled with whale oil, peanut and other vegetable oils.

Although it is in the very early experimental stage, Underwood explained, the engine offers engineers many interesting possibilities with a new form of power not only for passenger cars but also buses, trucks, military vehicles.

It has few high precision parts as compared with conventional auto piston engines and gas turbines. Also, engineers say, it is inherently balanced so that it operates virtually without vibration, and the comparative absence of rotating parts would cause little wear of rubbing metals.

The pistons are arranged opposite one another in horizontal cylinders. An air-fuel charge fired between them—with injectors like a Diesel—drives the pistons apart, compressing air at the ends of the cylinders.

The compressed air bounces the pistons back toward inner "dead center" and as they travel inward they also compress air that pumps into a Diesel cylinder. The back-and-forth movement continues to compress air which is piped to a turbine.

Because these exhaust gases pumped to the turbine are relatively cool, no higher than 900 degrees Fahrenheit, the turbine blades can be made of non-critical, non-strategic materials.

In the XP-500 the free piston unit or "air pump" is under the hood. The pipe to the turbine runs along one of the car's side or chassis frames, thus giving the passenger compartment a "flat door." In the rear compartment the turbine is combined with the transmission-axle units, transmitting power to the rear wheels.

There is a gasoline that can make your driving safer!

Shell Premium with TCP* gives up to 18% more acceleration in the moments when your safety may depend upon it

Highway authorities agree that the first requirement of safety is careful driving at all times. These same authorities also agree that there are times when every driver—no matter how careful he may be—needs a sudden burst of power for safety.

In the vital seconds when your safety depends on it, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP can give you up to 18% more acceleration.

Here's why: even in its first 4000 miles your engine accumulates harmful deposits.

As your engine warms up, these deposits heat up too—glow red hot. They fire the gasoline before your pistons reach proper position. What's even worse, they short-circuit your spark plugs, causing them to "miss."

If pre-firing and spark plug "miss" are allowed to go unchecked, the power loss can amount to as much as 20 horsepower.

In Shell Premium Gasoline, TCP additive actually "fireproofs" engine deposits, keeps them from getting red hot and firing the gasoline too soon. And it stops spark plug "miss," too.

Change today to Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP and you'll re-power your car as you drive . . . within a few tankfuls.

Be sure to ask your Shell Dealer for free travel information.

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

About the Map On Pages 16-17

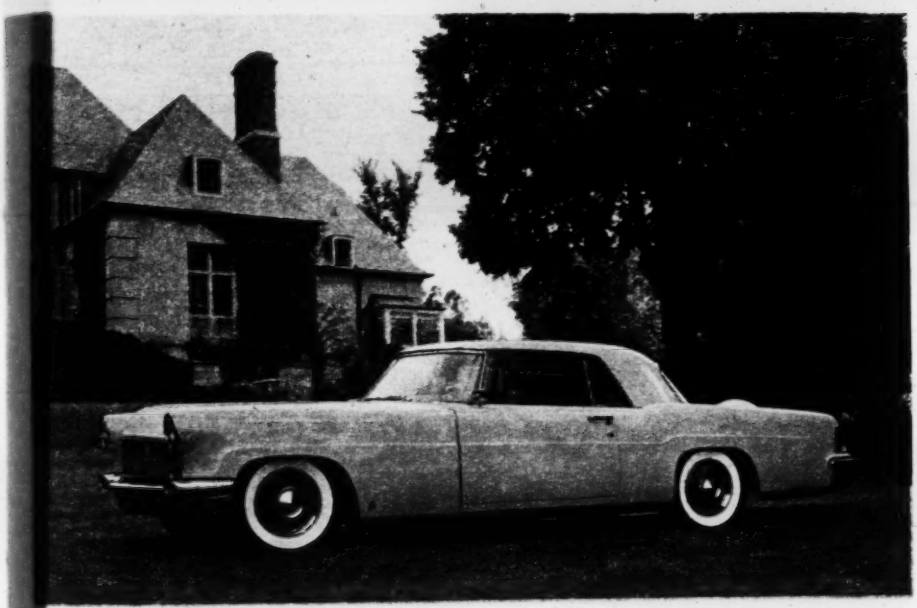
Major highways radiating outward from St. Louis, as shown on the map on the two preceding pages indicate that the vacation-bound St. Louisan is only a short time distant, by automobile, from anywhere in the nation, or even areas of neighboring countries.

Circles on the map, drawn with St. Louis as a center, tell a prospective vacationer almost at a glance how long it will take him to get where he would like to go to hide away at a fishing hole for a couple of weeks, lie lazily on a beach, steer clear of sun-tan by visiting the night spots, or wear himself out sightseeing.



Delicate treatment of design detail is a major feature of the Continental Mark II, Ford Motor Company's new prestige automobile. Superfluous ornamentation is avoided in the "modern formal" design, which emphasizes the functional use of chrome, steel and glass. The integration of parking lights in the front bumper, corresponding to the exhaust port design in the rear bumper, reflects the attention to integrated styling. The Continental's hand-finished sheet metal is painted with four double coats of lacquer to insure depth of color and durability. Fourteen exterior colors are available with harmonizing interiors of imported leather, wool broadcloth, nylon and matalesse in various combinations.

The amenities of modern American city living, the nostalgic luxuries of the Old South and the strong attraction of nature in the rough all across this land of roving vacationers is depicted in the three photos on this page.

The automobile in the center photo before the New Orleans style residence is Cadillac's Eldorado Brougham Town Car, an outstanding example of the wide range of service exemplified in American manufactured automobiles.

Cadillac's luxury styling ranges from this type of automobile through staid sedans and to swift, colorful, comfortable convertibles and sport-line cars in several body designs.

Many experts in the field of automotive endeavor rate Cadillac as one of the most economical automobiles to own and drive despite its being a luxury class car.

Lithe lines and the forward flair of the New Horizon windshield (full wrap-around) of the 1956 Dodge Custom Royal V-8 Lancer convertible suggest the surging power of the aircraft-type V-8 engine up ahead. Interiors feature fine, soft-as-leather Cordagrain in green, black or blue, keyed with contrasting trim. All will give long wear and lasting beauty through years of top-down driving. Power top is standard, additional power features are optional.

BUYING A NEW CAR?

Mr. Studebaker

. . . it's like a 3-ring circus. Everybody, or so it seems, shouts like a barker at a side show. Personally, I'm glad we don't have to shout. Studebaker has a lot of real happy owners who know from experience that dollar-for-dollar they get a lot more car for their money.

I was talking to a customer last Saturday who traded in a '49 Champion just recently. He had driven it over 86,000 miles without spending 1c on the motor, transmission or body. It had no squeaks or rattles, and the original tires lasted nearly 61,000 miles. Gasoline averaged better than 19 miles per gallon.

If you are looking for a car that's easy on the pocketbook, flashy on the road—come in and test drive the new Studebaker. If you haven't driven one lately, you're in for a big surprise. There's no obligation, no pressure . . . just real good automobile.

Many New Highways Being Developed for a Nation on Wheels

THE banker, J. P. Morgan, said in 1908 there were 200,000 registered U.S. motor vehicles. "The saturation point has been reached," he said.

Today, the U.S.A. has more than 61,000,000 motor vehicles.

And today—as every day between 1908 and 1956—we still talk about "saturated highways."

The screams of anguish were particularly loud during the height of debate over the Highway Bill, which projects a $51,000,000,000 (B) Federal-State roadbuilding plan over 13 years. Such legislation would assure completion of the 40,000 mile interstate highway system, long advocated by the National Association of Travel Organizations, representing every phase of the American travel industry, as well as the American Automobile Association, the truckers, the bus operators, the road builders, and others who use highways either for profit or pleasure.

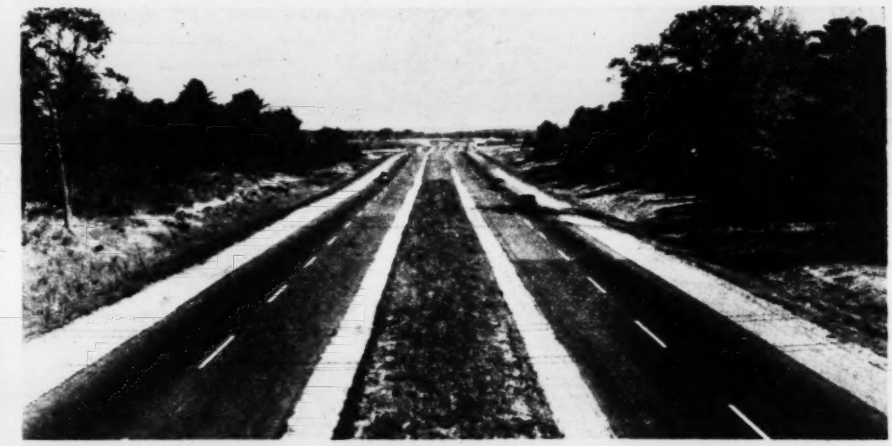
Yet, while almost everyone pleaded for this dream network of roads—differing only on methods of financing it—the American system, which always responds to demand, was already working and super highways were being built at a record pace.

The demand was so great for highways to accommodate our millions of new cars that America reverted momentarily to a pioneer expedient—the toll road.

Toll roads had not been built in America for generations until the fabulously expensive Pennsylvania Turnpike was conceived. Carried through to completion, it was far more successful than the most visionary planner had dreamed. It cost millions, but it brought in more millions. Plans for toll roads sprouted on every side.

Today, we have 1700 miles of toll road. Some 1200 more miles are under construction.

Some highway planners believe that toll roads will eventually fade from the scene. They say America has awakened to the fact we must think big about highways. They believe the toll roads will pay out or the government will redeem the bonds held by those who financed the toll roads. They think the system will be absorbed into our public highway net.



Be that as it may, our highway engineers are busier than they ever have been.

Even without counting on the floods of money to be made available by the big Federal Highway bill, they have been trying to match strides with the record production of auto manufacturers.

The National Association of Travel Organizations, with the help of the American Automobile Association, the National Conference of Highway Users and the publication, Engineering News-Record, has compiled this state-by-state list of recent and current major highway construction for guidance of vacation motorists:

CALIFORNIA

Whole nets of freeways were being pushed to completion around San Francisco Bay and in the Los Angeles area. The Redwood Empire Association, in northern California, was especially happy about the Golden Gate Bridge Freeway, four miles of six-lane highway speeding traffic north. Dedication date: March 20. Los Angeles opened up 11.6 miles of new freeway in the last year, bringing the area total to an impressive 77.6 miles.

CONNECTICUT

There's a Dec. 31, 1957, completion date for the Connecticut Expressway, which will traverse the state from Greenwich, near New York, to Killingly, on the Rhode Island line.

FLORIDA

Dirt is flying on Florida's 110-mile Ft. Pierce-Miami "bobtailed" turnpike, and the target date is the end of the year. An extension to Jacksonville may be ready for traffic in 1958. Grading in Florida is easy, but there are 87 bridges in the first section.

GEORGIA

Things were speeded a bit along U.S. 17, the "Ocean Hiway" route to Florida, by the opening of the Eugene Talmadge Bridge across the Savannah River.

IDAHO

The 5800-foot Sandpoint bridge across Lake Pend O'reille was to be open for traffic by early summer.

ILLINOIS

Legal battles held up plans of the Illinois State Toll Road Commission. As a result, the Skyway linking Chicago to the Indiana Toll Road will not be complete until 1958. Three toll roads, totaling 193 miles, are planned to carry the turnpike system beyond Chicago. First contracts on these won't be let until July 1.

INDIANA

The first 50 miles of the 156-mile Indiana Toll Road is expected to open in late July. The whole route, from Ohio's completed turnpike to the proposed Chicago Skyway toll facility, is scheduled for completion in November. AAA says it will not recommend the first 50-mile stretch for Chicago-bound motorists until the whole Turnpike is complete. Thru-traffic will find U.S. Route 6 faster, AAA says.

KANSAS

The 236-mile Kansas Turnpike, angling down from Kansas City to the Oklahoma border, is aimed at completion in October. It jogs a bit via Topeka, Emporia and Wichita. Differing from the usual pattern, service facilities on this turnpike will be located on an island between the two pavements.

KENTUCKY

The 40-mile turnpike from Louisville to Elizabethtown is to open July 1.

LOUISIANA

The $39,000,000, 25-mile bridge across New Orleans' Lake Pontchartrain is scheduled for completion in August.

MAINE

The 106-mile Maine Turnpike now extends from the southern border to Augusta, the state Capital. The last 62 miles, from Portland, was opened this winter.

MARYLAND

A new four-lane route from Washington to the New Jersey Turnpike via the Chesapeake Bay Bridge is stepping right along. Another section of divided highway on the Washington to Annapolis, Md., thruway opens this spring. Then, on the east side of the bridge, the last stretch near Sassafras, Md., opens in June. Another stretch of U.S. 240, leading from Frederick to Rockville, north of Washington, also opens early this summer. A Patapsco River tunnel in Baltimore, greatly speeding up traffic through that congested metropolis, is to open late in 1957.

MASSACHUSETTS

November of this year is the target date for completion of the Massachusetts Turnpike, bisecting the state from Boston to the New York line. There, a further expressway is planned to link with the New York Thruway. Work continues in Boston on the Central Artery and Northeast Expressway to speed traffic through congested areas.

MICHIGAN

The state talked about an extensive system of expressways linking south to the Ohio Turnpike and north to the bridge being pushed across the cold Straits of Mackinac. Meanwhile, Detroit's $205,000,000, 23-mile expressway program reached the halfway mark. The motor city's impressive new system is depressed with a minimum of three lanes in each direction.

MISSISSIPPI

Work continues on the Natchez Trace, which eventually will be a 450-mile limited access parkway from Natchez to Nashville, Tenn. The Trace is an old Indian trail used by early explorers and troops as well. Some 120 miles of it is now open, from Ridgeland, Miss., 10 miles north of Jackson, to French Camp, Miss.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

The Granite State is working on the second half of a turnpike from the Massachusetts line to the state capital at Concord. The New

Highway Building Report

Hampshire Parkway, along the coast, will be extended inland from Portsmouth to Dover this summer. Another section inland to Rochester will open next summer.

NEW JERSEY

Business has been so good on the Garden State Parkway, down the coast of New Jersey, that part of it has been widened. And they're thinking of a ferry link south to Delaware. The earlier New Jersey Turnpike has been widened, too. June is the completion date for the $114,000,000 link across Hudson County and Newark Bay to a connection with Holland Tunnel and New York.

NEW YORK

Opening last December of the Tappan Zee Bridge across the Hudson left only three miles of the 427-mile New York Thruway proper, incomplete. The last miles from Yonkers to the New York City line are to be completed this summer. The Thruway authority has taken bids for a 70-mile extension from Erie to the Pennsylvania border and for a 15-mile link to the Connecticut pike. A 21.8-mile extension of the Thruway from Buffalo to Niagara Falls will be completed this summer except for sections within the city of Buffalo.

NORTH CAROLINA

If you drive U.S. 70 in North Carolina this summer, you'll be thankful for improvements which by-pass all major communities between Durham and Salisbury.

OHIO

Ohio's Turnpike No. 1, connecting the Pennsylvania and Indiana turnpikes, was completed right on the button, on Oct. 1, last fall. And its tolls were coming in at about $1,000,000 a month. Planners already were at work on Turnpike No. 2, which would criss-cross the state from Cincinnati to Conneaut in the northeast corner of the state.

OKLAHOMA

The Turner Turnpike between Oklahoma City and Tulsa is to be continued for another 89 miles to the north-east (or Ozark) corner of the state. Target date: July 1, 1957.

OREGON

The Portland-Salem freeway was completed last fall. Still projected is a tie with Portland's waterfront thruway system for Washington-bound traffic. The Banfield Expressway linking Portland to Troutdale is open for 12 miles of its 14-mile route.

PENNSYLVANIA

The grand-daddy of all modern turnpikes, the Pennsylvania, will be linked, in May, to the New Jersey Turnpike via a $27,000,000 bridge across the Delaware River. Work was progressing rapidly on the Northeastern extension of the Turnpike from north of Philadelphia 110 miles into the Poconos. The first half, to Slatedale, is expected to be open by June 1.

TEXAS

The 30-mile turnpike between Dallas and Ft. Worth is scheduled for completion July 1, 1957.

VIRGINIA

The same firm building a big traffic-speeding tunnel through Baltimore is also laying one under Hampton Roads, near Norfolk, Va. The resort town of Virginia Beach, Va., hopes fervently this will be done for the summer of 1957.

WASHINGTON

After 17 years of work, the Pacific Highway was completely four-laned from Vancouver to Olympia. A bascule bridge was completed over the Chehalis River at Aberdeen. Construction continues on a $7,000,000 freeway east of Spokane.

HAWAII

More than three-fourths of the Hamakua Coast Highway was complete. It is down a steep, gulch-pocked coastline requiring 40 bridges.

ALASKA

Motorists going up the Alaska Highway from the States will be saved 100 miles of driving by completion of Route 43 in British Columbia. This extends from just outside Edmonton to Valleyview.

ELSEWHERE

The ferry from Key West to Havana has been reactivated. AAA reports it is now for passengers only, but it should be taking cars, too, by summer, as soon as dock facilities are activated. . . . A new every-other-day ferry service has been activated between Bar Harbor, Me., and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. It runs only during the summer season.

Taking Long Trip? These Final Tips Can Make It a Pleasure

By LESLIE G. KENNON
(Missouri Division of Resources and Development)

YOUR car is a key to an enjoyable vacation. It can take you places for a memorable Missouri vacation, or it can afford ease of traveling and convenience of setting up your own time schedule for much longer trips.

Unfortunately, it also can spoil your vacation! And all too often, it does. The thing is, it's nearly always something that could have been prevented — an accident caused by carelessness, forgetting to have the car checked, or possibly overlooking extra tires or an extra set of car keys.

Let's take a look first at the things which affect your car.

If you forget that all-important check-up, you may be in for trouble—not only from "major" and obvious things like the motor and tires, but from those "lesser evils" which can impair the fun of your trip if they go wrong.

And how about such items like extra tires (on a long trip), an extra fan belt or generator belt or checking hydromatic fluid. These things and others—like your wiper, tire jack, forgetting to check your driver's license—all can give you trouble and spoil your vacation fun.

You should take with you, also, such items as a first-aid kit, two flashlights, an extra set of car keys —all of which can prevent unexpected trouble.

Then, of course, there are the hazards of driving. The Missouri State Highway Patrol's Department of Public Information and Education points to these 10 things which vacationing motorists too often overlook as the cause of many accidents:

1. Thoughts of the vacation and planning the fun causes motorists to forget the seriousness of driving.
2. Excessive speed in trying to reduce travel adds to the hazards of vacation driving (and won't necessarily mean arriving much sooner).
3. Unfamiliarity with the roads and traffic regulations.
4. Unfamiliarity with traffic conditions.
5. Failure to allow adequate time for travel without driving long hours with no stop-over. Fatigue driving, patrol says, is especially dangerous.
6. Distraction from driving alertness because of crowded vehicles.
7. Sight-seeing while driving. Pull off the roadway and stop to do your sight-seeing!
8. Congestion of summer highways.
9. Holiday periods find more drinking drivers on the road.
10. Changes in water and food may cause nausea. Check your eating places and use only recommended ones.

Actually, then, there isn't one of these things which can't be overcome with a little more planning, thought and carefulness. It can mean a completely enjoyable vacation. Overlooking any one of these points could spoil this year's vacation—and possibly many to come.

Long Trip No Vacation For Auto Tires

IF YOUR vacation plans include a long motor trip, remember that this is no vacation for your tires.

Auto tires generally get their most severe workout of the year on cross-country summer drives. They must go farther and faster than usual with a heavier load and generally in higher temperatures. And all of these factors are tire enemies, say tire company engineers.

Before starting out, consult your owner's manual to find out how much air pressure your tires should carry. Keep this information in your glove compartment, for quick reference on the trip.

Air pressures are not the same for all cars, for all models of the same car or even for front and rear tires of an individual auto.

It's important for the motorist to know how much pressure is needed so he can see this pressure is maintained. Tire pressures should be checked carefully at the beginning of the journey and at least every other day along the way.

Stick to the recommended pressures for normal driving conditions. Long-distance runs may cause pressure to build up as much as five extra pounds per tire, but the driver should not try to compensate for this additional pressure in advance, as cooler night temperatures usually will bring the pressure back down to normal.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: NOTHING IS LEFT OF THE GREAT HALL BUT GLOWING EMBERS. BUT THESE ARE NOT SO HOT AS THE BURNING RAGE IN THE HEART OF EARL JON!

THEN COMES GUNDAR HARL, LIMPING UP FROM THE SHORE. "I SAW IT ALL FROM THE SHIP, POWERLESS TO HELP!"

"WHEN THE HUNTING PARTY HAD GONE THE RAIDERS CAME DOWN FROM THE HILLS. I HEARD THE SCREAMS OF THE WOMEN AND SAW THE FLAMES. THEY DEPARTED HEAVY LADEN, BACK UP THE MOUNTAIN. I CAME ASHORE ON AN EMPTY BARREL."

"ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS, ON THE NEXT FJORD TO THE NORTH, LIVES GUNNAR FREYSSON. THIS IS HIS HANDIWORK," ROARS EARL JON. "SOUND THE HORNS AND CALL IN ALL THE WARRIORS!"

"WAIT," SAYS VAL THOUGHTFULLY. "GUNNAR MUST HAVE SPENT LAST NIGHT TOILING THROUGH THE HIGH SNOWS. WITHOUT SLEEP OR REST HE AND HIS MEN MUST LABOR BACK WEIGHED DOWN WITH THEIR PLUNDER. WE WILL SAIL AROUND TO THEIR NEST AND AWAIT THEM!"

WITH A FAIR WIND, GUNDAR HARL CONS HIS SHIP, CROWDED TO THE RAILS WITH FIGHTING MEN, OUT ONTO THE DARKENING SEA.

5-6-56

ALL THAT NIGHT GUNNAR FREYSSON URGES HIS MEN ON ACROSS THE BITTER PASS. MANY FALL FROM WEARINESS, NOT TO RISE AGAIN. THEIR ORDEAL MIGHT HAVE BEEN HEROIC WERE IT SUFFERED IN A BETTER CAUSE.

Lee Ann Meriwether

Hours She Has to Keep Make Her a Daytime Girl

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 5

"SO MUCH has happened to me in the past two years that I sometimes think I'll wake up to find it's all been just a fairy tale," said Lee Ann Meriwether, Miss America of 1955 and now a featured personality on Dave Garroway's "Today" show (KSD-TV 7 to 9 a.m. Mondays through Fridays).

While consuming a hearty breakfast, accompanied by, of all things, a vanilla milk shake, the beauty queen who is now the fashions, weather and interview specialist on the popular television show, recalled that it was two years ago last month that her life took its first glamorous turn.

A student at San Francisco City College, Lee discovered one day in April of 1954 that her fellow members of the student council had, unknown to her, submitted her name and photograph as an entry in the "Miss San Francisco" beauty contest. A month later she walked off with the city crown and a month after that became "Miss California." Still dazed over the trend of events that had interrupted her quiet life as just another college student, Lee moved on to the big beauty pageant at Atlantic City where she was chosen "Miss America" of 1955.

LEE WAS AWARDED A $5000 scholarship to study acting, a big shiny new automobile, a $5000 wardrobe and an amazing assortment of gifts totaling in value about $50,000. And then in real fairy tale fashion she was whisked off for a 130,000-mile tour through the United States, Canada, Peru, Chile and Argentina. She appeared and spoke before some 500 schools, foundations, clubs and charitable organizations. And everywhere she went people were impressed with the fresh, unsophisticated girl who remained unspoiled in the midst of the glamorous goings-on.

Then, suddenly it seemed, the year of Lee's reign was over. Handing her scepter to a new queen, she prepared to resume a more quiet life—studying acting on the scholarship she had won. Instead, she was tapped for another glamorous role—as a featured personality on the Garroway television program.

"IT'S WONDERFUL," Lee says of the job she has held down since last October. "I feel I'm getting experience no money could buy."

A less amiable miss might moan over the hours that she finds necessary to keep for the "Today" show. For instance, she has to get up at 4:30 in the morning to be ready for rehearsals which begin in the NBC studios at 5:30. Then the show goes on at 7.

After the telecast there's a production meeting, but from noon on Lee's time is supposedly her own. However, there are always interviews, pictures to be taken, and sponsor's sales meeting to attend. Twice a week Lee attends classes at a dramatics school. Wednesday afternoons she reserves, if at all possible, for seeing the matinees of Broadway shows.

"I'm strictly a daytime girl," she says. "There's no night life for me. In fact, I'm nearly always in bed by 8 in the evening. I have to go to bed that early to be able to get up at 4:30 and be fresh for the morning program."

LEE LIVES IN A residential hotel but plans to move soon to a small apartment. She moans over the fact that her dates are few and far between because young men "aren't falling all over themselves to date a girl who has to go home at an hour when most couples are just starting out for the evening."

Eventually, Lee, who will be 21 on May 27, hopes to prove herself a "really good actress." She has "the ultimate-ultimate hope" that some day she can combine an acting career with being a wife and "a very good mother." In partial fulfillment of her acting ambitions she has had roles on Philco Television Playhouse and Matinee Theater which were favorably received by the critics.

BORN IN LOS ANGELES, the daughter of an office manager for a chemical firm who died two months before Lee won her big beauty title, the former Miss America gives her parents credit for her new career.

"My parents were wonderful," she says. "My mother, in fact, designed and made the gowns I wore in all three beauty contests."

Still unspoiled by her mounting success, Lee is a great favorite on the "Today" program. Besides her assigned duties, she takes time to do small chores that arise around the studio, such as filling water pails and washing off the weather bulletin board. She says she thinks the men on the program like to have her around because "I'm good at sewing on buttons in emergencies."

Letters Intended For This Column Should Be Addressed To Television Editor, TV Magazine, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis 1, Mo.

WE hope we can have Liberace and George back on KSD-TV in the near future, through some kind sponsor. They certainly renewed interest in the piano, violin, composers and music in general.

CATHERINE L.

May I congratulate you for discontinuing Liberace. I got enough of him to last me for several more years.

REUBEN DILL,
Litchfield, Ill.

Something should be done to get "The Johnny Carson Show" back on television. He always had a good show but wasn't on TV long enough to give people a chance to like him.

DOUG CURNAYN

(Johnny Carson will have a daytime show on CBS-TV beginning May 26.—Editor.)
